Further, important trade agreements were counted necessary for the world's enduring peace; to this end the United States is using its influence to open up the trade channels of the world, so that no nation needs to gain these by force of arms. He emphasized that the leadership of the United States would be weakened if this nation becomes "a dog in the manger'. Reference was made to the strengthening of our national detense in the light of continuing world uncertainty by appropriations for the army and navy, but based on common sense.

Finally, coming to the budget, the president's announcement that this would be increased only by army and navy appropriations was greeted by rounds of applause. More applause followed the next sentence: "Practically all others show a reduction." But, after the applause ceased there was the reminder, "You can't eat your cake and have it too. Therefore the most we can do to reduce approthe House yesterday that activities priations is by asking Congress to levy additional taxes to meet necessary expenditures."

Beyond the army and navy lies the ultimate defence-the general welfare. In speaking of the problem of unemployment, there was the statement that immediate needs as far as the federal government was concerned have been largely met, and that we do not want to solve the surplus of man power the European way that leads ultimately to armed conflict. The American way was defined to lie in the increase of the national income, and answered in terms of work and opportunity. "To this problem belongs the problem of youth as well as old age; . . , the army of unused youth must be the special in bed. concern of a democratic government."

Fear and defeatism as an easy attitude to take to go back to ways that have failed, reminded Lease Bryson is able to be out that in 1933 we faced facts with again after being confined to her action that in the 30s resulted in building soundly a new order. # Important Health Law Now In Effect

RALEIGH, Jan. 3 .- One of the most important public health measures ever enacted by a North Carolina Legislature became effective Monday, January 1, after which, in the language of Chapter 313 of the Public Laws of 1939, every woman who becomes pregnant shall have a blood sample taken and submitted to a laboratory approved by the North Carolina State Board of Health for performing the Wassermann test or other approved tests for syphilis," Dr. Carl V, Reynolds, state health officer, reminds the public. Summerized, the new law provides:

That any duly licensed physician shall, upon request of the woman, secure the required blood sample and submit it to the laboratory.

Midwives may not take such samples but shall refer their patients to a duly licensed physician. Any pregnant woman who is not able to pay a physician to take the blood sample may have such sample secured by the county health officer or the county physician for submission to the laboratory.

In reporting births and stillbirths, physicians shall be required to state whether such serological tests have been made during pregnancy, this information to appear on the birth or stillbirth certificate in each instance.

Violation of this act will constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $25, imprisonment for 30 days, or both, in the discretion of the court.
