HARLAN KELSEY AND SON VISIT HIGHLANDS

Harlan P. Kelsey and his son Seth L. Kelsey of East Boxford, Mass., son and grandson of the founder of Highlands, were weekend guests at Highlands Inn. This was Mr. Kelsey's first visit to Highlands in 15 years and his first time to see the monument of uncut granite with bronze tablet erected to the memory of his father through the Village Improvement Society in August, 1929, since he was unable to accompany his family for its unveiling at that time. This monument stands on a plot of ground all its own near the Episcopal rectory.

Although only here for the weekend, Mr. Kelsey saw a number of old friends, among them Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Holt and the Misses Gertrude and Dorothea Harbison, daughters of his former friend and teacher, the late Prof. T. B. Harbison, from whom he received in part his great love for botany expressed now in his Kelsey-Highlands Nurseries at Boxford.

Mr. Kelsey was impressed with the growth of Highlands but suggested that its charm would best be retained by doing away with the parking area in the center of Main street and planting the space in native shrubbery.

DR. BELLINGRATH TO PREACH SUNDAY

Dr. George C. Bellingrath, superintendent of Rabun Gap school, will preach at the Presbyterian church here on Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service hour.

Through the month of July Dr. Kenneth J. Foreman, head of the department of philosophy at Davidson college, will be at this church each Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to visitors to attend these services.

BIBLE SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY

A two weeks' vacation Bible School will begin at the Baptist church here at 9 o'clock Monday morning, and is for the children of the town from Sunday school beginners' age through the intermediates.

Rev. J. G. Benfield, pastor of the church, will be principal of the school and Miss Victoria Tant of Red Springs will be in charge. Teachers appointed at this time are Mrs. J. L. Hicks, Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Higgins, Mrs. Benfield, Mrs. Sidney McCarty, Jr., Mrs. O. F. Sumner, Miss Marie Neely, Mrs. H. S. Talley and Mrs. Paul Walden. There will be others associated with the school whose names are not available at this time.

A revival meeting will be carried on at this church in the evenings during the same two weeks, beginning Monday night. The Rev. M. I. Harris of Valdese will do the preaching, and Sanford Smith of Cullasaja will lead the singing at these services.

MRS. BLANCHARD ENTERTAINS CLUB

Mrs. John C. Blanchard was hostess to the Wednesday Card Club at dessert-bridge last week at her home, Saug Harbor, on Foreman road. This was the last meeting of the season since the club decided to disband until fall. A profusion of wildflowers, woods ferns and larkspur was used to decorate the rooms.

Special guests were Mrs. J. Harvey Trice, the Misses Ruth and Marie Young, Mrs. Emma Thomas and her sister, Mrs. Sloan, Miss Mary J. Crosby, Mrs. Frank L. Olds, Mrs. George McCarty and Mrs. O. B. Smith.

In the progressive four-table

MRS. CAROLYN POTTS ENTERTAINS STUDENTS

Miss Carolyn Potts entertained a number of her former schoolmates of Highlands high school with a supper last Sunday night at Fairview Inn, the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Potts. Carolyn has just completed her junior year at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, and her guests were Estelle Edwards, a former student at the University of Georgia, Athens; Sarah Thompson, a graduate this year of Queens-Chicora college, Charlotte; Richard Pearson, Raleigh; Howard Pearson, Buffalo, N. Y., graduates last year of North Carolina State college, who are here for their vacation, and Billy Nall, a student at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. MRS. S. T. MARETT'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Charles du Bignon were hosts at a dinner on Wednesday at Highlands Inn honoring their aunt, Mrs. S. T. Marett, on her birthday anniversary. The table centerpiece was a large white birthday cake topped with red candles. Others enjoying the occasion with the honor guest were S. T. Marett, Mrs. William R. Dear, Miss Bessie M. Richardson and Miss Gertrude Swanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Marett who celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary in December last year, are among Highlands' most esteemed citizens.

"WHAT A LIFE" ON JULY 8 AT COMMUNITY THEATRE

Arthur Little, director of the Community Theatre, is here and plans a program of three performances for this summer. The first will be "What a Life," the play from which the Henry Aldrich radio scripts originated. The Community Theatre will have a sustaining cast of five professional actors this season, two of whom have already arrived in Highlands; Larry Gates, who played in "Twelfth Night" with Helen Hays and Maurice Evans, will be remembered as having been in the Barter Theatre production of "Saturday's Children" given here two years ago, and Edith Summers, another professional already here, will also be remembered in the cast of Saturday's Children. The three other professionals will be here through July and August.

The tryouts at Helen's Barn last Thursday brought out a great deal of talent and a very encouraging amount of enthusiasm.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Young, scenic designer for the season, has had stage training and experience at the State College for Women, Tallahassee, where she has been a student for the past three years.

PLAY PEN TO ENTERTAIN

The Play Pen at the Odd Job Shop expects to have an informal entertainment for relatives and interested visitors at the camp every Friday afternoon, planned and originated by the children. Among the many helpful things being done by the Odd Job Shop is the collection of garbage twice a week both inside and outside the city limits. This shop is conveniently located at the Hines House opposite King's Inn and is prepared to meet any and all emergencies arising in the average household.

W. M. U. HAS FINE ATTENDANCE

The attendance at the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Macon County Association, held at the Baptist church here on Tuesday, was reported as excellent despite the very rainy weather.

The outstanding talk of the day was made by Mrs. A. J. Smith, wife of the pastor of the Goldsboro Baptist church, and a former resident of Franklin. Mrs. S. H. Stephens, a recently returned missionary from China, who is vacationing at the Potts House, gave an interesting talk. It is her belief that Christianity in China to-

NEW MUSEUM OPENED FRIDAY

Building Of Gray Stone Will House Valuable Collection

A large crowd of interested people attended the opening of Highlands' new museum building on East Main street last Friday afternoon and evening.

The building is of beautiful gray native stone, with front and rear walls of windows. Large French doors lead onto a flagstone terrace in the rear edged with broad built-in flower boxes of the same gray stone. This terrace overlooks a natural amphitheatre, with a stage built of flagstones artistically fitted in between two tall pines, which have rock-walled flower beds at the base of each. From the terrace a lovely view of Ravenel Lake will be had when the dam is rebuilt. The large parking area at the rear and the circular driveway have been hardsurfaced and shrubbery sections on the front laid off.

Inside the building beautiful wildflowers vied with exquisite garden flowers in the more than two dozen flower exhibit arrangements contributed for the occasion by Mrs. O. E. Young, Earl Young, Mrs. McAlister, Lydia and Hugh Sargent, Miss Maude Crain, Miss Minnie D. Warren, Miss Marguerite Ravenel, little Miss Shelagh Foreman, Mrs. Arthur L. Bliss, Miss Christina Houston, the Jam Pot Gift Shop, Mrs. George A. Townsend, Mrs. Clark, Howell, Mrs. Roy Speed, Miss Ann Altstaetter, Mrs. Westervelt Terhune, and Mrs. Evelyn Harris.

Among the interesting museum exhibits are to be found such things as the flax spinning wheel used in the family of the late Mrs. Albert Hill of Chareston and Highlands for three generations, the gift of Mrs. Hill; dip candles given by Miss Marguerite Ravenel from a house at Salem, S. C., the kitchen of which was built before the American Revolution; a pair of brogan shoes made in 1830; saddle pockets used by Israel Putnam during the Revolution, given by H. M. Bascom and a water yoke carried across the shoulders used by Mr. Sellick, a pioneer citizen of Highlands.

A golden eagle, supposed to be the last survivor of its kind in Macon county, stands guard over the main room of the museum from its perch near the entrance. This eagle was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bascom. At the opposite end of the room is a Northern raven found on Sunset Rocks and presented to the museum by Dr. Clark Foreman. Nests of birds of this region fill a large cabinet and dozens of different minerals of North Carolina are on display. Then there are the side-saddle used by the ladies of long ago, and the famous Indian Cleaveland.

In the center of the main room is a table made from a block of the huge hemlock tree felled on the Highlands-Nantahala Estates several years ago, said to have been growing at the time Columbus made his last voyage to America. This table block was given to the museum by the late Mrs. Scott Hudson, and on it are recorded many historical facts relative to the settling of North Carolina, as well as other, interesting data.

The pressing needs of the museum at present are furniture and additional exhibit cases. A number of chairs lent by Miss Marguerite Ravenel for use this season, are so far the only furniture in the building.

day is too deeply rooted to ever fail, and she has hopes of returning to her work at Tsingtao some time in the future.

Mrs. W. D. Briggs of Raleigh, lead the morning conference.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Cook had as their luncheon guests on Sunday Harlan P. Kelsey and his son, Seth Kelsey, of Boxford, Mass., Mrs. Russell Pancoast and two children, Martha and Lester, and Mrs. Robert Davidson and two children, Dean and Virginia, of Miami, Fla.

Friends of Miss Bernice Durgin, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Carter, in Leominster, Mass., for the summer, will be interested to know that she is spending a short time in Mansfield, N. H., with other relatives, but expects to return to Leominster early in July.

Howard Pearson of Buffalo, N. Y., is spending this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Nall, at their home at Shortoff. Howard is testing engineer at the Worthington Machine company in Buffalo, where he has been since his graduation from North Carolina State college last year.

Rev. Hubert Wardlaw, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Franklin, was guest preacher at the Presbyterian church here last Sunday evening. Rev. and Mrs. Wardlaw were Sunday night supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cobb.
