Grandma's Cake Due for Revival

Photo, Country Rumford Baking Powder

REVIVAL days are here for old-fashioned "lemon layer cake"—and it's the all-phosphate baking powder and pure lemon juice grandma used that put it back in style! The new recipe that follows explains why this old-fashioned favorite is always in good taste.

Old-Fashioned Lemon Layer Cake
2 cups sugar 3 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 lemon rind 4 teaspoons Rumford Baking Powder
3 eggs 1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cups milk

Cream shortening, sugar and lemon rind together. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; add creamed mixture. Sift cake baking powder and salt to add alternately to the mixture with the milk. Beat until smooth. Fold in the egg whites, beaten stiff but not dry. Bake in three 8-inch or two 9-inch greased layer pans. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) 25 minutes or until they spring back lightly from the touch in the center.

Lemon Filling:
1/4 cup flour 1/4 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar 1/4 cup water
1 egg, slightly beaten Rind of 1/4 lemon
1/4 tablespoon butter

Sift flour and sugar together. Add slightly beaten egg and lemon juice. Blend until smooth. Heat water and lemon rind in top of double boiler. Add gradually to egg mixture. Return to double boiler and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Stir in the butter. Cool to lukewarm and spread between layers of cake. Ice the cake with boiled icing or sift confectioners' sugar over top.
