On the Rise of Radicalism in this Country:

In this year 1944, as the days pass, it will be the endeavor of The Times-News to present from time to time matters which will aid subscribers in their understanding and appraisement of public affairs, political condi-tions and the present and fu-ture prospects of the country. This we consider an obligation to our public and it is a privil-ege to serve our readers in this way.

The nation is in a serious, even a precarious situation. We make that statement in reference to the internal affairs of the country. It would be true if peace reigned in the world and the United States was not at war. War conditions add to the perplexities and burdens of the nation. We suppose that intelli-gent, patriotic citizens are deeply interested in the matter of obtaining all possible light on conditions as they actually exist in the nation today. They desire to know the truth and to be thoroughly informed about public matters. It has always been the policy of this newspaper to make the largest contribution it finds possible to the policy of the contribution it finds possible to the policy of the contribution it finds possible to the policy of the contribution as a such information as spreading of such information as may serve this purpose.

In pursuance of this policy The Times-News will find space in these columns for an article by Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, which has previously appeared in Forbes Magazine and in some of the newspapers. The title of the article is "Four Mile." title of the article is "Four Milestones to Totalitarianism. have seen no other writing on the subject of present governmental conditions which was as comprehensive and convincing as the article by Senator Byrd.

It is unnecssary to introduce Senator Byrd to Times-News readers. He has a record as a private citizen which is unexcelled by any other loyal and successful American. He has a long and honorable record in the public service of Virginia and in the United States Senate His character integrity and ate. His character, integrity, and his ability as a business man and public servant, are such as to place him in the forefront of national leadership today.

Of Senator Byrd it may be said that his bitterest enemies have not been able to establish that he is narrow or prejudiced in his political attitude or is controlled by any purpose ex-cept unswerving determination to serve his State and country in all sincerity and honesty.

Senator Byrd presents conditions in Washington as they are —as they are known to exist by thousands of other citizens. in and out of public life. No con-firmation from any source is needed to substantiate his estimate of the national govern-mental situation, but the case probably has never been so com-prehensively and impressively presented as by the distinguished Senator from Virginnia.

FOUR MILIESTONES TO TOTALITARIANISM

(By Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Va.)

"It can't happen here" is wishful thinking. So let's face facts -now!

For 10 years now, the U. S has been alternately cajoled, threatened, wheedled, promised and finally pushed down the path to dictatorship. The milestones on this road have not al-ways been clearly discernable as passed, but in retrospect they loom large.

The first milestone was the control of government. Our founding fathers, fearful of totalitarainism, carefully designed a system of checks and balances by which, theorectically, no man or group of men could gain control of the government. This they did by establishing three to make the laws: the executive to carry out the laws: the judiciary, to enforce the laws.

The First Step

From the very start of his administration, President Roosevelt sought to dominate these three branches. He first attempted to "pack" the U. S. Supreme Court by increasing the membership with new appointments. Congress thwarted the scheme. Still, by reason of the administration's long term of office, all except two of our justices have been appointed by President Roosevelt.

The President next attempted a Senatorial purge, designed to prevent the re-election of those who did not see eye to eye with his policies. That he did not succeed in removing Sen. Tydings of Maryland and Senator George of Georgia, among others is a tribute to the public's is a tribute to the public's ability to discern patriotic and

Had this effort of the President succeeded, he would have continued his purge to drive out of public office every mem-ber of the Congress who dared express disagreement with his

Failing in these devices, he attempted to reorganize the vari-ous departments of the govern-ment. He asked for the abolition of the comptroller general the government's only independ the government's only independent auditing office: sought control over the Civil Service Commission, which, in effect, would have endangered our entire merit system; proposed complete executive control of the quasi-judicial agencies, FCC, FPC, ICC and PTC.

Balked by a narrow margin— in these, too, an ingenious method by-passing Congress was conceived. As everyone knows, the real power of Congress over the executive department is the control of the purse—the power to give or deny appropriations. The New Deal has overcome this handicap by creating government corporations which, once a blanket authorization has been secured, are allowed to issue bonds and disburse public funds as the President sees fit. There are 57 of these cor-porations and the $30,000,000,000 which they have spent—many times involving important controversial appropriations — has never been authorized by Congress. It has never even been audited by the comptroller gen-

3,490 Executive Orders

Supplementing this detour of legislative authorization, the President has resorted to an-other method of executive lawmaking, that of executive order. In 10 years he has issued 3,490 executive orders, many of legis-lative or quasi-legislative content. These are not laws passed by Congress: they are laws passed by a single bureaucrat.

Nor is this all. In the stress of the national crisis, the President was granted an emergency fund of over $100,000,000. While only a small portion of this sum has been spent, all of it has been allocated to various agen-cies. In effect, it places tremendous power in the hands of the President—power which the Constitution formerly reserved to the Congress.

This bureaucracy perpetuates itself far from the scrutiny of the citizenry, behind a veil of complex, overlapping and duplications where policy cating agencies whose policy-making personnel is intent upon regimenting American life from the professional armchairs onomists and sociologists in Washington. In many instances their sole aim is to recruit and appoint only those persons who have the same ideological con-cepts as they have.

This undemocratic selection process has been so ingrained through usage as to become an accepted procedure. In violation of civil service regulations, more and more personnel are added to federal payrolls. The activities of these bureaucrats com-pletely confuse and thwart congressional investigators.

The second milestone was the control of business. The con-trol of business, of industry, of the professions, of free enter-prise, of the American way of life itself can be destroyed in one of three ways: (1) By government competition with private business: (2) by senseless and unnecessary regimentation: (3) by excessive and exhorbitant taxation.

Competition with private enterprise has long been a gov-ernment method of weakening private business and industry Begun as an emergency experi-ment in 1933, government com-petition has mushroomed so that now, although the emergency has passed, the government has control, or is seeking control, of every enterprise. Directly con-cerned with business, there are nine federal housing and con-struction agencies. 16 federal business and banking agencies, and four federal transportation and power agencies. There are numerous others, some savoring

There is a bill before Con-gress which, according to the National Physicians Committee, will abolish private medical practice by institutiong public medicine, dentistry, nursing and hospitalization under the direct control of a federally-appointed surgeon general. It will cost an estimated $3,000,000,000 a year.

At present the government is attempting to prove, through the courts, that all insurance fire, indemnity and life—is com-merce between the states, which-obviously it is not. Once this is established, all insurance will be subject to direct government

In the past three years, the government has spent $25,000.-000,000 in building plants and facilities for industrial produc-tion. The title to most of these properties is in the government. of the 1,500 plants which RFC alone has built and financed, 521 were aviation plants; 54, aluminum plants; 120, steel plants 50 high-octane aviation gasoline plants. The steel plants owned by the government represent 20 per cent of the entire country's requirements, the machine tool facilities one-half of the country's requirements, while 92 per cent of all magnesium produced is taken from the state of the country's requirements. cent of all magnesium produced is taken from government plants. Government investments are responsible for the production one-third more rubber than was ever produced before.

all, this vast industrial machine representes one-fifth of the nation's industrial capacity, a measure of control undreamed of by the country's greatest industrialists. This control is vested largely in over 57 government corporations. Many of these, notably the Many of these, notably the RFC, do not operate under control of Congress. This gigantic corporation refuses to have its books audited by the comptroller general, despite the recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury. Declares Jesse H. Jones, able head of the RFC:

Jones: "Wisdom Needed"

"Obviously the government will be in a position to smo-ther private industry in the manufacture of magnesium, and also to dominate more than en-ough capacity to supply the enough capacity to supply the en-tire peacetime needs for alm-inum. These situations will re-quire wisdom and fairness by government, otherwise private investments in these industries would be destroyed."

In effect, such corporate government agencies represent unconsciously the holding compan-ies for Totalitarianism, Incor-porated.

The recent coal strike indicates the trend toward govern-ment ownership of industry and ment ownership of industry and control of the people. The miners desired higher wages. They struck. When the government took over the mines, through Senator Ickes, the miners were granted the same raises in pay which had been previously rewhich had been previously re

Examples have come to my attention where industries have attention where industries have given up new projects because the estimated cost of preparing questionnaires, reports and forms would be greater than the estimated profit. At least 7, 715,229 reports and questionnaires (not including rationing forms) have been issued in one year by the government. year by the government.

What's more, these bureaucratic government agencies is-sue thousands upon thousands of directives, many of which actually supersede congressional laws already on the statute books. These directives and questionanaires, burdening the citizens and placing unreasontually able obstacles against the war effort, was not done by legisla-tive enactment. Congress is not to blame for them.

Don't blame Congress, either, for the coercion and threats used by the adminstration and its agencies to force many busiits agencies to force many businessmen into binding contracts excessive taxation which threatens to remove profit, "seed money" and invested capital alike. Heavy taxation is necessary to carry the financial burden of winning the war but it need not destroy private industry to balance its books.

Branching into the field Branching into the field of property ownership, the federal government has acquired for war purposes, inclusive of public lands, 43,000,000 acres of land in the past five years. This comprises an area equal to the size of Connecticutt, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey Vermont and one-half Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Vermont and one-half of Maine. The government has in fact, become the country's leading real estate operator. The War Department alone has acquired 557 hotels, some of which have been purchased, all of which, unless the government continues to hold them, will be dumped on the market with disastrous effects on local economy. economy.

No Field Free

There is not a single field of private endeavor in the whole country which is not tethered to the post of administrative directive! Yes without free enterprise we can only have government by State socialism. There is no alternative.

There is no alternative.

The third milestone was control of food, the creating of federal agricultural bureaus and agencies which are competing with private enterprise. In the field of agricultural lending alone there are 20 of these federal agencies, some of which are divided into as many as 12 separate corporations. They constitute a federal lien on the entire production of food the country over. Despite the fact that there are ample lending agencies outside the government sees fit to preserve, even expand, these 20 duplicating and overlapping agencies. and overlapping agencies.

When you complain about the high cost of food, think twice. high cost of food, think twice, for you shall pay twice, as the appropriations and loan authorizations for the agricultural program for this year total almost $1,000,000.000. Much of this cost is needlessly exhorbitant. We are still paying for the 151 administration-sponsored resettlement projects started in 151 administration-sponsored resettlement projects started in 1935; which, having failed ut terly, have cost the government $137,000,000. We are paying, too. for bureaucratic control of agriculture, for 100,000 Agricultural Administration committeemen, for 2,175 separate local offices of the Farm Security Adminisof the Farm Security Adminis-tration, a relatively small bu-reau containing 8,375 commit-

Despite the fact that farm income today is 260 per cent of what it was in 1939, the administration is attempting to con-trol the cost of food—and in-cidentally food production—by repeatedly seeking subsidies in the amount of $800,000,000 an-nually. A subsidy is not a loan; it's a gift, a dole which inden-tures the recipient by perpetu-ating his dependence on the government. It is State Social-ism bottled under another label.

COMPROMISE PROPOSED BY NEW DEALER

John Temple Graves, newspa perman of Birmingham, whose special articles appear in news-papers elsewhere, is a new dealer who takes the position that the time has arrived to call a halt on new dealing.

Mr. Graves would retain the vast structure of new dealism, radicalism and socialism, foisted on the nation in the past dozen years by the Washington administration, but he would not add to the structure. He would curb new dealing with would curb new dealing with priorities and ceiling prices—for the time being, at least—but Mr. Graves ought to know that is all that would be accomplished by his proposal—it might be momentarily curbed by that course, but it would not be destroyed and work would speadily be rsumed on the structure if the new dealers maintain control of the central government and the nagovernment and the na-

To change the figure—Mr. Graves believes the new deal is a good thing—but is convinced that the country has had enough of this good thing and does not desire to see it continue growing and swelling to larger proportions. He would down the strength of private enterprise.

Even government competition and regimentation of private business might not render it impotent were it not for the deal fruits are all to the good, who wants to destroy the trees or the crops

Mr. Graves is convinced that a majority of American citi a majority of American citizens have either turned against persists in going on with the the new deal or stand ready to grogram of the past decade. He fears that all may be lost by this course, and is crying out in order that something may be saved through compromise. The compromise would be mise. The compromise would be based on retention of all the to date. An armistice would be new dealers have accomplished arranged and after that had served its purpose the new dealers would spit on their hands and resume their labors.

We are not suggesting these things as Mr. Graves' ideas and plans. We are suggesting what we know will happen if his counsel prevails, because we know the character and purbose of new deal leadership and the way—the only possible way—new deals develop.

The country cannot be saved from the new deal by Mr Graves' program. The injury done the nation by the new deal cannot be repaired that way. The danger from tatalitarianism and dictatorship, and the certainty of destruction of the Republic if new dealism continues to dominate the nation, cannot be avoided by that course.

If this correctly estimates the views of the American people, but few of them will endorse Mr. Graves' proposal for commonise with the nwe deelers. We think the people on both sides would greatly prefer a fight to the finish to determine whether the United States is going to continue to exist as the American Republic or shall be transformed into a centralized, totalitarian, socialist government. ernment.

The fourth milestone was control of the people. It is axiomatic that if control can be established over the shape of of ideas which go into a man's head and the amount of money which flows into his pocket, there is little to fear what will come out of his mouth. In just come out of his mouth. In just these ways totalitarianism is being foisted on the people of

The number as well as the shape of these ideas may soon be rationed if the propaganda specialists have their way. The creation of OWI was a step in that direction. However, the that direction. However, the recent cut in its appropriations indicates that Congress is aware of the danger of a central federal news dispensary.

Free Press, But

Frequent administrative attacks on the free press of America are too well known to necessitate comment. The freenecessitate comment.

dom of the press is one of our last remaining democratic bul-

Even public school education is threatened by administrative control. It was through fear of a government subsidy, which might ultimately grow into government control of all learning, that the Senate refused to give the administration a spring-form to absolute power under the state of the series board to absolute power over the thought of the youth of America.

Control of the people by economic means is much simpler than through control of ideas. This in large measure has alreadys been accomplished by means of public employment, guarantees of security, public doles and a colossal debt which the people—not the government—must ultimately pay.

Moreover, the govern supports uncounted millions more through grants in aid to states and through other cooperative arrangements. This will in itself cost the government over $4.000,000,000 for the liscal year 1943.

Not content with this, the President has announced a guarantee of financial security guarantee of financial security to every American citizen from the cradle to the grave. This is a guarantee from 130,000,000 Americans to 130,000,000 Ameri-cans of social security. While it's the duty of the govern-ment to extend aid to those in distress, it is inconsistent with the very idea of democracy to guarantee financial security to every citizen.

As a necessary corollary to this is the new Machiavellian economic philosophy which advocates an ever-expanding public debt as not only justifiable but also healthy in a country with a "mature economy," such as the U. S. Thus printing-press money would supplant hard work as a means of subsistence. Such a procedure, once introduced, would result in disastrous inflation and, ultimately, government control timately, government control of all finances. The democratic idea that the people support the government would be re-vised; the government would vised; the government would support the people.

Whether the government's re-fusal to practice economy is an attempt in this direction the reader must judge for himself.

The Public Debt

The public debt is now $171,-00,000,000. or $3,500 for every axpayer in America. It is nine times the total debt at the end of the last war. To repudiate this debt would be to repudiate democracy to pay it would democracy, to pay it would re-establish our Americanism. But this can only be done by free men engaged in free en-

The question has often been asked, "What can be done to check this tendency, these growing evils, this march to totalitarianism." The answer is

Congress must first of all re-assert its Constitutional rights assert its Constitutional rights. It must refuse the chief excutive the use of legislative power; it must abrogate the sweeping emergency powers it has given the chief executive as soon as the war ends; it must, in short, refuse to have its own legal authority bypassed by decrees of a single man.

Congress can't do this alone. The people must reassert themselves, too, Every citizen can and must exercise his right of franchise. This is not a privilege alone, it is a duty.

Every citizen should continue his eternal vigilance and keep Congress Informed of his opinions. Congressmen don't diffegard the letters and telegrams sent to them by their constituents and others; they welcome such expressions of judgment, for it is through these that they are made aware of curfor it is through these that they are made aware of cur-rent opinion. Congress repre-sents the people; the people themselves should not forget

Must Work Together

Congress and the people, together, can rid the government of its bureaucrats. The bureaucracy represented by 3,000,000 federal employees must be dismantled. Qualified, competent employees who believe in our form of democracy, recruited under a competitive civil service system based on merit ratings, must be installed. The people and Congress must insist that the government be gotten out of business, that the government corporations competing with private enterprise be liquidated, that the 60,000,000,000 in government property be returned to the people.

The people must elect those be returned to the people.

The people must elect those who give more than lip-service to economy by actively advocating the enactment of constructive legislation. They must insist that the 16-year-old deficit be checked, and a simple and equitable tax policy be introduced. They must insist upon the elimination of duplicating agencies and personnel, upon the elimination of gross extravagance and waste in the executive branch of the government.
