Egg Prices

Steps have been taken by OPA to equalize egg prices charged by retail route sellers with community dollar-and-cent prices charged in stores, it was announced yesterday by OPA District Director L. W. Driscoll. Formerly, mark-ups on eggs sold by retail route sellers, producers and all sellers except retail stores, were based on current prices. These sellers will now apply their mark-ups to the preceding week's prices, the same method used in establishing community dollar-and-cent prices, Mr. Driscoll said.

The new pricing methods are intended to apply primarily to processors and wholesalers of eggs and egg products.

Commercial Tires

Dollar-and-cent prices have been established for sales by the Department of Commerce of 10.857 used airplane tires as surplus property it has been revealed by OPA District Director L. W. Driscoll.

He said that the tires, while no longer considered safe for use on Army planes, can be converted for use on such ground vehicles as farm implements and other farm equipment.

The Department of Commerce will not sell any of the current bath of tires direct to individual farmers or other consumers, but will make sales only to distributors for resale.

Passenger Tire Eligibility

Regulations governing the eligibility of motorists for Grade 1 passenger tires have been readjusted, it was announced in Charlotte by OPA District Director L. W. Driscoll.

In the future, motorists using their cars for a bona fide change of residence for which they have been issued special gasoline rations, will be eligible for the certificates.

Mr. Driscoll said the change was designed primarily for the following three groups:

1. War workers moving from

Failure Changes To Great Success

H. C. Boger of Mocksville, Davie county, has proved the truthfulness of the old saying that the farmer may be down but he is never out.

Last fall when pigs were selling at $1.50 a piece in his section, Boger found himself with 15 sops and no chances of sale among his neighbors. Did he decide to quit the hog business? The answer was an emphatic "NO" spelled with capital letters. Boger had been raising hogs and mule colts for a number of years and he was not the man to quit when conditions were against him.

County Agent George Hobson of the State College Extension Service says that Boger designed some self-feeders out of scrap lumber and put his shoats on feed about December 15, when they averaged about 80 pounds each. Boger's record shows that they consumed 100 bushels of corn at $1.50 a bushel and $79 worth of protein supplement, consisting of equal parts of soybean meal, cottonseed meal, and fish meal.

When the hogs were killed and dressed at home, and sold on the local market at 20 cents a pound, the return was slightly over $600. The total cost of feed, pigs, and extra labor was about $300, according to Boger. The failure of last fall had been turned into a successful farm enterprise.

"If we had more men with Boger's foresight, the meat shortage would not be nearly so great as it is," Hobson says.

Limberneck Epidemic Avoided By Proper Care

Poultry producers of North Carolina were warned this week to watch for the appearance of limberneck in their flocks, because the disease occurs mostly during the hot summer months. The warning was issued by Dr. R. S. Dearstyne, head of the State College Department of Poultry Science.

Limberneck is usually found in small flocks which are allowed free range. Dr. Dearstyne said. It is very easy to recognize as the name describes the condition of the disease. It is caused by the birds eating decomposed material of a nitrogenous nature.

Dead chickens and manure piles where decomposition has taken place are excellent sources of the trouble. When the disease breaks out, the owner should confine the chickens until the cause of the trouble is found and eliminated.

Eggs and poultry markets were extremely firm during June, according to poultry specialists of the State College Extension service.

one city to another as production shifts from one type of war goods to another or shifts from one type of war goods to another or shifts to civilian commodities.

2. Members of the armed forces moving to a new post.

3. Discharged veterans returning home or moving to another city to accept a job.

Formerly, issuance of new tire certificates was limited largely to persons holding supplemental gasoline rations. The new provision will bridge this gap in the regulations, Mr. Driscoll said.

State College Hints To Farm Homemakers

(By Ruth Current)

For easier and more successful home dressmaking, clothing specialists suggest a few unusual items that may be collected around the house for the sewing box:

Cornstarch, sewed up in a small bag (or French chalk, if obtainable) is a hot-weather sewing convenience. Dust it on palms of hands to absorb perspiration when working on white or light-colored fabrics. When not in use, wrap the bag with paper to keep it clean.

Tweezers are useful for plucking out threads which have been caught in machine stitching.

An ordinary building brick, padded and covered with cloth, is convenient for holding goods firm when basting or hemming by hand. Place the brick on the sewing table and pin goods to it.

Waxed paper wrapped around scissors prevents rusting in hot humid weather. Rust also gives trouble on needles and pins. Keep needles in the black paper wrapped in which they came. Store pins in a small, tightly-covered box, or in a clean cold-cream jar with a screw top. Use fine sandpaper, steel wool, or an emery bag to remove rust from pins and needles, but never leave needles in an emery bag because they are likely to rust there.

Small cuts, cracks or scratches in the surface of linoleum may be partly healed by occasional rubbing with boiled linseed oil. Have the surface clean and dry before rubbing in the oil. Wipe off any oil left on the surface afterward with a soft cloth. Allow area to dry 48 hours before washing again.

State College Issues Two Farm Publications

Two new bulletins, providing helpful information for farm families on 4-H Club work and on the factors to be considered when buying a farm, have been prepared by specialists of the State College Extension Service and are ready for distribution to the citizens of the State.

The 4-H leaflet explains projects dealing with crops, poultry, forestry, homemaking, food conservation, money management, and the cooking of better breads and uncommon vegetables. Other subjects mentioned include gardens, dairying, room improvement, tree study, forest protection, and timber stand improvement.

The publication setting forth factors for the selection of a farm, was prepared for the benefit of demobilized veterans, war workers, farm youths, and agricultural laborers who are interested in establishing themselves on the land. Improved agricultural practices and better economic conditions have increased the value of farm real estate and have stepped up the interest in the purchasing of farms.

The bulletin describes the agriculture of North Carolina and to outline some of the most important factors about the climate, forest resources, soils, markers, community activities, and many other subjects.

North Carolinians may secure copies of the publications by writing to F. H. Jeter, agricultural editor, N. C. State College, Raleigh.

PVT. FRED A. DEHART RECEIVES COMMENDATIONS

Pvt. Fred A. DeHart, son of Mr. and Mrs. John DeHart, of Stiles, has received commendations from his commanding officer, Major General Paul J. Mueller, expressing his appreciation for the splendid service rendered during combat operations of the 81st Infantry Division on Angaur Island, Palau Group, Westernes and the report is as follows:

"During this battle a number of casualties from enemy artillery fire were suffered by members of the 2nd Battalion, and 321st Infantry. You volunteered to accompany to evacuate the wounded to a medical clearing station, at Blue Beach. Despite the constant threat of interference by the enemy, the group, successfully passed over extremely difficult terrain and through dense jungle, finally reaching the medical station where all casualties received advanced medical treatment.

"It is with great pleasure for the casualties which must inevitably result from the prosecution of the war in the Pacific. Thousands of wounded and sick men from the European Theater also continue to be evacuated and receive treatment there.

Medical facilities are of the finest, and the staff has been well trained over years of hospital operation. Recreational facilities include a gymnasium, a moving picture theater, an indoor swimming pool, and the 18-hole golf course.

Friends of the new arrival are asked not to telephone because of congested wire facilities. Mail is welcomed by every patient and is handled rapidly.

PFC. THOMAS J. BARNES HOME ON FURLOUGH

Pfc. Thomas J. Barnes, who has been in overseas service for several months, has been returned to the States and is now visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Barnes, at their home in the Highlands Star Route community.

Pfc. Barnes who entered the services on October 14, 1942, took his basic training at Camp Blanding, Fla.
