Large Feldspar Plant Opened

Described as the largest feldspar refining plant in the world, the Carolina Mineral Company has opened its new Kona plant at the confluence of the North and South Toe Rivers in Mitchell county.

It is the first commercial plant using the flotation method of concentrating feldspar. Previously, feldspar has been separated from the other minerals with which it occurs by a laborious and inefficient hard-sorting. Kona will recover mica and quartz as byproducts. Ore for the new plant is obtained from a pegmatite dike located just a few hundred feet from the mill, but purchase from other producers is contemplated.

Feldspar is an aluminum silicate containing varying amounts of soda and potash. It finds its way into chinaware, enamel ware, glass building blocks, window glass, electrical porcelain, radio and radar parts, etc. It is also an ingredient in many well-known brands of cleansers or scouring powder as a non-scratching abrasive.

R. W. Lawson of Erwin, Tenn., is president of the Consolidated Feldspar corporation, which is the parent company of Carolina Mineral Company. Ed Boone of Spruce Pine is general manager of the corporation, and E. W. Koenig of Erwin is general superintendent.

Designing and construction of the Kona plant has been under the direction of V. L. Mattson of Burnsville who is chief engineer. T. C. Carson, Jr., is mill superintendent and chief chemist.

Southern Dairies, Inc.

Three years ago, Southern Dairies, Inc., began purchasing milk from Macon County farmers, through Mr. A. B. Slagle's Nantahala Creamery. This Company will continue their market here, receiving Grade "A" milk.

If you have four or five good dairy cows, see J. D. Elrod at Nantahala Creamery, who will explain how you can produce this Grade "A" milk.

Grade "A" Dairy Barn In Prentiss Section

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Teague, in the Prentiss community have completed a Grade "A" Dairy barn. This barn is complete, having six stanchions feed room and milk room. The milk room is equipped with a three compartment wash sink, electric cooler, can racks, hot and cold water. The hot water is supplied from the hot water heater on the range in the kitchen of the home.

The following materials were used to construct the barn: Lumber $127.45, sand and cement $49.50, pipe $40.20, nails $5.00, labor $38.00; rent on cement mixer $9.50, metal roofing $60.00, light fixtures $30.00, paint $9.25, windows and doors $13.66, sheet rock $15.00, making a total of $397.56. If a farmer has his own timber the cost of the lumber could be cut down considerably.

Now that the Southern Dairies Co. is buying Grade "A" milk direct from the farmers they will help finance the construction of a barn, buying equipment and cows and take so much from each milk check.

The Teagues are selling above 3,000 pounds of milk each fifteen days. Their check is above $100.00 for the same period of time. The milk subsidy paid by the government is 75 cents per hundred which would make their total receipts around $125.00 each fifteen days. Woodrow says that every other milk check is clear profit above the feed cost. With plenty of hay, silage, permanent and temporary pasture, this margin of profit can be increased. Work has already been started on the pastures with the application of lime and phosphate. An upright silo has just been completed at a cost of $107.00. Temporary pastures will be seeded using a mixture of winter legumes and small grain.

MISS EDITH A. CABE SERVING WITH ASF

Edith A. Cabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cabe of Franklin route 4, has been serving with the Army Service Forces in Washington, D. C. for three years, and knows from her own experience just how important it is that she and the thousands of other young women like her stay on the job to help solve the biggest logistics problem in the history of warfare. The right things must get to men of the American Army, at the right place, at the right time to win unconditional surrender from Japan.

In ASF, there are seven technical services and many staff division offices. These equip, supply, and serve the soldier. In the Signal Corps, one of the technical services, Miss Cabe is employed as a clerk-stenographer, where her work in the Administrative Management's Branch of the Control Division is concerned with organization, procedures and certain evaluations of Signal Corps functions. This technical service is the communications control board of the Army, in charge of installing, maintaining, and operating a vast network of radio, radar, telephone, teletype, and pictorial media of communications.

A graduate of Franklin High school, Miss Cabe is also a graduate of Cecil's Business College, Asheville. Her engagement had been announced to Pfc. Dewey Elliotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Elliotte of Franklin, prior to his death in action in France in 1944.
