IN MEMORY

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Issac Henry Peek, who departed this life one year ago, June 12, 1950.

Memories are treasures no one can steal.

Death leaves a heart-ache no one can heal.

You, Daddy, are not forgotten, though you are gone.

We will miss you always, no matter how long.

Our days are long and lonesome.

Our pleasures are but few.

The happiest hours we ever spent.

Were spent, Daddy dear, with you.

In our hearts there is a picture more precious than silver or gold.

It is a loving picture of you whose memories will never grow old.

God gave us strength to bear it, courage to fight the blow, but what it was to lose you no one will ever know.

The Peek Family.

Manuel Holland, Former Franklin Resident, Active At Tennessee State College

Manuel Holland, son of Mrs. Pearl Holland, a former resident of Franklin, is making quite a reputation for himself in dramatics and newspaper work at Eastern Tennessee state college.

Although he has only been at the Tennessee college a year, following his transfer from Brevard college, he recently was elected president of the Foot-light Players, college dramatics organization. He is the reporter and historian for the college Radio Workshop, and this past year wrote and presented a number of plays over a Johnson City radio network.

Still further, journalistically, Mr. Holland was an editorial writer on the Brevard college paper, and at E. T. S. he writes a column for the college paper.

He had principal roles in "Joan of Lorraine", "You Can't Take It With You", and "Submerged", productions staged by the college's theatre group this past year. Just recently he was initiated into Alpha Psi Omega, dramatics society, and he is a member of Alpha Phi Omega, Boy Scout service fraternity.

Although he is majoring in English, Mr. Holland plans to enter the ministry. As a preliminary to entering the field of theology, he is student pastor of four Methodist churches at Bald Creek during summer vacations.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Q. How can I protect clothing from moths?

A. Closets, trunks, and other storage places for woollens and furs should be cleaned out thoroughly and all the cracks and crevices sprayed with a 5 per cent DDT or chlordane household spray. Doors and windows should be left open during the spraying. Blankets, suits, small woolen rugs, and similar articles should be carefully brushed and hung in the sun. Dry cleaning will destroy the pests but the clothing will not be safe unless stored in a mouthproof bag or placed in proper storage. Furs may be placed in cold storage or under other special conditions. In addition to the spray mentioned, paradichlorobenzene crystals, naphthalene flakes, or a 5 per cent DDT dust may be used in all trunks or storage places. These materials may be scattered in between folds or layers of clothing and in cracks and crevices. Keep the storage area closed tightly. If infestation is heavy at the beginning of the season, the materials in storage should be checked at least once or twice during the summer.

Q. Where can I get some centipede grass roots to plant in the lawn?

A. John H. Harris, extension horticultural specialist, suggests you write to the Memorial Park Cemetery, Orangeburg, S. C., or to Richard Forester, Ortega Station, Jacksonville, Fla. Mr. Harris says he understood that centipede grass seed would soon be available, but so far he has not been able to find any on sale at any North Carolina stores.

Q. Does the presence of mosaic in Atlas wheat affect the certification of the crop for seed?

A. No. There is no evidence that wheat mosaic is transmitted through the seed, and the presence of the disease does not affect seed certification. Mosaic is, however, transmitted through the soil. Fields known to be infected should not be used for wheat production for a number of years unless a resistant variety is grown. Leap, Thorne, and Chancellor are resistant to mosaic but are not resistant to rust and mildew.

Q. How can I control ear-worm on the sweet corn in my

Says Reading

Newspapers Is Proving Profitable To Many

Newspaper reading has proved unusually profitable recently to many residents of this section, according to Don W. Marsh, manager of the Asheville Social Security office.

"Since the new amendments to Social Security went into effect in September," Mr. Marsh said, "we have had a stream of callers bringing newspaper clippings. Most of them learned from their newspapers that the new law made them eligible for benefits, and they came to apply. As a result, they have already started getting monthly checks, or will start shortly."

"The amendments changed the eligibility requirements so that many people who could not qualify before, can now get Old-Age or Survivors Insurance benefits. Anybody age 65 or over who at any time back to 1937 has worked as much as a year and a half on Social Security-covered jobs is now eligible, and can get benefits for every month in which his earnings under Social Security do not amount to more than $50. Qualified people age 75 or over can get monthly benefits regardless of the amount of their earnings or income. Many survivors of World War II veterans were made eligible for payments, because of the provision giving World War II veterans Social Security credit for each month of war service. There were several other changes affecting dozens of people in this area."

"We have records," Mr. Marsh continued, "of many of these people who were made eligible for benefits by the new law and they have been notified by letter. There are hundreds of others, however, whom we did not know about and who had to take the initiative. We are glad to see that many in this group are learning of their eligibility from the newspaper."

U. S. LEADS

Although it owns only eight per cent of the world's commercial forest area, the United States produces 44 per cent of the world's lumber, 58 per cent of its plywood, and 433 per cent of its wood pulp.

livestock.

Q. What is the outlook for the U. S. corn crop this year?

A. A shortage may develop unless better-than-average yields are produced. Tar Heel farmers should, therefore, make every effort to increase their corn yields this year, and livestock producers should plan to make maximum use of pastures and thus cut grain requirements. These two steps will help prevent a shortage of corn in case of a poor crop year.

U. S. Farmers are likely to set a new production record for 1951, if the weather from now through the crop season is at least average. Acreage on which the main farm crops will be planted or grown is expected to top the 1950 total by about 8 million. This would be 1 million acres below 1949, the year farm production reached a peak, but otherwise the highest since 1933.
