Anyhow, I challenge the religious leaders to bring forth from their own groups anyone who is furnishing more inspirational moral leadership than Generals Van Fleet and Eisenhower — products of military training.

Union P. T. A. Installs Officers; Plans To Equip School Lunchroom

Officers of the newly-formed parent-teacher association at Union school were installed and they roused to launch a program to raise funds to equip the school lunchroom, at a meeting at the school last Friday evening.

At the suggestion of the president, J. M. Addington, an effort will be made to have every patron of the school become a member of the P. T. A. Donations for the lunchroom equipment also will be sought.

A discussion of what is needed for the lunchroom was led by Miss Ethel Hurst, county lunchroom supervisor. Mrs. Woodrow Teague, president of the Union Home Demonstration club, announced that the club has voted to buy the silver needed.

Mrs. Welmar Jones, district P. T. A. director, conducted the installation ceremony. The officers, in addition to Mr. Addington, are Mrs. Elmon Teague, vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Stockton, secretary, and Mrs. Quince Shope, treasurer. Mrs. Lucy Bradley, school principal, who opened the meeting, announced that a pre-school clinic will be held from 1 to 3 p. m. April 22. Mrs. Addington conducted the devotional program, and the Rev. R. L. Poindexter pronounced the benediction.

Mr. Addington suggested that a hearty welcome be given persons who come into the Union district for the first time, under the consolidation being put into effect.

ROPER AT ANGEL'S
Harold Roper, a former co-owner of the Carolina Pharmacy here, who has been in Florida for several months, has been employed as pharmacist at Angel's Drug store.

Max Grist, pharmacist at Angel's for the past four years, left with his family last week for Canton, Ga., where he plans to go in business.

Many consider that the greatest labor saving device of today is tomorrow.

Services For Mrs. Vinson Held Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Texanna Vinson, a native of Rabun Gap, Ga., were conducted Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the Sealy Church of God by the pastor, the Rev. Wayne Dehart.

Mrs. Vinson, who lived most of her life in Macon County, died Friday morning at her home in the Sealy community after a long illness. She was 73 years old.

Born January 9, 1874, she was the daughter of James and Mrs. Elizabeth Sims Teague, of Rabun Gap. She was a member of the Dillard (Ga.) Baptist church and on January 30, 1890, was married to James J. Vinson.

Survivors include her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Talley, of Rock Hill, S. C., and Mrs. Frank Vinson, of Sealy; a son, Theodore Vinson, of Sealy; a brother, Tom Teague, of Pine Mountain, Ga.; and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Kell, of Franklin, Route 1, and Mrs. Savannah McCoy, of Clayton, Ga.

Funeral services were held at the Sealy community after a long illness. She was 73 years old.

Arrangements were under the direction of Bryant Funeral home.

Three Highlands Men Taking Basic At Parris Island

Three Highlands men have been accepted for enlistment in the marine corps and have been transferred to the corps recruit depot at Parris Island, S. C., for eight weeks of basic training, the Asheville marine recruiting office has announced.

They are H. F. Bryson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bryson; Wayne E. Crowe, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Crowe; and Gilbert F. Reed, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Reed.

After completion of basic training, they will be given a 10-day leave and then will be assigned to a land, sea, or air unit with the corps.

Today, "good will" seems to be a thing of the past, forgotten and buried. Some people fear competition, jealous of the other fellow. I am not in competition with anyone. Competition has never bothered me in my business. It stimulates it. Fair competition stimulates all business; brings in more people where they can get service. More people would stop here if we had more and better accommodations; yes, ten people to one before.

I had rather bring you business than take it away from you. My past three years here backs up this statement. I don't rather like people, than "think" that I don't like someone. Maybe we don't know the score or what it is all about. If we knew people? But how many of us do?

When a newcomer comes to town, looking around for an estate, his first thought is: what kind of real estate man do they have here? So many of them have been badly handled in big cities, they are hoping that they can find someone that knows his way around, and capable of helping them in their desires. If we can give this service, with kindness and courtesy-plus, they right away like our town. If not, they get out of here in "high gear" looking for a "brighter and more progressive" place. You would do the same.

With 30 years in the business, handling about everyone from "tramps to millionaires", cranks to the "brilliant intelligent", I have a lot to learn, in knowing how to please them all. We fellows that are in the business, must think of this at all times, and not let them "pull out of here" with a bad impression of our town. Chances are, they never come back.

On a recent 2500-mile trip through Georgia and all over Florida, it was interesting to note, and study the different towns. Some of them were "dull, dark and drab", others were "lighted, lively and lovely". I am sure most people are looking for the "brighter progressive" spots, to invest their money. Where property values will grow, instead of standing still, or go backwards. I passed some little towns that were "neglected graveyards". I never changed gears passing through, as thousands do.

Franklin, North Carolina has the greatest possibilities of any little Mountain town that I know of, to become a "Beacon light" for the surrounding country to talk about. Let's paint up, have more "highlighting", remodel and build more accommodations. Have no fear of competition; we will have more people than we ever had before. I am in position to hear some of them talk. Some people ask me, what do they do here for amusement? Let's take our "hats off" to the new "open air theater". That is an added attraction, that people notice when passing through. It will not take business away from other amusement places; it will stimulate it, and make people more "show-minded".
