

Mrs. Early To Serve On Faculty Of School

Mrs. Robert E. Early, a former conference director of children's work and a frequent teacher in leadership training schools for the Methodist church, was on the faculty of such a school held at Kannap-olis Monday through Friday of this week.

Of the dozen major rivers in North Carolina, only one—the Cape Fear—flows directly into the Atlantic in the Tarheel state. Others empty into large sounds shielded from the ocean by the long string of islands known as the Outer Banks.

First Graders Given Egg Hunt By Teacher And Grade Mothers

Miss Veva Howard, first grade teacher at Highlands school, and the grade mothers, Mrs. W. C. Newton, chairman, Mrs. Richard Zoellner, Mrs. Roliver Baty, and Mrs. Glen Wilson, entertained the first grade, 35 in number, with an Easter egg hunt Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Newton.

On entering the yard, the children were delighted to see a large cake, decorated in Easter style, centering a table, the gift of Mrs. Newton. Other refreshments were cookies, lemonade, and candy.

The beautifully colored real Easter eggs were hidden around the yard, and after they were all found, were put in a basket and divided equally among the children.

Joan Jenkins received the prize for finding the greatest number. Favors were small woven Easter baskets filled with candy Easter eggs, the gift of the grade mothers. A group picture was taken.

There are one billion acres of grazing lands in the United States.
