EGG COOKERY—A pinch of cornstarch and one of powdered sugar added to the yolk of the egg before it is beaten will keep an omelet from collapsing. To keep yolks of hard-cooked eggs bright, clear, and light around the edges, avoid over-cooking.

The secret of all egg cookery is low temperature.
Egg yolks will keep for several days in your refrigerator if you cover them with cold water.
Whites of eggs are more easily separated from yolks when the eggs are cold; egg whites beat up to more volume if they are at room temperatures when beaten.
Juice from a jar of olives will give deviled eggs a delicious flavor.
A stirred custard is done when it coats the spoon; longer cooking will not thicken it but will cause it to curdle.
To divide an egg evenly when the recipe calls for only one-half egg, beat the whole egg, two tablespoons of the mixture is equivalent to one-half egg.
If a portion of egg yolk accidentally falls into the white, a cloth moistened with cold water and touched to the yolk will remove it, or a piece of the shell touched to the yolk will remove it.

raising of registered cattle is a specialized business and requires more know-how and experience for successful operation.
Q. Could you give me some special hints to good honey production?
A. Honey is a special food and you should give it special care. 1. Cut only new, fully sealed combs. 2. Have jars thoroughly cleaned and dry. 3. Keep surroundings clean. A damp cloth can be used to clean up drops of honey and for wiping your hands. 4. Store honey in a dry place until sale.
Q. Can I expect an increase in rate-of-gain in my pigs as a result of cross-breeding?
A. Yes. Experiments have shown that an increase in rate-of-gain can be expected. A purebred boar of one breed is crossed on a purebred, or a good grade sow of another breed. Many commercial hog breeders use a system called criss-crossing, where three breeds are used instead of two.

Tellico Votes
To Meet Twice
Each Month

By A. J. SMITH
(Community Reporter)
The Tellico Rural Community Development Organization met October 1 at the Tellico Baptist Church.
It was announced that all uniform mail boxes are up and the name plates attached. Also, the community signs have been erected.
After some discussion, the group voted to hold two meetings each month, instead of one. The meetings will be held Friday nights, two weeks apart, in the homes of the community. This decision was made to give the people in the community the opportunity to attend at least one meeting during the month.
The next project will be underpinning the church and we expect to complete it at an early date.
It was reported at the meeting that the scrapbook is com-

Timely Farm Questions

Q. What kind of females should I get to start a beef herd?
A. The difference in quality of the various breeds is so little that the choice should be that of the individual. However, the foundation females should be of high-quality grades of purebreds. In general, the inexperienced farmer should start with good quality grade females as they involve a smaller investment than purebreds. Furthermore, the breeding and
