Centennial Edition Of Press Entered In Historical Event

The Centennial edition of The Franklin Press (June 16) has been picked as the district winner in a state-wide historical event sponsored by the N. C. Society of County and Local Historians.

Clarence Griffin, of Forest City, who is vice-president of the 26-county western district, selected the special edition as "the best (publication) from an historical standpoint that has been produced in these 26 counties this year" and has submitted it to the state judging committee for consideration for the state award.

This year will mark the first time the N.C.S.C.L.H. will present a special trophy for the best work of local history printed in a North Carolina newspaper during the year. Winner of the award will be announced in December, according to Mr. Griffin.

This Week With Macon County Agents

By Mrs. Margaret D. Smith (Assistant Home Agent)
A well chosen coat, suit, or dress can be worn year after year as long as it is presentable. In order for garments to be presentable, good clothing care must be practiced. Clothes should be aired frequently and properly. Moths and other pests hate fresh air, so airing them makes a dandy preventative. Avoid putting clothes in direct sunlight. Brush clothes often with a medium bristle brush. Since clean clothes give longer life and service, it will reduce your clothing bill to keep them clean.

Hang garments on hanger immediately after taking off. Mildew can ruin clothes. Leather gloves and pocket books stored in drawers or dark closets often gather mildew during storage. To protect them, dry in sun and air, then wrap in tissue paper, then in waxed paper. Air, light and dryness keep clothes fresh and prevent mustiness and mildew.
Spots and stain removal are important. Know the stain or spot and follow directions for its removal. Fresh stains are easier to remove than old stains. Call attention to cleaning any special stain. Avoid heat on any spot or stain. Heat sets it! Don't rub. It may chafe a fabric or damage the color.
Take clothes on and off gently and easily. Don't struggle and push yourself into your coat or suit.
Always use underarm shields for protection against perspiration. Perspiration weakens wool and causes it to mat and look fuzzy.
Special care should be given accessories—hats, gloves, pocketbooks and other accessories. They look better and last longer if properly cleaned and stored.
All garments that can be washed without damaging the shape or fabric should be washed in lukewarm water, such as wools, silks, nylons, rayons, and colored cottons. A soft hand brush may be used on badly soiled places. Rinse well to remove all soap. Take care not to twist or wring woollens or rayons.
Year around storage planning should be considered. Before storing any garment, have it clean, free from spots, stains, and perspiration. Storage may be the modern cold storage method away from home or the storage in the home. Never place moth or insect control preparation directly on a fabric. Such a practice may result in color or fabric damage. Place your wool garments in moth proof bags or a cedar chest, or wrap them in several sheets of newspaper. Seal the package tightly and label well. To store cottons, rayons and linens, have them clean, dry and unstarched when you store them. Clothes stored should have all the pins or metal ornaments removed.
Remember that clothing taken care of now may be worn again next summer. You not only will be attractive but you will find that it is very profitable to take care of your clothes—it's the little things that count!
