Brady's BLARNEY

By A Brady Called J. P.

The T. Y. Angel's (he's the Bower's manager) and some relatives know first-hand how it feels to have the gates swing shut.

They lingered too long on a picnic at Arrowood Glade Wednesday night of last week and were caught by the closing curfew. The man in charge, thinking the area was cleared, locked the gates.

"It was the first time I've ever looked through bars," reported Mrs. Angel.

Burlington's C. B. Hussey was nonchalantly standing in front of an uptown store one day this week with his trousers' legs pulled up about the knees.

I figured he'd "flipped his lid," to coin a phrase, and was looking for the man in the white coat to swoop down and cart him off. But, friend Hussey blandly offered an explanation for his odd behavior.

"I'm seeing how I'd look in Bermuda shorts," he said.

To the followers of "Uncle Bob" Davis: "Choice" is no longer "the word." It's "supreme."

The Maurice Burch family has been contributing to the unusual via the dining table.

On June 21, Mrs. B had RIPE tomatoes from her garden—something we've been informed doesn't happen but about every blue moon or so.

The tomatoes, Rutgers variety, were set out on April 25.

In the years I've palled around with "Doc" McSween I've never figured him for a sentimentalist. But he is.

As we rode back from Highlands one day last week, a faraway look came into his eyes and he gestured toward a deep ravine near the side of the road.

"I've a tender spot in my heart for that place," he said wistfully. "... I did my first illegal dumping there."

As one with a tender skin, the chore of shaving is a daily "bleeding" for me.

With resignation I just keep hacking away and bleeding my way through the new shaving creams and lotions, all of which seem to only step up the flow of blood.

To stem the trickles from the Bower's manager) and some relatives know first-hand how it feels to have the gates swing shut. I generally turn to a towel and by daubing and applying pressure I'm soon able to make it to the breakfast table without leaving a trail across the floor.

To the wife, this morning encounter with the razor is also painful. For nearly eight years she's had to wash the blood from those cut-sealing towels.

(She once suggested I use small pieces of toilet tissue on each cut. To oblige, I tried her suggestion, and it was she who asked me to go back to using towels when I appeared at breakfast looking like I'd been hit in the face with a bowl of whipped cream. "I'd rather wash the towels than face THAT" over the table every morning," she observed in her womanly way. "When I grow up I'm going to cut myself every morning just like Daddy," chimed in young son Steve through a flurry of oatmeal, prune juice, and chewing gum he had refused to give up the night before.)

Finally, however, the ingenuity of womanhood has scored and a new shaving directive has been issued in the Brady bathroom. I'm to use ONLY the blood-red towel she found on sale in a store the other day.

In a recent issue we ran a story on the Rev. C. B. Yeargan, former principal of the old Maxwell School on Cartoogechaye.

For fear that someone might have misunderstood, Mr. Yeargan wants to advise that Maxwell was an eight-month school, instead of four, as were the public schools at that time. The Maxwell home operated the full year.

I hope to do a story later in the year on the history of Maxwell.

happy vacations begin in a Chevy

You'll love to travel in it, because it loves to travel! When you get this Chevrolet out on the road, you'll want to keep going—and so will the whole family.

Of course, even in a Chevrolet the happiest vacations may involve one or two minor problems. Like fidgety small fry who want gallons of water and keep asking if you're almost there. The big things, though, are beautifully taken care of by this roomy Chevrolet's smooth and easy way of going. That's for sure.

The fact is, few cars at any price hold the road with Chevy's grace, with its solid feeling of stability. And with horsepower up to 225, Chevrolet moves out like a whiplash, for safer passing. It's no wonder that so many people who used to buy higher priced cars are changing to Chevrolet! Stop by soon for a ride.
