think a reduced insurance rate "is the primary purpose of this. I think the major thing to consider is that if I'm sick in the town's largest hospital I want to know that if there's a fire there's enough water to put it out."

Mayor W. C. Burrell said the time was coming when a street would be cut on the north side of Main Street and would need to pass through property of Dr. Angel. "This looks like a good trade to me. If he'll give us a right of way through there when we need it, then we could help the hospital with this water thing. After all, the hospital is a community affair."

No agreement has been reached with Dr. Angel. The request was turned down when presented in January to the old board of aldermen.

Mr. Gnuse reported to the board on a letter he had received from the Harwood-Beebe Company, South Carolina engineering firm which drew up plans for a quarter-million dollar filter plant here. Cost figures were presented by the company for plants at various lesser capacities at the request of the aldermen.

Also authorized was the laying of a six-inch main from a point on Maple Street near Prelo Dryman's home to the intersection of Wayah Street at the Catholic Church. This would join a six-inch main there and be connected on the other end of Maple Street, at Palmer, with a similar-sized pipe.

All of the aldermen were present for the meeting.

Right Age But Wrong Citizen . . .

A sharp-eyed Press reader, R. S. Peek, detected this newspaper's error in referring to Mrs. W. A. Setser, 98-year-old Cartoogechaye woman, as the county's oldest citizen.

She's just nearly the oldest.

"Uncle Billy" McCoy, of the Gold mine community, has the longevity record. He's 98, too, but his birthday is April 15. Mrs. Setser wasn't born until days later. Her birth date of July 5 makes her 81 days younger.

Slagle Takes Ag Board Oath Again

A. B. Slagle was sworn in for another term on the State Board of Agriculture at ceremonies in Governor Hodges' office in Raleigh Monday.

After the ceremonies Monday morning, he attended a meeting of the board, of which he has been a member since the late '40's.

Accompanying him on the trip was Harry C. Stoudemire, manager of Mr. Slagle's dairy farm. They attended a cattle sale at Tryon on the way home Tuesday.

It was the first long trip Mr. Slagle has made since he broke his leg in November and he reported the down east temperatures as "plenty hot".

Franklin's baseball all-stars continued their winning streak Sunday when they edged Sylva, 5-4, in a game at East Franklin field.

Jerry Sutton was the winning pitcher and Bobby Womack, with three for five, the leading hitter. Norman Seay accounted for three of Franklin's runs when he poled a homer with two on base.

School Figures Are Adjusted

Macon's school system will have about $15,000 more this fiscal year for current expenses than it had last year.

The increase comes from a 10-cent raise in the tax levy voted by the county commissioners for the schools.

A budget story in last week's Press indicated the schools would have more than $15,000. The misleading figure was arrived at by comparing last year's expenditures with this year's budget. To get an accurate picture, budgets for both years should have been compared.
