

Collin Wilcox To Marry New Yorker, Walter L. Beakel

Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Wilcox, of Highlands and Knoxville, Tenn., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Collin Wilcox, to Walter Lloyd Beakel, of New York City, son of Stanley C. Beakel, of Cleveland, Ohio, and the late Mrs. Christina Stevenson Beakel.

Miss Wilcox is the granddaughter of Mrs. Howard Doane Randall, of Highlands and Cincinnati, and the late Mr. Randall, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilcox, of Nova Scotia. She attended Westtown School, Westtown, Pa., and was graduated from West High in Knoxville.

Before going to study at the Goodman Memorial Theatre in Chicago, she was active in the Knoxville Carousal Theatre while taking special courses at the University of Tennessee. For the past two summers, Miss Wilcox has been a resident member of summer stock companies. She recently finished touring in the East with Luther Adler in "View From The Bridge", after playing with him in the Chicago production last winter.

Mr. Beakel studied at the Cleveland Museum of Art, the Chicago Art Institute and Lake Forest College before getting his M.F.A. at Goodman Memorial Theatre. He studied in New York at the Berghoff Studio and directed several off-Broadway theatres.

A former instructor and director or at DePaul University and Lake Forest College, he has directed and acted in 11 seasons of stock. Most recently, he directed the Chicago production of "Waiting for Godot" for the Studebaker Theatre.

The wedding will be solemnized in the Highlands Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Robert Dupree officiating, on Sunday, August 11, at 3:30 in the afternoon. No invitations are being sent, but close friends of the family are invited.

LIKE LOSING RIGHT ARM —

Macon Girl's Work Praised

A Macon County girl has been described as the "right arm" of the state probation office in Waynesville which she is leaving to go to a central office in Asheville.

She is Miss Frances Deal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Deal, of Franklin, Route 5.

Miss Deal helped establish the office two years ago with Herbert McGlamery, state probation officer. "When she leaves," he said, "it will be like losing my right arm. She is thoroughly familiar with the working of the office and could handle most of the administrative routine alone."

She is going to Asheville where the state is forming a central secretaries pool for Western North Carolina.

According to a story in the Waynesville Mountaineer, Miss Deal had this to say of her work: "Most of the boys who come into our office are intelligent, nice boys. They usually say they don't know why they committed a crime and promise they'll never do it again. One of our probationers is even working his way through college."

She is a graduate of Franklin High School and Blanton's Business College, in Asheville. In Waynesville, she has been active in the First Baptist Church.
