

Hints To HOMEMAKERS

VOICE DEEP — A writer recently said of women that their "beauty is only voice deep". Now, what does he say is wrong with our voices? This is what our critic says:

"American women are surely among the most attractive in the world. They spend billions of dollars to be well groomed—clothes and beauty preparations, etc., and yet stubbornly ignore what should be the prime asset—the VOICE."

"The report makers and speech makers offend by their rasping, screeching, whining voices," our friend writer says.

Every woman can't be beautiful to look at but she can cultivate her voice by simply listening closely to the way it sounds and by taking a few remedial measures. "Her voice was ever soft, low, and gentle — an excellent thing in woman."

This writer also says that "most men will scarcely notice what a woman is wearing or how her hair is done, but a harsh, shrill, and high-pitched voice will embarrass and annoy him."

This is just another something for us to think about, maybe a challenge to listen to our own voice!

"LET IT SHINE!" — Let the best in you show on the outside, your enthusiasm, your good humor, and your everlasting patience always, and then it is apt to rub off on others.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Q. Is it true that heavy pruning can cut peach yield?

A. Yes. Recent agricultural experiments have shown that peach trees that were pruned last yielded the heavily pruned trees by 39 per cent. Individual peaches were larger on trees pruned more severely, but there were more peaches on those less severely pruned.

Q. What response do peach trees give to nitrogen applications?

A. In recent tests, rates of 0.3, 0.6, 0.9, and 1.2 pounds of nitrogen per tree were used. Yields increased as more nitrogen was added—up through the 0.9 pound per tree rate. There was a relationship between pruning and added nitrogen. The heavily pruned trees showed the least response to nitrogen. The amount of added nitrogen used did not affect the size of the individual peaches.

Q. Are all the different varieties of tobacco seed listed for sale under the new state seed law recommended by the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station for planting in 1958?

A. No. The experiment station does not make recommendations as to the specific variety a farmer should plant. It does, however, publish the results of its findings in flue-cured tobacco tests. These findings may be used as a guide in selecting the highest yielding, highest paying, most acceptable varieties. All a producer of tobacco seed need do to have his variety recorded for legal sale is to prove that it is a distinct variety, different from all other varieties.

Livestock producers should have a more favorable price ratio of feed to animal next year.

North Carolina corn growers should be able to get a higher price for their corn this year.
