The Highlands Maconian

second class mail privileges authorized at Franklin, N. C. Puolished every Thursday by The Franklin Press

Established in 1886 as The Franklin Press

Member: N. C. Press Association, National Editorial Association, rolinas Press Photographers Association. Charter member, National of Weekly Newspaper Editors.

BOB S. SLOAT WEIMAR JON J. P. BRADY MRS. ROBERT MRS. BOB SL CARL P. CABP PRANK A. STA CHARLES E.	BRYSCOAN ARRETT	E .	dN	Publisher ar		pera	Ner Office Socie tor-M	Edit ws Edit Mana, ty Edit fachini enposit Pressmi	tor ger tor ist cor
O. E. CRAWF						om.m		l Print
DAVID II. GO.	1011	SUF	SCRIP	TION RATES		П
OUTSIDE MACON COUNTY			INSIDE MACON COUNTY
One Year .			$3.00	One Year	50.0			. $2.	mo
Six Months .	4.		1.75	Six Months				. 1.	.75
Three Months			1.00	Three Month	8			. 1.	.00
Two Years .		- 1	5.25 7:50	Two Years			50		.25

THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1958

Freedom, The Cold War

Someone has said that "freedom is not inherited, but must be won anew by each generation".

Nobody would contradict that sentiment. Yet, in today's world, the idea has an obsolete sound. How many Americans today are devoting any effort whatever to winning freedom anew?

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, in fact, in the piece at the bottom of this page, suggests that many Americans no longer even want to be free.

Is that true? And if so, why is it true?

To get an answer to the first question, all you have to do is to ask a group of people what things they value most. Nine out of ten will list, first of all, security. Most of them will put peace second. Far down the list-if they even think to mention it at all-they'll put personal freedom.

Why most of us have come to relegate personal freedom to an incidental place in our list of objectives would be hard to say. But there is an alarmingly large body of evidence that these things

- 1. The longer the United States competes with Soviet Russia, the more we become like that nation. The latest illustration is the wide spread demand that we make our schools "as good as"-that is, like-the Russian schools.
- 2. The only really important difference now is the personal freedom Americans enjoy.
- 3. The traditional American freedoms are being whittled away. They are being whittled away by bigness, with it pressure for conformity. They are being whittled away by big government itself-by Congressional committees that convict a defendant without jury trial or any other safeguards of the rights of a defendant; by the executive department's dictatorial bureacracy, which is beyond the reach of the voter; and by the courts themselves. While judicial decisions have zig-zagged, the trend of the courts, faced by the exigencies of a cold war, has been to narrow individual freedoms, particularly those of speech and thought.
- 4. Our personal freedoms will continue to be whittled away unless there is resistance to the whittling process.
- 5. We are becoming accustomed to accept the whittling. When a freedom is taken away, we soon grow used to doing without it. And what we have never known, we do not miss.

The perfect illustration of the latter is the draft.

One of the things that drove Europeans to America was compulsory military service. Here, they set up a government where a man was free to choose whether, in peacetime, he would or would not serve in the armed forces. And even in wartime, the Union draft in the 60's provoked riots in New York

But we have compulsory military service today; we got it by the back door. Congress, presumably reflecting public sentiment, has consistently refused to approve it as a permanent, peacetime policy. Yet, as one crisis has succeeded another, we have today a generation of young men who cannot remember when there was any choice; as long as they have lived, we have had compulsory military service.

Is it any wonder it never occurs to them to protest? never occurs to them, even, to wonder if perhaps they should have the freedom of choice in this matter? Never having known that freedom, they do not miss it.

If, as our military and political leaders tell us, the cold war may last 50 or 100 years, how much freedom will the generation of 2057 remember? And how much freedom, never having known it, will they even want?

NATIONAL GUARD HERITAGE

Letters

They're Coming Back Again

Please ease back in your chair and let me tell you a tale of a high mountain, beautiful waterfalls, ruby mining, fishing, and property hunting.

One day last March, my husband said to me, "Figure up the miles to the mountains, and we will spend our vacation in them." So, I consulted my trusty Rand McNally Road Atlas

(we have been in all 49 states, except Alaska, up in Canada, and down in Old Mexico) and came up with 600 miles (more

I sent to Franklin's Chamber of Commerce for some literature and, in due time, we received some very interesting information on Franklin and Macon County and a list of lodgings. The description of "River Rock Inn", on the Highlands road, owned by Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Watkins, decided us to send for reservations. We were accepted. Then, we subscribed to The Press for three months. (One can learn a lot about a town through its newspaper.) We looked forward to every Saturday and then read it thoroughly. At last the day came when we set foot in Franklin at 12 noon. We had a very good dinner at The Normandie Restaurant and then we proceeded to "River Rock Inn". We were warmly greeted, and then for two happy weeks we roamed in and around Franklin; everyone so friendly and so many interesting places to see.

We drove to the tip-top of Wayah Bald—and the beautiful valleys below were breathtaking!

The waterfalls along the Highlands road were visited several times (I love a waterfall). One day we went fishing in a beautiful lake (with required license) and another day we went ruby mining (Oh! my aching back!); but so much fun and good snapshots. We took long rides over the country roads, through the mountains and lovely valley farm lands (I'm a

The time came for us to say our good-byes to all the friend-

We came, we saw, we decided THAT WE WILL BE BACK!!

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE BREWER

We remain, respectfully,

Carrying The Torch

(Sylva Herald)

Franklin Press, deserve the everlasting gratitude of the citizens of Western North Carolina for printing their editorial, "50,000 Voters Deceived" in their issue of July 3.

To write an editorial that will cause wide commer

'INTERCHANGEABLE MAN"

Weimar Jones, editor, and Bob Sloan, publisher, of The

Strictly Personal By WEIMAR JONES

con County is many things:

It's high mountains and green valleys. It's two towns and lots of country. It's farm land and pastured hills, mines and tim-ber. It's trout fishing and 'coon hunting. It's churches and schools and country stores. It's fine scenery and cold water. It's long stretches of secondary roads, winding down along a stream, or up over a long hill ...

It's all of these-and more. But most of all. " PEOPLE.

What kind of 1 de? All kinds of people — like everywhere else.

But not exactly like every-where else, either. Because, while we have our share of crime and ignorance and shift-lessness, we have more than our share of some other things.

For there's no place under the sun, it seems to me, where there are so many people who, though they are not famous and never will be, are, never-theless, great. And fame and greatness aren't the same things at all.

They're all about us . . . these people who possess the elements of greatness. There's one or more in every Macon County community

Take that man who has little or no formal schooling, and who started with NO money.

sibly a challenge within the circulation area of the paper is reason for the editor to feel that he has accomplished something.

But to write an editorial that not only causes comment and interest area-and state-wide but also gets into national publications proves that the editor has laid down the bars to a subject of deep concern to the citizens of our democratic Editor Jones has done just that. He has jolted the press of Western North Carolina hard. His charges, which are unchallenged and 100 per cent true, have not only knocked the small papers back on their hindlegs, so to speak, but are causing the large dailies, particularly in the 12th Congressional Dis-

Jones has really carried the torch in this thing, "The People Have A Right To Know," and there is little doubt but that he and Bob Sloan will be vindicated in their stand for what

Trees Vs. Wires

(Chapel Hill Weekly)

Much has been said and written about the ugliness of bill-

Another robber of beauty along the highways may be more necessary but should demand a solution: the utility poles and wires. This monstrosity is even more of an eye-sore in towns.

The wires strung along on poles are far from pretty. When the trees are cut and, even worse, mutilated, to permit the stringing up of the wires we have a piercing freak to behold.

The utility companies say it costs about ten times as much to place wires underground as to string them on poles. To many people such an extra cost might well be prohibitive.

If the poles and the wires are to remain, must they be a negative aspect of our culture? Certainly much can be done to improve the looks of the utility poles. Some residential areas have poles that are almost beautiful.

An even less expensive solution is to incorporate the utility poles and wires in the landscaping of an area. Thus only rel-atively low trees should be found under the wires. Then, the higher trees can be planted farther back in the yards. When that is done, the eye is taken from the wires to the beautiful trees below them. The crepe myrtle has been used successfully in landscaping of this type, as have dogwood, maple and

There need be no more trees with mutilated shapes. The utility poles and the wires need hardly be seen.

Stop Speaking

(Frederick, Colo., Farmer & Miner)

If we could but see ourselves as others see us, we'd never is to them, and should be to all editors, a "PRINCIPAL."

form of government.

trict, to sweat it out.

boards along the highways.

What can be done about it?

ities that came his way. He's to become a drudge lived reasonably well; he's provided for his family; he's edu-cated his children. And, along with all those, he's found the time — taken the time — to be a good citizen.

And now what he owns is paid for; that way, he has a freedom, an independence, freedom, an independence, many a captain of finance, delicately balancing his millions of assets against his millions of liabilities, never knows.

How many of us, with the same equipment and opportunesty, quite conscious of his limitations.

Or take that woman who has chance. reared a big family—a tremendous job, if she had nothing else to do. And she had plenty else to do. She kept her garden, she milked the cows, maybe, she tended her chickens. All summer long she canned and preserved and froze, against coming winter. Her work was never done.

But somehow she found the time to educate herself in the process—found time to read, to go to the community meetings, to take an inexpensive trip oc-books to fin casionally. She found time, too, all about us. to be a good neighbor; to wait And you don't have to go to on the sick, to be a tower of books to find out about the strength in time of death, to great. They are all about us, take part in her church, her too.

Did you ever stop to wonder: Somehow, though, he has wrest-What is Macon County.

I have, many times; and the other day, I tried to put it down on paper. I decided Ma con County is many things:

I have, many times; and the limited business opportundrudge... but she has refused ities that came his way. He's to become a drudge.

And she, too, never thinks of herself as unusual, as having done any more than she should

Or take that person, man or woman, who, sometime in the days of youth, was fired by a dream. Some day he would be a great preacher or physician or teacher or business man or farmer. And so, he worked and sacrificed and sought ways to make that dream come true.

But somewhere along the way ities, could have done half so there was an aged father or well? Yet—and that is one of an invalid mother, or maybe an the marks of true greatness—it old aunt, that somebody had never occurs to him that he has to support and care for-and he done anything noteworthy. In- or she happened to be that stead, he is the soul of mod- somebody. Oftener still, there esty, quite conscious of his lim- were younger brothers and sistingly. ters who must have their

> And so, with never a com-plaint, that man or that woman took the hard road; and, with the passing of the years, the dream passed, too. Cheer-fully, with never a thought of self, he or she became a stepping stone for others.

> We read in books, about courage and character; about de-termination and energy; about self-sacrifice and heroism

> But you don't have to go to books to find those; they are

CAPITOL ANNEX

What Shall It Be?

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS

Two definite conclusions appear to have been reached by a subcommittee of the Commission on Reorganization of State Government at its recent Ral-eigh hearing: (1) A new legislative building is urgently need-ed and (2) the present State Capitol and its grounds should not be altered in any way, cer-tainly in external appearances. In both these conclusions the State Sen. Edwin Lanier of on Wilbur. Chapel Hill said he hoped the committee will recommend a legislative building that one who does the talking." harmonize architecturally with the capitol and other state buildings. He opposed any "mod-said: ernistic" touches in the design speech."

of the new structure.

Did we detect a possible note of dissent, though, in declaration from James Byrnes, assistant director of the State Art Museum, that the present capital is an architectural gem betol is an architectural gem because it was built by forward-looking people and that the proposed structure be designed by a top architect? Certainly the people of the state would expect and the Legislature would insist upon meeting of that last condition that last condition.

The likelihood of variance, however, was further indicated by assertion of William James, president of the North Carolina chapter of the American Insti-tute of Architects, that the success of a legislative building would depend on the architect selected to design it.

Who or what, under standards of the movement, is a forward-looking architect? How far tol and the state fair's celebratwish, "cow palace"?

There are months now in Robert M. Hutchins which to speak up. We'd go along with conformity and hararound Capitol Square.

tectural argument, why, go to it, boys and girls. Sic 'em; we can't think of anything that would do more to relieve the July lassitude or make for midsummer reading that would rise above the tedium of dispatches from trouble spots throughout the

BRIEFLY SPEAKING WRIGHT BROTHERS

There did not appear among Orville Wright, a taciturn duo, the witnesses at the hearing hated to make speeches. Once, at complete agreement upon the a luncheon, they were scheduled architecture of the new struc. to speak before a group of inventors. The toastmaster called

"There must be some mistake." stammered Wilbur. "Orville is the

The toastmaster turned to Orville. The lattter stood up and "Wilbur just made the

UNCLE ALEX'S

Teachin' a passel of younguns in school is sorta like buildin a house - you caint do no good 'less there's a solid foundation to start with.

SAYIN'S

They's two things they ain't no use worryin' about. You can't change the weather, a-tall; and after a man or woman's past 40, you can't change them,

The feller that's always re-ferrin' things to his conscience generally's got a conscience that ain't very sharp.

The man that says hard work never killed nobody generally wants the other feller to prove

A lot o' modern parents seem to think they've done their duty to their children if they born 'em and feed 'em. It's because of them kind o' parents that the rest of us have to shell out for

Is Today's Society Producing Men Who Do Not Even Want To Be Free?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Hutchins, former president of the University of Chicago, now University of Chicago, now heads the Fund for the Republic, a foundation which is seeking answers to the question: How to make freedom work in to-day's complicated society? The following is excerpted from a recent adress Dr. Hutchins made to the Cleveland, Ohio, City Hoosier gal!)

ly folks and so-

St. Petersburg 13, Fla

American is seldom much interested in freedom and justice for often appears to concern only those who can make some personal use of it.

Editors, publishers, and broadcasters are interested in the First Amendment (guaranteeing freedom of religion, speech, and the press) because under this banner they may be able to extort more ment and send reporters to China. states or to the people), but not absence of personal responsibility I sympathize with these ambitions, in the First, Fifth, or Sixth. but I cannot fail to note that editors, publishers, and broad-bers of eccentric sects, commucasters have not been much inter- nists, criminals, or extreme states' them. They have customarily con- the highest quarters that the Bill is to try to forget them. demned those who plead the Fifth of Rights could be adopted to-Amendment (providing, among day. other things, that no person may compelled to be a witness against himself), and have de the free society on education, er have sprung up that are as mony precated the suggestion that a self-employment, and local govern-bureaucratized as the government But if we're to have an archifair trial might require the elimment. As to the first of these, in and that are as influential . . . ination of cameras from the court-last month's "Foreign Affairs" in the lives of the citizens ination of cameras from the courtroom.

Robert Oppenheimer correctly

Eccentric sects like Jehovah's

Witnesses are interested in the freedom of religion, but they are not much interested in the freedom of the press or any of the rest of the Bill of Rights.

In the lives of the citizens.

Clark Kerr has asked how the Clark Kerr has asked how the valuational valuational valuational valuation member, who was to obtain system a half-empty mockery. As to the second, 75 per cent of us now work for others. And, as to the third, anybody who seriously advanced the idea today that local rest of the Bill of Rights.

Extreme states' righters are in- in which the citizen is remote (reserving powers not delegated largely helpless in dealing with it.

with some honorable exceptions not expect to be publishers, mem. how it all happened. Foreign policy is the obvious case. Forces preaching of the last 50 years. that may be let loose at any momested in other amendments, or righters are not much likely to be ent without any participation by industrial system, in which everygovernment was a training ground thing depends on smooth cooper-Communists and other people for civic virtue would be instant ation within large groups, appears I think it fair to say that the likely to be investigated by Con- ly committed to an institution to be to produce men who are merican is seldom much intergress are interested in the Fifth for the feeble-minded. other people, including other dom of the press, or freedom of Americans. The Bill of Rights was designed who may not even want to be often appears to concern only government, against the organized industrialization is to get rid of Criminals are interested in the majority. But government is not men altogether, except as cus-Sixth Amendment (which seeks to what it was in the pre-industrial tomers, and in the meantime to field of civil liberties, as they have terested in the Tenth Amendment from the center of power and been traditionally understood Who cares about the race, creed, to the federal government to the It is a society characterized by the color, or politics of an interchangeable part? . The gravest decisions can be trialization of the South may do People who are not or who do taken without anybody's knowing more to end racial discrimination there than all the legislation and

Jefferson placed his hopes for stitution, centers of private pow- terchangeable part as possible.

But the interchangeable man is even in those parts of the First interested in civil liberties. In the citizen are so enormous and dom and justice are of little interamendment which do not mention fact, doubt has been expressed in so destructive that all he can do est to him. His aim must be to est to him. His aim must be to achieve peace, security ,and success by being interchangeable, that is, through conformity, through Since the adoption of the Con- being as much like any other in-

DO YOU REMEMBER?

Looking Backward Through the Files of The Press 65 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

What is the correct answer to this problem-If 11/2 hens lay 11/2 eggs in 11/2 days, how many eggs will six hens law in seven days? We are sorry to learn that two or three of Mr. L. Holbrook's we are sorry to learn that two or three of Mr. L. Holdrook's children, of Smith's Bridge, have typhoid fever.

That $150 road machine that belongs to our town council has stood in the street near Mr. I. J. Ash's residence ever since last fall, taking all kinds of weather. The wheels are sinking into the ground and rotting, and the machine is being greatly injured by the weather.

25 YEARS AGO

News came from Washington last week that the abandonment of the Tallulah Falls Rallway had been recommended to the Interstate Commerce Commission by J. S. Pritchard, an examiner, but the report has served to intensify the fight against abandonment.

U. S. Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, and Mrs. George were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Redden at their home in Highlands last Wednesday.

10 YEARS AGO

J. Ward Long recently was appointed district deputy governor of Lions International.

A movement to employ "a really top notch man" to give instruction in physical education at the Franklin school nine months in the year, and to direct an integrated program of recreation during the three summer months is under way