TO DESIGN TRAILER —

Noted Designer Donates Talents To 'Bootstrap'

"Operation Bootstrap" has won a new friend for Western North Carolina.

He's a nationally-recognized authority on design and interior decorating, whose name, by request, remains anonymous at this time.

Intrigued by "Operation Bootstrap's" efforts to attract new industry to W.N.C. by utilizing a traveling truck exhibit to tour the United States, this outstanding designer has volunteered his talents in planning the interior of the trailer.

The directors of the Western North Carolina Industrial Development Corporation, in accepting his generous contribution to the program, have made only one suggestion: That the trailer's interior convey the idea that Western North Carolina is truly an industrial and tourist paradise. This theme must be carried out strongly enough to appeal to industrialists who visit and view the trailer.

The designer's ideas at this time are to have a film projector in the rear of the trailer, and a screen on the opposite wall, to show films of W.N.C. and its many advantages. The walls of the interior will have color photographs of present industrial buildings and scenic points. The whole length of the trailer, on both sides, will be taken up with display shelves on which various samples of products manufactured in W.N.C. will be displayed. In the center of the trailer will be a conference room table and chairs (made in W.N.C., of course). The floor will be carpeted with ma-

Club Meets

Mrs. Fred S. Moore and Mrs. Homer Greene gave a dairy foods demonstration at the Carson Home Demonstration Club meeting Tuesday, June 9. Mrs. J. R. Ray gave a garden report, and Mrs. Homer Greene gave a family life report. The meeting was held at the community center, with five members present.

Community Report

The building maintenance committee for the community development organization reports that repairs of the community building will be postponed until fall, because this is the busy season for both carpenters and farmers in the community who normally help with the repairs.

terial also made in W.N.C.

W. N. C. I. D. C. officials hope others will follow the lead of "our new friend" in contributing items, or their talents, to the trailer exhibit.
