IN "EATIN' OUT" —

Local Resorts Mentioned In New Book About South

The High Hampton Inn, Cashiers, and the Highlands Inn, Highlands, are featured in a new book, "This Is The South", just published by Rand-McNally.

They are named along with some 70 other Southern hotels, motels, resorts, and restaurants included in the chapter, "Eatin' Out," written especially for the book by Roy H. Park, a native North Carolinian, who is now editor-in-chief of the Duncan Hines guide books, published by the Duncan Hines Institute, Ithaca, N. Y.

Mr. Park is one of 31 contributing editors to this new 300-page volume about the South, edited by Robert West Howard.

In the chapter on where to eat in the South, Mr. Park names some of his favorite eating places among the establishments "Recommended by Duncan Hines." The High Hampton Inn and the Highlands Inn are included in "Adventures in Good Eating," which lists 4,000 of the best places to eat in North America.

"Way atop North Carolina are two lovely resorts with excellent inns," he writes. "General (and U.S. Senator) Wade Hampton lived near Cashiers, mountain-ringed at an altitude of 3500 feet. The old inn he developed on his 2,200-acre estate has been rebuilt and operates, in season, as High Hampton Inn. It is quiet and informal, with superb scenery — provided you can take your eyes away from the Apple Casserole or Sunny Silver Pie.

"Just twelve miles west nestles the historic resort town, Highlands, the highest incorporated town in the state. The Highlands Inn there has a homey loveliness that enhances its family-style meals. Editor Bob Howard learned this in June, 1958, when he stayed there a day and a half to finish a speech scheduled for Atlanta delivery before a critical audience of ministers and theologians at the Church and Community Workshop. The first morning, the Howards were awakened by a light tap at the door. A smiling waitress swirled in, carrying a bridge table in one hand and a tray with coffee and hot rolls in the other. "Miss Kennerly," she announced,

'said to tell you breakfast ends heah at 9:30. But youn got that ol' speech t' do so we fix to bring it up whenever youn ready. Th' sooner you finish', she said, 'th' moah you can git of this free sunshine.' Miss Georgia Kennerly, the Highlands Inn manager, hadn't known the Howards 'from beans' when they registered."

Mr. Park, who has been a long-time personal friend and traveling companion of the late Duncan Hines, takes the reader on an eating tour of every Southern state from Virginia to Texas.

Miss Stevenson's Wedding December 26 In Swain County

Through error, Miss Irene Stevenson's wedding day was reported last week as December 27. It is instead scheduled December 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Franklin Grove Baptist Church in Swain County.

MRS. RICHARDS FETED AT BIRTHDAY DINNER

Mrs. Annie Richards was honored November 22 with a birthday dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ray Bryson.

Attending were Mrs. Richards' son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Wright and daughter, Carol Ann, of Greenville, S. C., her sisters Mrs. Nellie Zollner and Mrs. Alice Potts, her brother, Walter Reese, two nieces, Mrs. Margaret Waits and Lynn, all of Highlands, and Ray Bryson and two children, Leslie and Alice.

David Solesbee Ends 'Boot Camp' At Great Lakes

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (PHTNC) — David L. Solesbee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Solesbee, of Route 3, Franklin, was graduated from recruit training November 28 at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

The graduation exercises, marking the end of 11-weeks of "boot camp", included a full dress parade and review before military officials and civilian dignitaries.

In 11-weeks of instruction, the "raw recruit" is developed into a Navy Bluejacket, ready for duty with the fleet.

Sloan Chairman Of Press Group For Symposium

Bob S. Sloan, publisher of THE FRANKLIN PRESS, has been named chairman of a committee of the W.N.C. Press Association planning a symposium of newspaper people and education officials early next year.

The purpose of the symposium, according to Mr. Sloan, will be to foster a better understanding between newspapers and school systems with a view to providing more complete coverage of all facets of the operation of school systems.

Serving with Mr. Sloan are Bill Lindau, of THE ASHEVILLE CITIZEN-TIMES, W. Curtis Russ, of THE WAYNESVILLE MOUNTAINEER, and James Story, of THE MARSHALL NEWS-RECORD.

Old Henry Mine Producing Mica Of Good Quality

A good quality mica is now being taken out of the old Henry mine on Watauga, a top producer in the county many years ago, according to Jess Gentry, who is operating it on a lease arrangement with Roy Ranklin.

Quicksand and water forced the abandonment of the mine many years ago. To combat these deterrents, Mr. Gentry is using a bulldozer to push back the overburden and is cutting below the old shafts.

Mr. Gentry says he is operating with the backing of C. W. Scramlin, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

St. Agnes Booth Gets National Play In Journal

The St. Agnes Episcopal Church's entry in the 1959 Macon County Fair has received national publicity in an article in "Cross Roads", quarterly journal of the Rural Workers Fellowship of the Episcopal church.

Featured in the November issue are two pictures of the St. Agnes display. One shows the interior and furnishings of chancel and sanctuary and a vested minister. The other picture shows the entire booth as Mrs. John Hewlett and her children, Susan and Christopher, look on.

The booth has been used at the Highlands Art Show and at the county fair at Murphy.

The Rev. Cornelius A. Zabriskie, promotional director for the diocese of Western North Carolina, has announced that the display is collapsible and transportable by station wagon and will be available to any church or group for the cost of transportation.

An article and pictures of the display also have appeared in the "Highland Churchman", diocesan publication for W.N.C.

Burnette Is Serving In Pensacola, Fla.

PENSACOLA, Fla. (PHTNC) — Royal W. Burnette Jr., aviation structural mechanic first class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Royal W. Burnette Sr., of Route 5, Franklin, N. C., and husband of the former Miss Ruth A. Winstel, of Fort Wayne, Ind., is serving at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

Talent Is Ending 'Boot' Training In Great Lakes, Ill.

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (PHTNC) — James D. Talent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip T. Kell, of Route 1, Franklin, N. C., is scheduled to graduate from recruit training Dec. 11 at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

The graduation exercises, marking the end of 11-weeks of "boot camp", will include a full dress parade and review before military officials and civilian dignitaries.

In 11-weeks of instruction, the "raw recruit" is developed into a Navy Bluejacket, ready for duty with the fleet.
