If The World Were On

Written especially for the
BY W. G. EBEY

Just imagine what would be
If the world were on the level,
Every man be on the level,
Strictly honest, straight and
Not a liar, nor a robber, nor
Swindle, scheme or plot
Would you help it to remain
Why of course you would.

Just imagine what would be
If the world were on the level,
And you met a brown eyed
With a wealth of yellow hair
And you thought if she was
She would "can" you on
Would you tell her--you are
Why of course you would.

Just imagine what would be
If you owned an old blind
With a ring bone and a speck
And the world were on the level,
And you had a chance to tell
For a city house and lot,
Would you mention imperfection
Why of course you would.

Just imagine what would be
In a little social game
If the world were on the level,
And the dealer was the
And some honest brother
"Some one's shy in this
Would you decorate the center
Why of course you would.

Just imagine what would be
If the world were on the level,
And perchance you were millionare
For a brother millionare
And were asked to go to Europe
In a diamond-studded yacht
Would you tell him he is cheating
Why of course you would.

Just imagine what would be
To the price of gasoline,
If a hundred thousand men
Each bought a new machine
Would our old friend Coal
Be contented with his lot
If the world were on the level,
Why of course he would.
