BRIEFS

Swat the fly.

Good morning.

Drug store an assured thing.

Everybody talking "Building Association."

To keep up with the parade, you must get in Vass' band wagon.

A party was here last week looking for a place in which to operate a pressing plant.

Uncle Sam allows you $200 on each child when you go to pay the income tax, but he doesn't tell you how you can keep a child on $200.

Teachers in our schools still teach that the world is round, when it's just about as flat on its back now as it ever has been.

If you want to know whether it's possible to please everybody in Vass ask the first preacher you meet. And if he doesn't know come ask us.

Now that the government has ruled it lawful for a doctor to prescribe beer we suppose the fellows who like beer will be afraid there is some kind of a catch in it.

Fishing for suckers is the simplest thing in the world. Merely advertise something for nothing and let nature take its course.

And a lot of men act as though they thought the goose that laid the golden egg was a gander.

If the country going "dry" didn't do anything else, it taught a lot of fellows that they can't sing when they're sober.

There is still one woman who can make us love her whether she wears short skirts or not and that's the lady on the American dollar.

There are two kinds of people—those who wear comfortable shoes and those who think they have pretty feet.

Nothing upsets a man more than to have to wheel his baby through a crowd of women in which are two or three he used to keep company with.

Are you enough to recall the time when the worst that could be said about an expensive 10-cent cigar was that it burned like a "two-ffer?"

Personally, we are of the opinion that we don't think we would care much to establish intimate pastoral relations with a gun-toting parson.

What we can never understand is why a pretty girl dresses up in outrageous clothes that take all the attention from herself.

As we understand Wayne B. Wheeler's position, all he demands is the right to veto the appointment of any Prohibition Commissioner President Harding may select who is not acceptable to him. Still, we don't wonder much. Modesty never has been one of Wheeler's besetting sins.

The ladies of the Methodist church entertained the Sunday school children at an Easter egg hunt, Monday afternoon. After having a good time finding the many colored eggs, candy eggs were served.

Did Debs, too, prevail upon government officials that he had a pot of gold hidden away somewhere?

We wish a lot of women who think they can sing wouldn't try to prove it

You can get a wife for $1.85 in Turkey, they say. But why should a man want a wife if he has $1.85?

An Illinois man recently lost a fine Holstein heifer and offered as a reward for its return one good drink of whiskey. The next day twelve heifers were brought in.

One of life's inconsistencies—a mouse is afraid of a man, a man is afraid of a woman, and a woman is afraid of a mouse.

Anne Rittenhouse says girls who are to come out next season will wear waists that are not pronouncedly décollet. In other words, a girl making her debut will not be coming out of her clothes so far. Wait till the Pilot man turns his head.

DANGEROUS FIRES

The unusually dry spring has made the risk from forest fires greater this year than common, and the fires have been abundant enough. At this time with the trees beginning to open out vegetation is more susceptible to damage from fire than earlier in the year, and more care is needed in preventing fires from getting out. In the last few years forests have been thinning down very much through Moore and Hoke counties. Lumbermen and wood cutters have taken a great deal of timber and fires have damaged the small stuff. The timber supply is getting less each year, while the need for forest products is greater. We are not going to have another big lumber crop in Moore county, but we ought to guard the wood supply, and that can be done only by encouraging the new growth of trees. Fires are destructive of the little stuff that should be making the wood crop of the days that are ahead of us, and unless we can prevent some of these fires wood prices are going to be high and wood hard to get.

Many of the first that get out can be prevented. Too many of them come from carelessness and from matches thrown on the ground, from hunters, from neglect where clearings are burned, and from similar causes. Some day when the country is more thickly settled we will be free from this one serious menace, but until that time comes eternal vigilance is necessary. This spring the situation is worse than common, and the danger is not over yet for a month or two.

INDIGESTION

By W. BIDDLE GILM

Frontal headache is the form of headache to accompany a meal, usually some considerable time after for instance a dinner may produce a headache when however the gas which is ed in the stomach is eructated most frequently a sense of relief, a condition be brought about by taking half of a teaspoonful of nate of soda in a large glass of water as hot as can comfortably be drunk or the gas may pass out of the stomach into the bowels, getting away with the feeling of comfort that was experienced in the stomach, the feeling of pain and distension tirely cease for the time unless the diet is more tended to you may expect from time to time until a chronic form asserts itself.

While the foregoing exists there is frequently of faintness, which in some cases may end in a greater or of prostration if nothing is done. A small quantity of gested nourishment in a will mitigate the symptom water may be employed in where there is exceeding weakness or a tendency to Fermentative dyspepsia extent different in its character and symptoms than in as much as it may assume different conditions, one perhaps the most important that in which pain, distension, feeling of great fullness very soon after a meal followed later by sickness of stomach and more or less fermentative liquid matter this matter is sour smelling, tinctly acid both in odor and leaves considerable froth on surface, having a resinous yeast having with it most a certain amount of calcium leaving an unpleasant burning in the mouth and throat.

This form of "indigestion" to be the most common of it does not follow that each this complaint should experience the same degree of severity it only makes its existence when they have partaken of a particular article of diet or of combinations of food which they do not properly digest with them, or upon the avoidance of which depend their immunity from

With others it seems periodicity, seems to and is put in its appearance at intervals, and this I find particularly so with those who suffering from some abnormal condition of the liver, or are of well known nervous temperament, or who have been unfortunate enough to have acquired malaria, I have known whom I had the opportunity of seeing carefully free from the complaint for several years, but who, except when she drank coffee, would usually for several days, one time abstained from coffee for three years and over, which time she did not have an attack, but upon returning to coffee the attacks soon returned.
