BRIEFS

A number of operators who are laying up treasures on earth won't need it to buy coal in the place they're going.

Many a man who doesn't believe in advertising feels like the whole world sees it when his name is misspelled in the paper.

If there is one type of citizen we enjoy dodging it is the one who has the kind of religion that makes him gloomy.

As a matter of fact the average woman is only cross when pay-day comes and her husband doesn't come across.

When LaFollette speaks the senate chamber is so quiet that one might hear a pin drop, if there were anyone present to drop it.

The lessons your mother learned at her mother's knee had nothing to do with the price of silk stockings and automobile coats.

Funny how fast things change in this country. Before the war a fellow referred to it as a "position" and now he calls it a "job."

The man who boasts he understands the income tax and is entirely familiar with the Einstein theory is not a wonder. He is merely a liar.

And then, again, a man might be able to answer all of Edison's questions, and still not have enough sense to come in out of the rain.

Never before in the history of Vass has there been such a demand for houses as at present. Who will be the first one to build a bungalow?

Why is it that when a sculptor drapes one of his subjects in long pants he always selects a pair that look as though they belong to Bill Bryan?

Another thing we are going to quit trying to understand is why the sugar market is at its lowest level when there is going to be a shortage of fruit.

When a man starts out to make a monkey of himself he usually does the job up so thoroughly that he leaves no room for the charge of nature-faking.

We began to have an uncomfortable feeling that foxy Edison played a mean trick on the newspapers by getting a lot of free advertising with his foolish questions.

We can stand a whole lot without wanting to fight, but when Germany starts talking about the "spotless purity of her good name" we are in favor of going to war again.

Sir Conan Doyle says he has a photograph of Sir William Crookes showing him "walking arm in arm with an angel."—This ought to prove interesting to Sir William's widow.

We sometimes wonder whether relations are as cordial as they seem among the staffs of newspapers whose specialists kid each other back and forth in their own columns.

When all is said Edison's questions were curiously incomplete. In these days no man can be considered educated or well informed unless he knows the answer to the question, "How much does a quart of hooch cost?"—Phila. Inquirer. Another question the inventor might have asked, but didn't, is "How does Edison get that way?"
