At the social gathering on Friday night G. S. Cole found—or counted—six bachelors at the door, all in a line, and looking lonesome; and just to think of the charming maids and widows in the town and community.

Some of the tobacco of S. W. Robbards on McPherson's farm sold at Carthage Tuesday for 70 cents, and this was not the best grade that he has made.

The correspondent appreciates the "words of true encouragement" on the editorial page of the Pilot last week. Quite proudly, and with much appreciation, do I wear that feather in my cap.

There was a large crowd at the social gathering at the school house on Friday night, estimated at four hundred. Prof. A. B. Cameron introduced the principal, Prof. Woodward, who in turn introduced the teachers—Misses Farmer, Spier, Austen and Bergen. Prof. Cameron made an inspiring speech, music was furnished by the Cameron string band; twenty gallons of ice cream and ten assorted cakes were served free. Everybody who wanted cake and cream were accommodated, and everybody seemed to want it even to a second and third helping.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, and Miss Doris Owens, of Plymouth, and Mrs. Blackwell Stith, of Virginia Beach, were dinner guests on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McLean. The party was enroute to Hendersonville, where the young ladies will enter Fassifern.

Mrs. William Wilson and daughter, of Tampa, Fla., visited relatives on Route 2 last week.

Miss Emma Wilson, of Manley, returned home Sunday after a visit to relatives on Route 2.

Speaking of reminiscences—and I had this one in mind last week—when Rev. L. H. Joyner, who is a Methodist preacher, and a jolly good fellow withal, was called to Cypress Presbyterian church to conduct the funeral services of Miss Christian Smith, I remarked to my chum and neighbor, Mrs. Betsy Ann McFayden, that I was under the impression that the Smiths were Presbyterians, she replied "Oh no! Jack Smith and all his family were staunch Methodists, and used to belong to Old Shallow Well church." That recalled the only time I ever remember attending services at that church; I went with my mother and aunt from my childhood home near where is now the town of Vass. I remember the preacher's name was Plyler; he was a fair-haired man, and he wore a gray suit. Before he began to preach, he stood up in the pulpit and sang a solo, keeping time with his foot. Going home I told my mother the preacher patted his foot! I have never heard the song since, but I learned the chorus that day, and could sing it:

"And I'll sing Hallelujah,
And you'll sing Hallelujah,
And we'll all sing Hallelujah
When we arrive at home."

Miss Flora McCrummen shouted; she didn't jump up and cavort around the room, but sat in her seat, clapped her hands and said "Ha! Ha! Ha! Glory!" Ah, those must have been the days when the people had "The Old Time Religion," and were not ashamed to own it.

CHARLIE PICQ

About this time of the Picquet looms up before and folks begin to note that he is exerting in the county show what it can do the time he is trying to get his picture houses a high reputation for the county, but the fall fair comes on and a digging in to find something to help to put Moore in a better society than anything else he undertakes to conduct a county

Charlie Picquet, like Solicitor Nash, and the rest of them, is a preacher came down into this county hemlock woods of Pennsylvania joined the farmers and let about farming to be good on the fair. As he had an amusement line before farming he had two leading business, one of providing to interest the people, and the faculty of gathering kins, Ayrshire cattle, Berkshire prize tobacco and that and so he has made the fair a novelty that is in itself.

One thing about this he is always on the trail thing shows up in the ought to be at the fair get it. If everybody who the licks to make Moore success, that Charlie Pic Sandhills would be still it is.

Now that the fair is in sight he is burning a lot of three cent gasoline going down the road to see that are all getting ready for day, and if anything it will be something to plain sight, for Charlie eye and a right good positionizing what is worth watching attraction. He says the will be the best ever, and if everybody helps what possible.

BERKSHIRE S

We are inclined to tell the people of the Sandhills the Southern Berkshire Sandhill Fair is one of the most important in America. Until this year in this show were confined east of the Rocky Mountains year you will see Berkshires sent clear from California and all of them will be seen at this year. Won't that be a show to see?

After a man has worked up and saved a lot of the hardest thing he has done whether he'll buy a house or not.
