message that his mother was dying, was picked up in a dying condition by the Carter Furniture Co., Saturday evening and brought to Cameron. Dr. O'Briant was called and found the young man suffering from heart leakage. After rendering first aid the young man revived and told his pitiful story. A purse was quickly made up, W. A. Muse gave him a railway ticket, and he was put on the train and sent on his way rejoicing.

Cameron people extend their heart felt sympathies to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Thomas and family in the passing of the dear little daughter who met such a tragic death by fire. Words of consolation seem like empty sounds in grief like this. May the Healer comfort the stricken parents as He alone can. Let us hope that the little one's sufferings were allayed in the hour of death.

A week ago two little feet passed softly

Through Heaven's gates of pearl and shining gold,

Two rose white feet unfit to bear life's burden

Were gathered in the Heavenly Shepherd's fold.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. L. H. Joyner, and the little one laid to rest in Johnson Grove cemetery.

And now her spirit shines in the light of God;

His likeness stamps her brow, Through the shadow of death her feet have trod,

And she dwells in glory now.

Among those attending the funeral from Cameron were Misses Mamie Neal and Jacksie Muse, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cameron and little daughters, Virginia and Johnsie.

MORE CO-OPERATION

ported 3,231 cases, and recommended taxes in the amount of $24,168,824.62.

The narcotic forces, which also operate under the Prohibition Unit, have also been reorganized. There has resulted such an increase of efficiency that with no larger appropriation or appreciable increase in field force, there has been an increase of some sixty-five per cent in the number of violations reported in the period of one year, and an increase of one hundred per cent in the convictions secured.

THE JAP LOSES

The two recent decisions of the United States Supreme court holding that Japanese may not become naturalized citizens of this country will be hailed with delight in all sections of the Pacific coast, where the menace of the yellow man has long been felt. These decisions are the last word in the matter by the highest court in the nation. It will cause resentment in Tokio, but it should soon pass away, for the law under which the ruling was made is not a new one, and has been upheld by many states time and again. The anti-Japanese feeling has long since crossed the Rocky mountains, and is now felt as far east as the Mississippi river. There is entirely too much danger in its spread to permit it to go unchecked. The decision of the Supreme court gives assurance that yellow will never threaten white supremacy in these lands and that is a might comfortable feeling for those who will always believe in that great principle of "America for Americans."

Our idea of an optimist is the fellow who expects lying to stop just as soon as the election is over.

SUPERINTENDENT POU WOULD FIND REMEDIES

George Ross Pou, superintendent of the state prison, announces his purpose to have three bills presented to the general assembly embodying legislation that will, as he asserts, provide the foremost of the reforms desired by the committee of one hundred on prison legislation. Moreover, the superintendent feels sure that if his recommendations are adopted "the delinquents of our state will stand at least the opportunity of reclamation instead of damnation."

The inference is that the superintendent is in entire sympathy with the central purpose of the citizens committee, and the suggestions he makes from actual experience are these:

Abolish the dangerous-insane department of the state prison and remove the inmates to the hospitals at Raleigh, Morganton and Goldsboro. Permit the establishment of any industry the prison board of directors may deem advisable, allowing the sale of the output to the public.

Repeal the law which makes it unlawful to sell brick made by prison labor except to state institutions.

All the superintendent's suggestions have to do with the provisions of funds for operation, except the first, and this would transfer the cost of care of the dangerous insane to another department, where these persons properly belong. "The present system is an absolute disgrace to North Carolina," says the superintendent. There are 70 of these persons classed as dangerous insane in the state prison, many of them born imbeciles, some can neither speak coherently nor feed themselves, crowded in an improvised ward, unsuited for such a purpose. The utter incongruity of making the custody of such creatures a function of the state's penal department is not as apparent as it would be if penal system and that of care for the mentally incompetent had not evolved, and very slowly and gradually, from the customs of a society that regarded the insane and imbeciles as of demoniac possession, and properly subject to much the same treatment as dangerous dumb animals.

It will cost money to carry out the recommendations of the committee of one hundred. It will not cost any money to pass a law. There is already legislation on the statute books, which if it had life in it, would meet some of the most serious conditions in the penal system. The corrective legislation asked for will, if it is not merely another mockery of the state's motto, if it is not more sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, have to carry within it the machinery for its administration, and it will have to provide money. It is a question of how the money is to be obtained. Mr. Pou says the things demanded can be done by his department if the funds are supplied, and shows how the funds may be obtained without an appropriation—except for the purchase of machinery.

The superintendent says there are, approximately, 1,100 prisoners in the state prison, fully 350 "unable to do a day's work," which, in the light of a subsequent statement, "there are at least 250 of the non-producers who could work at some industry and earn their own expenses," appears to mean that most of these 350 are unable to do a day's work, not because they lack work capacity, but because no work is allowed into which they will fit. They are "non-producers for no other reason than that some former legislature saw fit to legislate in favor of special interests. We are not allowed to produce anything whatsoever with the state prison labor except for sale to other state institutions," and the state now has in its possession a million and half of bricks, a dead asset of the prison department.

The board is allowed under present law to hire out prisoners for common labor and farming only—a great iniquity, at that, we suspect—and therefore "it is possible to show a small profit." The profit would be bigger, only, "before I deprive the prisoners of the proper and necessary food, clothing, medical and dental attentions in order to make such a showing, I will resign," says Mr. Pou. A penal system should not be operated for profit.—Greensboro News.

Maybe the reason Thanksgiving comes but once a year is because it takes a whole year for some people to discover something to be thankful for.
