There's no need in honking the auto horn at a railroad crossing until the railroad engine learns to hear.

We have no shrinking girls any more. But their clothes certainly have been doing a lot of it.

An epidemic called the "devil's gripe" has spread from West Virginia to New York. What we can't understand is how it missed Chicago.

It will soon be time to take down the screens and let the flies out of the house for the winter.

Our definition of home is a house in which you are at liberty to scratch any place that itches.

Living beyond our means wouldn't be so bad if there didn't have to be a day of reckoning.

The man who complains that his wife cannot take a joke forgets that she took him for better or worse.

It probably wouldn't be so hard to enforce the dry law if a lot of stomachs could vote.

Baseball magnates have ruled that player's bats must be made of one piece of wood. Nothing is said about their heads.

Some women can forgive their husbands for going wrong but they can't forgive them for going broke.

You have probably noticed that it is no longer necessary to look at a clothes line to tell what women are wearing.

We don't really need a third party. Those who merely wish to waste their votes can just stay away from the polls.

Women barbers will never become popular with the men, who can't forget the scrape Sampson got into by going to a woman for a hair-cut.

Our idea of a perfect world is one in which our friends will be as liberal with their money as they are with their advice.

When a mother says to her boy: "You just wait till your father gets home," we can't help feeling sorry for the poor old man.

No wonder old man Soloman was so wise. Any man ought to know a lot with 700 wives and 300 lady friends chasing around picking up information.

THE FORD PUZZLE

Chauncey Depew is wise in the ways of politics, but he says he can't understand the Ford boom. "Take Rockefeller," he says, "and he has spent $500,000,000 for humanity, yet he couldn't be elected to office. But Ford, the richest man in the world, and who has never spent his money very freely on charities, is favored by many for the highest office in the world." And when you come to think of it, it is strange. How many of us can remember the time when a rich man didn't have the ghost of a chance of becoming president? In fact, no political party ever was foolish enough to run a millionaire for president. Yet here we are in the middle of a boom for the richest man in the world for the presidency. Can it be that we are not as critical of the rich man as we once were? Or is it that we don't take our politics as seriously as in former years?
