of the Circle, after which the chairman, Mrs. C. J. Temple, presided over the business session. In order that the period for business might be used to the best advantage, the Circle voted to impose a fine upon any member who introduced, during the time allotted to business, a subject not pertaining to the business affairs of the Circle. Plans were made for work for the coming month, after which a social hour crowded with interesting contests was enjoyed. Resolutions for the New Year were written. These were read by the hostess, and the members named the ones which they thought were best. Each was then given an opportunity to show some of her knowledge of the Bible by answering a list of questions. Two other contests about affairs of the home followed, and the winners were given attractive rewards for their excellent work. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Tyson, assisted by her little daughter, Marie. The Circle was glad to have Mrs. A. Cameron present. Mrs. S. R. Smith's invitation was accepted for next month.

... Mrs. H. A. Borst Entertains ...

On Tuesday evening of this week Mrs. H. A. Borst was hostess to Circle One. Quite a good number of members being present, with one visitor, Mrs. Lillian Foreman, who will lend her splendid aid to this circle during her stay in Vass.

For the devotional the subject had been chosen, "Stewardship," with Bible reading and poems fittingly given. Several musical selections were rendered.

During the business meeting plans were made for "The Dustrick Skule," a play to be given in the very near future by local talent, and all are advised to be ready to go to the "skule break" if they are not among those taking part. A delightful social hour followed the business. A delightful sweet course was served by the hostess, followed by home made candies.

Miss Maude Newcombe.

Once again Lakeview is called upon to mourn the death of a beloved friend. For many years Miss Maude Newcombe lived among us, a gentle, kindly spirit, who, although never possessing good health, was always hopeful and cheerful.

Coming here from Biddeford, Me., where she was born, the South appeared to her, and she lived it all and made hosts of friends by her pleasant and amiable manner, and, with her music, entered into all the little gatherings of the town. She will be missed among those who were her earliest friends here as well as those of later years in Southern Pines.

No words could describe her character more nearly than those of her brother, Mr. Arthur S. Newcomb, to Dr. Monroe, of Sanford, at whose hospital she died. "She had suffered for many years, but was patient and courageous to the last, and her memory will linger in the minds of all who knew her as an example of resignation and cheerful acceptance of whatever fate might have in store."

Truly a Christian spirit, and truly we feel God will deal gently with one who dealt so gently with all here on earth.

Miss Newcomb is survived by her brother, Mr. Arthur S. Newcomb, well-known real estate man of the Sandhill section, and three sisters, of whom Miss Angie is best known here. She has been the life-long companion of Miss Maude, caring for her with an unselfishness and attention which has been the wonder of her associates.

Mr. Newcomb accompanied the body North Saturday night and services will be held at the home of his sister in Saco, Maine.

A beautiful wreath was fashioned by friends here of magnolia leaves and sent North to be placed upon the casket.

So passes the brave, unafraid spirit of Miss Maude Newcomb.

"See You Later" At Pinehurst.

Coming to Pinehurst High School Auditorium Thursday night, January 27, 8:15, a musical comedy, "See You Later." This comedy is entirely different from any one you have ever seen, and folks, you just owe it to yourselves to leave all your troubles at home and enjoy two hours of clean, wholesome laughter.

We have 50 people you will be glad to see, chorus girls, love making flapper, and the latest modern shiek. This is one treat among many—you just can't afford to miss this opportunity.

PINEHURST, N. C.

Two things to think about at this season of the year. One is cotton seed for spring planting. Spring is not far around the corner now, and you will need seed before you know it. We have secured a large stock of Cleveland Big Boll cotton seed from the farmers at Eureka, who have been making a specialty of this cotton seed, and who are raising it in accordance with the instructions and inspection of the Department of Agriculture. This seed is acclimated, and is the best seed offered the Moore county farmer.

The other thing we have to offer just now is Plant Bed Fertilizer. Your tobacco seeds are soon to go into the ground, and to make strong and dependable plants the soil needs proper fertilization. We are distributors in this section for the Nitrate Agencies fertilizer materials and no-filler fertilizer, the kind that will ultimately hold the bulk of the market.
