A BANQUET FOR YOUTH AT CHURCH OF WIDE FELLOWSHIP

From start to finish the banquet for the younger people of the Church of Wide Fellowship was a most enjoyable affair.

As all gathered about the tables in the Ladies parlor, no more attractive sight could be imagined than the happy faces of the guests in their festive surroundings. The decorations were in pink with centerpieces of pink roses, pretty basket favors and place cards and fun-provoking prizes. A most bountiful feast was provided and served by the Ladies Aid Society.

While the various courses were served the choir leaders, Miss Doris Eddy, Miss Nellie Simmons and Miss Algene Edson kept up a jolly round of songs and cheers and stories were told the guests.

The toast mistress, Miss Ruth Sergeant, provided the following program:

Greeting, Mrs. Turner; Response, Alden Bowers; "Why I Joined the Church of Wide Fellowship," Reminiscences, Miss Doris Eddy; "What the Church Expects of its Young People," Mr. Serl; "Our Summer Program," Miss Ruth Sergeant.

$200,000 FIRE DESTROYS SOUTHERN PINES HOTEL

later by Lennox Windham in a similar accident. Greg Morgan was cut and bruised, but none suffered serious injuries.

Efficient Policing

The sounding of the alarm and the rising smoke attracted the largest crowd gathered in Southern Pines in many years, the parkway through which Seaboard trains transverse town being a packed mass of people from far and near. The policing was ably handled under the direction of Chief Beasley, who stationed men at all corners of the block in which the hotel is located to halt traffic, while he himself saw that the crowd in front of the burning building was kept orderly and that hotel property was safeguarded.

Estimates of the loss run as high as $200,000 for building and furnishings. The insurance carried was less than $100,000, it is stated. Policies were held by the Stevens, Barnum, Cameron and Page Trust Company agencies.

Built in 1886

The Southern Pines Hotel was built in the winter of 1886-87 by the late Frank Page, of Aberdeen, father of the late Walter Hines Page, former Congressman Robert N. Page, Frank Page of State highway fame and others. How Mr. Page came to build the hotel is told in another column of The Pilot by Bion H. Butler. It had 14 rooms originally. D. F. McAdams added 20 rooms in 1913, and various rebuildings brought it up, first, to 40 rooms on two floors, then 60 rooms on three floors. The Harringtons purchased the property from Mr. McAdams during the winter season of 1924-25, and Frank W. Harrington has been acting as manager since then.

Fire visited the hotel on November 12th, 1924 just after the Harringtons had taken it over, starting in the boiler room. It was subdued only after a stubborn fight by the fire company, and the loss was not great.

The fight on Monday night lasted until four o'clock Tuesday morning. Flames broke out afresh Tuesday afternoon but were quickly subdued, and again Wednesday morning it was necessary to call the department to quell a last dying effort on the part of the fire to continue the battle.

Manager Harrington has not as yet determined upon plans for the future of the Southern Pines Hotel.
