Dr. William Louis Poteat, president emeritus of Wake Forest College, and Prof. Frank William Hanft, of the University of North Carolina, have been named by Governor Ehringhaus as members of the State Utilities Commission to sit with Public Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winbourne in important cases that will be up for hearing when and if needed by Mr. Winbourne.

Dr. Poteat is well known and liked by the people of North Carolina and will give to the commission a representative of the people. Prof Hanft is an expert on utilities and has made extensive study of their operation. They, with Mr. Winbourne, experienced in handling the utilities problem of the State, will give a well-rounded and capable and fair commission, Governor Ehringhaus feels.

President Birthday Balls, to be held in many communities of the state on January 30, will not be subject to the usual federal tax on admissions if the entire amount of the profits go to the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation and if the promoters qualify for the exemption on Form 755, furnished on request, Collector Robertson states. Local committees should apply for these forms, he states.

Judge Frank A. Daniels, Goldsboro, of the Fourth judicial district, has not yet decided whether he will be a candidate to succeed himself for another eight years in primary and election next year, or retire and become an emergency judge on two-thirds pay and subject to call when needed by the Governor, under the retirement act, he said Saturday. He has reached the age and period of service to place him in this class. Solicitor Clawson L. Williams, Sanford, of that district is expected to be a candidate if Judge Daniels retires, but probably will not oppose him if he is again a candidate. Norman C. Shepherd, Smithfield, may be expected to run for solicitor, if Solicitor Williams seeks the judgeship, and others may seek the two places, in case of the retirement of Judge Daniels. But Solicitor Williams is looked upon as his most likely successor, and Shepherd is apparently a favorite to succeed Solicitor Williams.

Peanuts, important source of income for many people in a dozen North Carolina counties, are coming into their own. Governor Ehringhaus, who has worked on the peanut prices for some months with the Washington administration, is advised that the code of fair competition of the peanut milling industry was approved by Secretary Wallace January 10, after General Johnson had approved the labor provisions, and General Johnson has been asked to make it effective as soon as possible. Mr. Tapp said he is advised of substantial improvement in the peanut market, which, he believes, is the result of the proposed agreement.

The "stagger system" in CWA projects in towns of 2,500 population or less has been authorized by Washington authorities, Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, State administrator, is advised. This does not apply to the larger towns, on the ground that living costs are higher and the workers need full time wages to live.

The instructions provide that when a county's quota is at work and other projects are approved and waiting for workers, then other unemployed may be put on these jobs. The result is that hours of work may be cut as low as 15 hours a week, instead of 30 hours, as has been the case, with the result that the incomes of workers in these smaller towns may also be reduced. As figured out, it will result generally in work of about 17 hours a week and the employment of probably 900 where 500 were formerly employed.

Many larger cities and towns have been asking to be allowed to use the "stagger system" in order to pass the work around more, but the administration refuses to accede to that demand, because of the higher living costs usually.

Gilliam Grissom, for about 11 years U. S. Collector of revenue for North Carolina, insists that he is to be the candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket at the next election, while leading Republicans insist that if he does it will, figuratively, be over the dead body politic of the Republican party. Mr. Grissom is not sure the Republicans will nominate him; in fact, doubts that will in convention, but vigorously asserts: "If they don't I'll force them into a primary, as much as I dislike it." Leaders of the party resignedly shake their heads and say that he probably will push them into a primary, but that he will not get the nomination in convention, if they can help it. They take the position that Mr. Grissom, having sucked at the national pap for 11 years, should not step down. They think a younger man should be honored with the nomination. Meanwhile Mr. Grissom vigorously pushed his campaign, remaining in Raleigh.

PINEHURST JOBBING DEPT. SOLD TO NEW COMPANY

A deal was completed this week whereby the newly organized Pinehurst Jobbing Company, Inc., takes over the business formerly conducted by Pinehurst, Inc., under the head of the Pinehurst Jobbing Department.

Raymond Johnson, who has been in charge of the work for Pinehurst, Inc., for a number of years, is the active head of the new organization. Mr. Johnson is secretary-treasurer, Verner Z. Reed, Jr., president, and E. E. Johnson, vice-president of the corporation.

The concern will continue to handle the same kind of work as in the past—carpentry, masonry, painting and plastering—and will operate a craftsman's shop, making all kinds of repairs, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Lincoln of Villa Nova, Pa., are guests at the Highland Pines Inn. Mr. Lincoln is a prominent author, his Cape Cod stories being particularly well known.

Silver Platter by Letitia McDonald (Mrs. Wallace Irwin). Keen, sophisticated, and entertaining. On sale today.—Hayes.

Reduction in Prices of Pyrofax

Pinehurst Warehouses

PINEHURST, N. C.

Announce a general price reduction to consumers of Pyrofax, the Ideal Fuel.

The new schedule of prices by Pyrofax is shown below, together with the comparative prices as fixed by the number of cylinders of gas purchased.

For the first cylinder the price is	$16.00
For 2d cylinder, $12, making the average for both	$14.00
For 3d cylinder, $11, making average for three	$13.00
For 4th cylinder, $10, averaging for all	$12.25
For 5th cylinder, $9, averaging for all	$11.60
For 6th cylinder, $9, averaging for all	$11.16
For 7th cylinder, $9, averaging for all	$10.85
For 8th cylinder, $9, averaging for all	$10.62

With further proportionate reductions for increased number of cylinders.

This price schedule extends guaranteed service on equipment and cylinders at no additional cost.

No other fuel approaches Pyrofax in its economy, efficiency, convenience, cleanliness, safety, or in any other way. Gas is the one fuel that uses all the elements of the material supplier to the furnace. No ashes, no soot, no unconsumed waste. Heat begins when gas is lit and stops when it is turned off.

The new price list is another inducement to use this economical and effective fuel.
