General Smith Dies Suddenly on Return Home From Festival

State Commander of Confederate Veterans, 91, Victim of Heart Attack at Ansonville

General William Alexander Smith, commander of the North Carolina Confederate Veterans who was among the prominent visitors to Southern Pines for Military Day of Festival Week last Friday, died at his home in Ansonville on Monday night. He was stricken by a sudden heart attack. Though 91 years of age, General Smith appeared in excellent health when here last week.

He was born January 11, 1843 in Anson County of distinguished English lineage. He was educated in the schools of that county and then entered Davidson College.

He completed the first year there and was making a high scholastic record in his sophomore year until April, 1861 when the War Between the States broke out. He returned home and enlisted as a boy of 18 in the Anson County Guards, the first company to be recruited in that county.

The company volunteered its services to North Carolina and became part of the Fourteenth North Carolina regiment. General Smith, then a private, participated with his company in battles at Yorktown, Williamsburg, Seven Pines and Richmond.

On July 1, 1862, he was in the charge up Malvern Hill and was seriously wounded, falling just in front of the Union breastworks. He was critically ill for six months and the Malvern Hill wound left him a cripple for life.

After years of success as a merchant, he retired from the merchandising business and became president of the Yadkin Falls Manufacturing Company, of the Eldorado Cotton Mills of the Carolina Construction Company. He early became interested in the development of the telephone and organized and became president of the Pee Dee News-Transit Company.

He was a leading farmer of Anson county for many years.

General Smith succeeded his brother-in-law, Captain Frank Bennett, as commander of the Anson Camp, U. C. V., and served for some years as inspector-general of the Second Brigade, U. C. V., with the rank of major on the staff of General W. L. London.

Surviving in addition to Mrs. Smith is one adopted son, B. D. Nelms, of Anson county.

THIRD STRAIGHT DEFEAT FOR HIGH SCHOOL NINE

Southern Pines High School absorbed its third straight baseball licking on Tuesday afternoon when they journeyed to Laurinburg and lost to the school team of that town. The final score was 17 to 3.

Bill Wilson started on the mound for the locals, but gave way to Russell Powell in the sixth. Laurinburg garnered about 12 hits off their combined deliveries, but their support was erratic and errors at crucial moments gave the winners several unearned tallies. Pottle and Boney, with two safe blows each, led the eight-hit attack of the locals.

WHO wouldn't be on those dreadful Mondays? Washwoman didn't show up; washing machine broke down; hot steamy rooms to make the children fretful; hurried meals the bane of the famished husband. Far pleasanter places are the laundry free homes we serve so satisfactorily; so economically.
