THE PROPOSED AIRPORT DEVELOPMENT

With the constantly increasing popularity of air transport lines as a mode of travel it is welcome news from federal authorities that we are to be aided in developing our Knollwood Airport. The time is not far off when great planes will be running on regular schedules between all the important centers of population in the country, and it is but fitting that such popular winter resorts as Pinehurst and Southern Pines should be provided with the necessary equipment to avail themselves of this traffic.

That Moore county and our town officials appreciated the importance of this proposed development was evidenced by their prompt action in earmarking county and town funds to match the government's, that no stone might be left unturned in availing ourselves of the opportunity. It seems that airport development is given a preferred rank in the allocation of federal funds, for the double reason that the country needs more and larger airports and that the work of developing them provides employment for unskilled labor. The WPA reports that there are few skilled workers not now returned to the ranks of the employed, but that jobs must be found for many so-called common laborers. With 315 families still on relief in this county, a project such as the enlarging of the airport should provide food for many mouths.

From the other standpoint, the future will develop a constantly increasing demand for airport facilities in a community such as this. We have in the Knollwood Airport today a well-Bermudaed turf, smooth runways, two small hangars and a gasoline station. But the trend of air traffic development has been toward great ships which carry dozens of persons and which require longer and wider landing lanes than we have at present, and much larger hangars. With the proposed lengthening and widening of our present runways, the construction of an adequate hangar for the largest of the transport planes, and proper lighting facilities, there is no reason why the Sandhills should not become a regular stop on scheduled runs of the big air transport companies.

This community is to be congratulated on procuring the necessary financial aid to literally "put us on the air map."

THE SEARCH FOR A WORLD PEACE PLAN

In general the actions of the League of Nations in the Italian-Ethiopian trouble have inspired respect. Whatever the outcome, the mere fact that there has been a place where nations could meet and discuss the situation, where at least the mechanics of negotiation were provided, has resulted in delay, if nothing more. And delay in certain situations can be of vast importance. In reading of the beginnings of the World War one is shocked at the rapidity with which the nations were swept into the conflict, one declaration of war following with maniacal speed on the heels of the other. Certainly any form of diplomatic organization which can delay such a stampede is commendable.

Apart from the League few actual plans to assist the cause of peace have been formulated though enough has been said and written to pacify mankind several times over. Wide differences exist between the schools of thought, ranging from the big army-big navy man to the pacifist quoting the golden rule. Nevertheless, however different their proposals, the common interest of such different types is a heartening thing. This month two interesting articles have appeared; one by a pacifist and socialist, the other by a captain in the army. As may be imagined their articles are representative of two extremes of thought, but both state the same premise; the need for peace. Both also show similarities of outlook which might be used as a means of rapprochement. Of these the most important is the statement that peace cannot be attained so long as pacifism is regarded as a negative quality. The soldier, disclaiming any peace plan of his own, offers the Pax Romana as an example of a plan that worked. The Socialist suggests a world organized to enforce peace.

During the Pax Romana, Rome developed her empire spreading prosperity and culture to its farthest limits and, on the whole, governing justly though with an iron hand, for the most part, contented people.

The organized world, as suggested by the Socialist article, has, in effect, certain similarities with the rule of Rome. There would be a strong central government empowered to enforce the laws affecting all the nations. Sir Samuel Hoare has pointed out the absolute necessity for a just division of raw materials and colonies. In this article it is suggested that foreign trade should be adjusted and each nation contribute what it is best fitted to produce so that competition between nations as such—a main cause of war—should be eliminated. Briand envisaged an international government having as its police force an international army and navy. This idea is in essence that of our United States, with federal government and federal police force to act in cases outside the jurisdiction of the States.

Man is a being endowed with reasoning powers. He is here in the world in large numbers and even the confirmed pessimist must agree that he is bound to try to find some way of surviving with a minimum of discomfort. That being the case some method will continue to be sought which will enable him to live at peace with his neighbors. The Romans thought they had found the perfect system. And for the time being perhaps they had. The League of Nations is another step in the same search. Organized as it is now with one half the world not included in it, it can hardly hope to accomplish great things. Perhaps it is a beginning; perhaps it will be scrapped and other systems tried. We may see a Pax Fascist or a Pax Communist. The point is that men, having once begun, will continue the search for a system in which to live their lives with security, with peace. —K. L. B.

MARK TWAIN'S WAR PRAYER

November 30 is the centenary of Mark Twain's birth. This comes so near Armistice Day that it may be interesting to read the famous "War Prayer" written by this man who was something more than a humorist. Though Mark Twain was a Confederate soldier, his hatred for war may be seen in the grim satire of this suggested prayer:

"O Lord our God, help us to tear their soldiers to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale forms of their patriot dead; help us to drown the thunder of the guns with the wounded, writhing in pain; help us to lay waste their humble homes with a hurricane of fire; help us to wring the hearts of their unoffending widows with unavailing grief; help us to turn them out roofless with their little children to wander unfriended through wastes of their desolated land in rags and hunger and thirst, sport of the sun flames of summer and the icy winds of winter, broken in spirit, worn with travail, imploring Thee for the refuge of the grave and denied it—for our sakes, who adore Thee, Lord, blast their hopes, blight their lives, protract their bitter pilgrimage, make heavy their steps, water their way with their tears, stain their white snow with the blood of their wounded feet! We ask of One who is the spirit of love and who is the ever faithful refuge and friends of all that are sore beset, and seek His aid with humble and contrite hearts. Grant our prayer, O Lord, and Thine shall be the praise and honor and glory, now and ever, Amen."

Grains of Sand

When Doctor Dickie wrote a verse
Confessing his senility,
He stirred a tranquil hornet's nest
Amongst feminine gentility.

They grasped for pens, began to write

In dactylic trochaical,
Denouncing any one who'd dare
Call forty-two passeical.

Now just a word to aged men:
(There's no fee, Doctor, for the hint)—
If you would quarrel with the girls
I'd keep the matter out of print.

We never knew an insect could be so popular. Our pet Black Widow Spider had so many callers during the past week we came very near putting on ushers and a lecturer. To stem the tide we sent him up to the high school where he is now EXHIBIT A in the laboratory.

The first drivers' license revoked under the new Drivers' License act has been received by the Division of Highway Safety. It was issued to Boyd Coats, East Laurinburg, who was sentenced for drunken driving. The sentence automatically revokes the license for a period of one year. The license was revoked as of November 4, four days after the new law became effective. Licenses are being mailed out rapidly, but it is expected to be 10 or 15 days before all can be mailed to the approximately 800,000 applicants. The law is not being rigidly enforced until the licenses have been mailed out.

By the time this is read, North Carolina will have more licensed automobiles and trucks than were licensed during the peak year of 1929, when the number reached 503,590. The registrations were less than 2,000 below the 1929 figure by the middle of last week, and reports for the entire week will show the 1929 figures have been passed. The registration last year was only 471,084 for the entire year. The low figure after the peak was 397,455 in 1932.

New cars sold in October numbered 4,838, and 1,091 trucks, as against 4,234 cars and 1,364 trucks in September, and 6,978 cars and 1,915 trucks in October, 1934. New cars sold in ten months of this year are 46,197, and 11,834 trucks, as against 40,046 cars and 9,700 trucks in 10 months last year.

North Carolina power companies are going ahead with rural electrification in close cooperation with the State Rural Electrification Authority. Chairman Dudley Bagley announces. Lines are being constructed and authorized and others are being surveyed right along. Mr. Bagley cites that the Carolina Power and Light Company, since June 15, has completed 11.7 miles of serving 105 customers, has under construction 18.75 miles to serve 157 customers and has authorized construction of 127.25 miles to serve 879 other customers. The company is still surveying for new lines, Mr. Bagley said. Other companies are also busy, he said.
