Theatre

"Built for laughs, its comics go to town in a big way and provide one of the funniest pictures in months." So states the critic about "New Faces," the attraction at the Southern Pines Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 12, 13, 14, at 8:30 p. m.

The Film Daily states that—"A big bouquet should be tossed in the direction of Leigh Jason for having guided the newcomers and oldsters to solid laugh returns. Joe Penner, Milton Berle and Parkyakarkus have a field day as the top comics. Penner's unique style is more winning than ever, while Berle is right at home in his screen debut. Parkyakarkus delivers in his fattest role to date. One of the standouts is a stock broker scene enacted by Berle and Richard Lane and a riot is Eddie Rio's pantomime impersonation of a girl taking a bath. Harriet Hilliard is winsome as the heroine while William Brady is the love interest opposite her.

Conrad Veidt and the beautiful new star, Vivien Leigh, come to Southern Pines Thursday and Friday, July 15th and 16th, in "Dark Journey," a thrilling and romantic drama of counter espionage in Stockholm during the World War. Veidt has a strong dramatic role as Baron von Marwitz, a German spy, torn between love and duty.

Although a neutral capital, Stockholm was a happy hunting ground for spies of all nations and is the scene of this unusual and exciting romance of two great rival espionage systems.

The period has been brilliantly recreated on the screen and authentic methods used by Europe's master spies are revealed for the first time, thanks to the co-operation of the Chief of Swedish Police, whose task it was to attempt to curtail the espionage rampant at the time.

An added attraction is another of Walt Disney's Technicolor Silly Symphonies, entitled "Little Hiawatha."

Dealing with the adventures of a millionaire playboy who never refuses a dare, and who as a result of this habit is plunged into a hot political fight against the father of the girl he loves, "You Can't Beat Love" brings Preston Foster and Joan Fontaine to Southern Pines Saturday, July 17th, at 3:00 and 8:20 p. m.

The film marks the first co-starring role for Miss Fontaine, hailed as the most promising young actress to be discovered in recent years.

The Film Daily says there are many reasons why this picture will please a lot of people: the dialogue is always bright; Joan Fontaine and Preston Foster are the sort of personalities who will go far in Hollywood; there is a certain smartness about the production; a natural swing to the action, and there is Herbert Mundin, who as a butler can battle with the best of them. It has a good deal "on the ball" particularly for those who, in the warm summer weather, look for something crisp on current cinema bills-of-fare rather than something heavy.
