SEEK TO RAISE $16,000 FOR COLORED ORPHANAGE

The Colored Orphanage of North Carolina, located at Oxford, is sponsoring a drive to raise $16,000 for the benefit of the institution which is the only one in the state for the care of colored children who are orphaned, and which is at present caring for 154 boys and girls.

Some of the main objectives of the drive are to provide funds to complete a land purchase and put the institution on a cash basis, to buy a good dairy herd, a tractor, a truck, furniture for the boys' and girls' dormitories, equipment for the school and laundry, and to provide a furnace for the girls' building.

Mrs. Edna Taylor, colored, has been appointed chairman of this drive and she is working under the supervision of the Moore County Welfare Department. Mrs. Brown, welfare superintendent, asks that all interested citizens, white and colored, support this most commendable institution and donate as liberally as possible. All contributions should be sent to Edna Taylor, Taylortown, Pinehurst.

The orphanage, which is non-denominational, was founded in 1833, and is filling a great need by caring for children, who if left alone, would have to be sent to county homes, jails, or be exploited by some unscrupulous person who wants them only for work with no pay, no care, no love or home life. Eight Moore county children are being cared for there, and are being prepared for lives of worthwhile service. The school has 150 acres of land under cultivation and all of the work on the grounds is done by the boys and girls.

Catch Man Suspected of Troy Bank Hold-Up

Wounded Fugitive Believed to Be Accomplice of Payne in Candor, Troy Robberies

Following a running gun battle near Wilmington Monday night in which a man, at first thought to be Jack Borden, alias Wash Turner, escaped North Carolina convict and fugitive companion of the State's No. 1 bad man, Bill Payne, was seriously wounded, State Highway Patrolman are conducting an extensive search for the companion of the wounded man.

Since his capture and while lying in a Wilmington hospital in a serious condition officers appear to be agreed that the wounded man is John Bowling Byrd, 38, of Durham, wanted for highway robbery in Durham and said to be a suspect in bank hold-ups at Troy and Candor—an accomplice, police said, of Bill Payne.

Whether his companion in the automobile chase gun fight was Payne or Borden, alias Turner, or some other wanted fugitive, officers are as yet uncertain. But he apparently made a clean get-away.

Patrolman Hugh Sloan was within 15 feet of the man at one time and had him at the point of surrender when he slipped into a small stream at the edge of the woods through which the chase led. When he recovered the fugitive had disappeared.

State patrolman shifted the scene of the search westward Tuesday in response to reports that the fugitive might have been the man who robbed a doctor's office in Asheboro of bandages, antiseptics and drugs.

The two men were flushed when a trap was laid in Wilmington by city police, sheriff's officers and State patrolmen in the hope of nabbing two check forgers who three days earlier had tried unsuccessfully to cash at a Wilmington bank a $1,000 draft signed with the name of Jack LeGrand, local attorney and junior partner of Federal District Attorney J. O. Carr.
