Hotels Here Report Brisk Early Season Patronage

Turner and Flynn to Agair Manage Highland Pines.—Pine Needles Popular

Southern Pines hotels, with but few exceptions, have opened for the winter season and are reporting brisk business and an unusual demand for accommodations later on during the winter. One exception is the attractive Highland Pines Inn on Weymouth Heights, which will open on December 1st under the management of Millard H. Turner and W. E. Flynn. The Inn was open during the summer this year, and closed recently for renovations.

The stately Pine Needles atop Knollwood Heights opened two weeks ago and has already entertained more guests for this season of the year than ever before in its history. This hotel, with its grass-greened 18-hole golf course, tennis courts, clubhouse for teas, suppers and dances, is becoming increasingly popular under the management of Emmett E. Boone, who also successfully manages the Howell House at Westhampton Beach, L. I., in summer. Proprietor Frank Pottle, returning from a summer spent in Jefferson Highlands, N. H., opened the Holly-wood hotel for its 25th year this week, and as usual has a good booking for the season. This popular Southern Pines hotel, ever a favorite with a clientele which has patronized the house for many years, has kept up its reputation for comfort and service.

Park View Busy

Host Charles Sadler, who operated the Park View without dining room service during the summer, resumed the full hotel service in October, and has received an encouraging patronage during the past few weeks. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Reynolds, owing to an influx of guests, opened The Jefferson earlier than usual.

Mrs. Grearson, delayed in her return to Southern Pines, opened Highland Lodge a week later than usual, on October 1st, but has had many guests, several of whom are booked for the season. Mrs. Huske of the Colonial Inn, now in its tenth year, expects the usual numbers of patrons for her homelike Inn. Frank Welch, finishing the extensive alterations and additions under way all through late summer and early fall, has transformed The Beverly into a completely modern hotel with every convenience for his patronage.

Mr. and Mrs. Hildebrand of Pine Cone Lodge, up on the hill, have had their usual number of early guests as have Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Ruggles of The Woodworth. J. Elmer Harrington will open the Southland at the usual time, a few days before Christmas, and the Mid-Pines Club will open December 26th.

The Southern Pines railroad depot is the highest point on the Seaboard Air Line Railway between Washington and Miami.

New Streamliner

Seaboard Orders Complete Seven-Car Stainless Steel All Chair-Car Train

The purchase of a new seven-car streamlined, stainless steel, all chair-car train with dining car by the Seaboard from the Budd Manufacturing Company was announced this week by L. R. Powell, Jr., Receiver. The new Seaboard streamliner will be powered by a 2,000 horsepower Diesel electric engine ordered from the Electric-Motive Corporation. This train will operate out of New York on the Florida run probably in early February, Mr. Powell said.

Three Arts Group To Have Its Own Theatre

One Play Now in Rehearsal.—Prof. Koch, U. N. C., to Read "Christmas Carol"

Celebrating the start of their second year in the Sandhills, the Three Arts Group, a county-wide organization of the younger set of the area, has acquired a theatre and work shop in the old Community Chapel, directly opposite the Holly Inn in Pinehurst, and are making plans to expand their scope over and above their last year's activities of presenting one-act plays and the sponsorship of art exhibits, to include the presentation of full-length plays, an opera and the sponsorship of lectures and recitals.

Work is now in progress cleaning out the newly acquired site, which will seat some 300 persons, and plans are being made to present Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers at Chapel Hill, in his reading of Dicken's "Christmas Carol" some time early in December. The first presentation of the members of the group will be J. B. Priestly's "Laburnam Grove," a three-act comedy that ran for a year in London with Edmund Gwenn and Melville Cooper in the leads and that later had an extended run on Broadway, in the season of 1934-35. The play is now in rehearsal and will open about December 15.

Another activity now under consideration is an art exhibit to be held, probably at the Civic Club in Southern Pines, during Christmas week.

Officers of the Three Arts Group are: Jack Lee, drama director; Cliff Blue, business manager; Betty Lee, graphic arts director; Carl Thompson, publicity director; Lucille Palmer, corresponding secretary; Eleanor Kelley, recording secretary and Dick Suggs, treasurer.

Southern Pines is the home of a large number of prominent authors and writers.
