WE SUGGEST APPRECIATION WEEK

We seem to be developing a habit of designating a whole week in celebrative style to all kinds of things. We have just come through Music Week, then there was Baby Week and Boy Scout Week and so on back through the months. With only 52 weeks in a year we will soon have to split up or combine events and celebrate in double or triple dedications, and if they pile up too fast we will have to have printed on our calendars reference data informing us what procedure we should use Monday morning. We would arouse conflicting emotions if Be Kind To Animal Week was scheduled with National Rat Week. We would sink in confusion trying to figure out whether we should spring the rat trap or ruin the day for the cat.

The governors of the Carolinas have endorsed a plan to promote Friendly Week, with the slogan "Be More Friendly with Your Neighbors, and More Friendly with Your Friends." That doesn't sound like a bad idea. Regard for our friends and respect for our neighbors won't involve us in a great deal of harm. Mutual interest from congeniality of sentiments will be a relief from hostile ill-disposed foreign notes. If the two Carolinas governors make a success of friendly week, they might see fit to extend the time and encourage its spread.

Then we might start Appreciation Week. We could launch a right successful campaign in our own village with little effort, and present one of the first bouquets to Ben Bradin and Father Williams, two men who give with enthusiasm a great deal of their spare time to the young boys of the community. Boy Scouts need an able leader. The more outstanding qualities the leader has, the greater the profit will be for the small boy. Ben Bradin is about as well fitted for the task as any man in the village. He has had years of army experience as a non-commissioned officer in the Reserves, and army training has endowed him with a certain appreciation of law and order and the habit of yielding willingly to authority and restraint.

Last Friday under the direction of Scoutmaster Bradin and Father Williams some 30 or 40 Scouts camped in a rural neighborhood some three miles east of Southern Pines. They set up their tents in military fashion for their one night out, and conducted their camp in quiet orderly manner. The feature of the episode that impressed one county resident was the spotless condition of the woods after their departure. The military man told the keen eyed observer that the army taught their men the importance of the reverse law of gravitation. In school they learned that what ever goes up is expected to come down, but in the army what goes down must come up. Neatness is a valuable bit of training not only for the soldier to learn but an important thing for the Boy Scouts and every citizen of the land.

A volunteer Scout leader accepts his job without financial remuneration. He accepts at the same time a heavy load of responsibility and he sees his own personal free moments cut almost to the zero line. It isn't every man who is fitted for such a task or do all have the ability or inclination in that direction. The Scout leader sacrifices many things in order to carry on the work imposed. The entire community should be appreciative of the men who donate so generously of their time and efforts to

The stores—most of them—were closed Wednesday afternoon. The bank, the postoffice and the municipal offices will remain open Wednesday's as usual, however, during the summer, closing as usual on Saturday afternoons.

NO PLACE FOR LENIENCY

It is lenient enough in the case of motorists convicted of driving under the influence of liquor to let them off with a fine, suspended sentence and revocation of license, considering the fact that they are the greatest menace to life and limb we have in the country.

But when one is arrested a second time for this offense, there seems to The Pilot no excuse for leniency. We find in the Moore county Recorder's Court docket this week that Henry Kellum, colored, of Pinehurst was given a 60-day sentence for drunken, careless and reckless driving, this to be suspended upon payment of a fine of $75 and the costs. His license was revoked for a year.

This, despite the fact that Kellum had been previously convicted of drunken driving.

Judge E. Earle Rives of the Municipal Court in Greensboro, who has been on the bench there for several years, has made it a hard and fast rule to send to the roads any person convicted a second time for driving under the influence of liquor. Greensboro and Guilford county, as a result, are making their streets and highways safe. Fatalities in that neck of the woods have been reduced to a minimum.

WATCH THAT BICYCLIST

Bicycling by the youths is becoming so popular in Southern Pines and other Sandhills towns that The Pilot wants to sound a warning. State papers this week have reported numerous accidents wherein children on bicycles have been run down by automobiles. Two youngsters were killed in Fayetteville; one seriously injured in Gastonia, and others elsewhere.

Keep these figures in mind when driving: 937 killed, 7,633 injured in traffic accidents in North Carolina in 1938.

177 killed, 1,485 injured during the first four months of 1939.

And it might be well also to keep this in mind:

21,760 drivers have had their licenses revoked in this state since the present law went into effect in 1935.

officials announced this week, the tags will have maroon numbers on an aluminum background.

The chain letter epidemic has started up again. Numerous residents of the Sandhills received letters this week urging them to write four duplicates, send them on to friends, and to send a quarter to the one whose name appears at the top of the letter they received. You are supposed to get a lot of money, eventually, if you do this, for your name eventually heads the list.

You may not know it, but Southern Pines has a band other than the one at the high school. The Ark school pupils, even the tiniest ones, are members, and they gave a concert last Friday, the last day of school, for parents and friends.

There's an editorial in The Pilot this week about "Weeks." Just for fun this department dug up a list of these "Weeks" during the remainder of 1938. Here they are:

MISS PETHICK DANCES IN DUKE MAY CELEBRATION

A medieval note dominated the May Day celebration held recently at Woman's college of Duke university. A pageant based on "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" was presented for the queen and her court who wore picturesque satin gowns, peaker hats and wimples. Special music for the occasion had been composed by Henry A. Bruinsma, of the Duke music department. Approximately 100 students took part in the celebration.

Among them was Miss Sylvia Pethick, of Southern Pines, who was a member of the chorus of dancers. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pethick, she attended the Shanghai American school in Shanghai, China, before entering Duke where she is a member of the rising junior class. Miss Pethick also attended Sweet Briar College. She is a member of Sigma Kappa, national academic sorority.
