A WELCOME TO MR. TOBACCO MAN

It wasn't so many years ago that Aberdeen boasted an annual sale of five million pounds of tobacco or more on the floors of its warehouses. Then more markets sprung up, bigger towns spent large sums of money promoting their markets, more warehouses were built here and there, and Aberdeen felt the competition of bigger places.

But throughout it all, Aberdeen has maintained a reputation for fair dealing, for high quality of tobacco, for good prices. And with this year's mammoth crop in this section of a state which has grown some three-quarters of a billion pounds, Aberdeen expects to return to the heyday of its career in the tobacco industry. It has set a goal of five million pounds, and there is every reason to believe it will reach it, possibly surpass it.

There appears to be no reason on this year why a farmer should travel greater distance than is necessary to sell his leaf. The prices are not varying enough on the various markets to make up the difference in transportation costs. Aberdeen prices will be as good as others, on the average. So, Mr. Neighborhood Farmer, don't load up and drive the truck away off to some other market when your net return will be just as good, maybe better, right here at home.

Aberdeen will have two warehouses, ably manned, with a full set of buyers. Its citizens will give you a cheerful welcome. Its shops will have attractive offerings if you care to patronize them while you are in town. Its neighboring towns, Pinehurst and Southern Pines, will be glad to welcome you and show you what has made them famous the world over as winter resorts.

The tobacco season opens here on Monday. Come see us.

WHAT ABOUT THE WINTER SEASON?

How will the war affect the winter season in the Sandhills? This question has been heard on all sides during the past week. And the answers have ranged from deep pessimism to bright prospects.

With European travel cut off, there is bound to be a flow of people who can afford winter vacations and who can get away from their labors to resorts in this country. This point is well taken. On the other side is the fact that any prolonged war will boom industry, keeping people busy this winter militating against winter travel. We gain on the one hand, lose on the other.

Much, of course, will depend upon how long the United States will maintain strict observance of the present neutrality law or how long before Congress may revise that law. A boom in the war industries—steel, oil, airplanes, shipbuilding, tools, etc.—caused by orders from abroad should we permit trade with warring nations would end depression. In time that would react to the benefit of resorts in this country; people would soon have money to spend. But it is doubtful if this winter will see this come to pass. Neutrality will be observed at the start.

There seems to be a feeling in Washington that Congress will approve a change in the neutrality law to permit sales of any type of goods to those nations that can pay cash and carry

Ruggles Tells Rotary of Resettlement Work

Transplanting Farmers from Bad To Productive Land Has Proven Success, He says

John Ruggles, native of Southern Pines and now a resident of Raleigh, talked informally about his work with the Farm Resettlement Administration at Friday's regular Rotary luncheon. He was presented to the club by Garland Pierce, in charge of the program.

Mr. Ruggles said that once in his life he chewed tobacco to make himself sick so that he wouldn't have to make a talk in high school, and that only the memory of how sick he really got would cause him to do other than chat about his work and what the FRA was trying to do. His own particular work, Mr. Ruggles stated, was that of head of the Regional Contract and Purchase department. He outlined some of the things that had been accomplished in Hoffman by the FRA, as well as other projects in this state. The most important accomplishment, he thought, was that of removing farmers from sub-marginal land, land that would grow nothing, to land and surroundings which would give them a new start in life.

Corporal W. B. Kelly of the State Highway Patrol will speak at the Rotary Club this Friday on "Simple Rules for Safety on the Highways"

MAXWELL, SENTENCED FOR ATTACK ON FAMILY, APPEALS

W. G. Maxwell, white, of Carthage, charged with being drunk and disorderly, with assaulting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Marshall Phillips, with a gun and with threatening to take the life of his wife, was in Recorder's Court Monday given 18 months on the roads.

It was ordered that he be examined by a competent physician as to his mental condition before being sent to the road camp, and that if the physician so advises, he be sent to the State Hospital in Raleigh to be kept until released by authorities there.

He gave notice of appeal to Superior Court and bond was fixed at $1,000.

Grains of Sand

The Utica (N. Y.) Daily Press suggests that the President change New Year's Eve to another night as it is embarrassing to hiccup in the middle of one's good resolutions.

Another First for North Carolina: The R. J. Reynolds Company of Winston-Salem spent the most money for newspaper advertising during 1938, a total of $6,553,447.

We'll let you figure out for yourself how many packages of Camels that represents.

Liggett & Myers were second with $5,646,153, and General Motors third with $5,131,475.

The Sanford Herald outdid itself this week with a swell 48-page Farm and Market Edition. We congratulate the publisher, "Bill" Horner, newly elected president of the North Carolina Press Association.

School days are here again, just in case you're wondering why it's so quiet around the house.

Weigh a cigarette and see how man you think this year's billion-pound crop of tobacco will make.

A correspondent has sent in a page torn from a book catalogue, in which "Powder River" is listed as "by Smithers Burt."

"Thought the name was Smothers Burt," was pencilled in the margin.

Dante Montesanti is convinced it pays to advertise in The Pilot. From a special rug cleaning ad which appeared two weeks ago the Montesanti shop received rugs not only from Sandhills home but from four northern cities.

Southern Pines had two enthusiastic visitors in Helen and Margaret Huttenhauer, the latter now Mrs. Glen, who spent a couple of days in the village after an absence of over 25 years. The present home of Mrs. Carlton Wicker was built by their father, John Huttenhauer, who also operated on the hill one of the most successful peach orchards in the early days of Southern Pines. The family moved to Relasterstown, Md., after the sale of the property to G. C. Abraham around 1913.

It's the old story of sand in your shoes. The Huttenhaurs have kept a warm interest in the town and its development and the desire to return could not be repressed or forgotten until a trip was arranged that brought some of them back. Needless to say they found many changes but the things they remembered as outstanding factors of childhood stood with the same charm and quality.

it away in their own bottoms. With a predominant Anglo-French sentiment here it is not likely that we will long handi-our allies of 1917 by forbidding sale of needed war materials.

It's anybody's guess what is in store for the Sandhills this season.

Miss McDonald Hostess To County Officials

Home Demonstration Agent Shows Them New Kitchen and Serves Luncheon

"Wasn't that a good dinner?" This exclamation—such it was for there was no "question" about it—vied with war conversation for first place in the court house Tuesday morning, and the dinner to which reference was made was a luncheon served by Miss Flora McDonald, home demonstration agent, in her office Monday at noon.

It was not a demonstration affair put on at county expense or anything of that kind, but a luncheon given by Miss McDonald, individually, to give county officials and a few others a chance to see the new kitchen that has recently been built and equipped in her office, and the new shelves that have been added for taking care of the many bulletins which she keeps for free distribution and the books of the home demonstration club library.

Vases of gorgeous dahlias, zinnias and marigolds were attractively arranged throughout the room and these with the green and white draperies added a pleasing home-like touch to the office. Small tables were arranged for the guests.

Following the delicious luncheon, W. H. Currie asked Mrs. J. R. Page of Aberdeen to express the thanks of the group to Miss McDonald, which she did graciously.

The new kitchen, which will be of great value in the co-king demonstrations held in the office, will serve, also, as a model for the farm women to work toward. It is equipped with electric stove and water heater, which rural electrification makes it possible for the average farm woman to enjoy, a sink and spacious built-in cabinets.

Those enjoying Miss McDonald's hospitality were the county commissioners, W. H. Currie, W. J. Dunlap, L. R. Reynolds, T. F. Cameron and Gordon Cameron; the county welfare board, Mrs. Lessie Brown, Mrs. J. R. Page and John Currie; Judge J. Vance Rowe, Solicitor Leland McKeithen, Sheriff C. J. McDonald, County Superintendent H. Lee Thomas, Tax Collector W. T. Huntley, County Agent E. H. Garrison, Jr., Miss Beas McCaskill, register of deeds; County Attorney S. R. Hoyt, Mrs. Lee Comer, president of the county council of home demonstration clubs; Mrs. P. H. McDonald, Mrs. S. R. Smith and J. Vance Rowe, Jr.

Assisting in serving were Misses Olive McDonald, Helena Morgan and Gertrude Lamb.
