Theatre

In Pinehurst
The official opening of the Pinehurst Theatre for the winter season takes place this Sunday and Monday, November 17, 18, with a Monday matinee, with the very "happy" attraction, "One Night In The Tropics," in which Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, radio comedians whose popularity on the air lanes has been something of a sensation during the past year or two, are seen and heard here for the first time on the screen, and they look as funny as they sound. Other featured players are Allan Jones, Nancy Kelly, Robert Cummings, Peggy Moran, Mary Boland, Leo Carillo, Don Alvarado and Richard Carle. The story is adapted from Earl Derr Biggers' story "Love Insurance." Five Jerome Kern musical numbers are sung by Jones and Company. For 82 minutes this rollicking comedy will keep you in a state of hilarity, and while Allan Jones, Nancy Kelly and Robert Cummings carry their share of the fun in commendable fashion it is highly probable that Abbott and Costello will account for most of the laughs clocked in any audience.

The attraction for Pinehurst, Wednesday, November 20th at 3:00 and 8:30 is the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Gallant Sons," featuring Ian Hunter, Gail Patrick, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville and June Preisser, and produced by George Seitz, who is responsible for the "Hardy Family" series.

One of the greatest stage successes of past years, was "The Letter" in which Jeanne Eagles made her fame. This is now adapted for the screen starring Bette Davis, and is considered her greatest role to date. At Pinehurst Friday, November 22d at 3:00 and 8:30.

In Southern Pines
The attraction at the Southern Pines Theatre Monday and Tuesday, November 18, 19, at 8:15 with a matinee Tuesday at 3:00 is the adaptation of Kenneth Roberts' famous novel, "Captain Caution," (Roberts also wrote "Northwest Passage") which is described by one critic as "the fightingest, sailingest, slashingest and dashingest maritime melodrama of its kind in the memory of ye oldest resident." The period is 1812, with the war of that year in progress and in the story but not the main point thereof, Hero of the adventure is Victor Mature, playing a Yankee Sailor in love but out of favor with Louise Platt, owner of the ship. Bruce Cabot, Leo Carillo, Robert Barrat, Vivienne Osborne, El Brendel, Roscoe Ates, Pat O'Malley and Ann Codee are members of the large and extremely active supporting cast.

Brooks Williamson of Carthage Route 1 and Myrtle Lucena Hardister of Carthage; J. D. Kernodle, Jr., of Graham and Sadie Winstead of Southern Pines.

The attraction at Southern Pines Wednesday and Thursday, November 20, 21, with a Thursday matinee is Ben Hecht's "Angels Over Broadway," which is described as about the finest specimen of screen writing in some years. Starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and with a magnificent supporting cast consisting of Thomas Mitchell, Rita Hayworth and John Qualen, it is one of those rare pictures to recommend to friends, family and favorite relatives. For this is a picture apart from the crowd.

Faithful to Al Capp's United Features comic strip, "Li'l Abner" is the attraction at the Southern Pines Theatre Friday and Saturday, November 22, 23, with a Saturday matinee. "Li'l Abner" brings to the screen Al Capp's comic strip in terms of the newspaper cartoon, rather than of the motion picture. Its dialogue and plot are virtually lifted from the strip and players, unknown for the most part, enact their roles in the way the artist visualized them and not in the manner of actors giving their interpretation of what the strip's creator had in mind.

Granville Owen in the title role and Martha O'Driscoll as "Daisy Mae" head the cast which includes Mona Ray, Buster Keaton, Walter Catlett and others. The story of "Li'l Abner" deals with the efforts of "Daisy Mae" to marry the boy, winding up with "Sadie Hawkins Day," traditional "dogpatch" institution in which unmarried women vie for the hands of the bachelors in a foot race.
