THEATRES

The Carolinas

It seems that those Hollywood Unions, who are striking against each other, are much more stubborn than John L. Lewis, as they doubtless think the public can get along without their screen entertainment, until they decide which of them should use a certain type of monkey wrench and which should not pick it up, resulting in throwing it into the entire machinery to stop everything, while the Producers can only stand idly by while they scrap it out.

Consequently, the Carolina Theatres have had to choose between either closing or bringing back some worth-while pictures and the latter has been chosen.

However, at the Pinehurst Theatre, Sunday Night, December 15th, and at the Carolina Theatre Southern Pines, Wednesday thru. Saturday, Dec. 18-21, one pre-release production has been secured in "Wake Up And Dream," in Technicolor, starring June Haver and John Payne, with Charlotte Greenwood, Connie Marshall and others in support.

Based on Robert Nathan's novel "The Enchanted Voyage" it is a delightful study of the faith of a small child—Connie Marshall — interspersed with some hit tunes by June Haver and John Payne and seasoned with Clem Bevans' eccentricities and Charlotte Greenwood's sarcasms providing laughs.

At the Pinehurst Theatre Wednesday night, December 18, at 8:30, M-G-M's laugh-fest, "Easy To Wed," starring Van Johnson, Esther Williams, Keenan Wynn, Lucille Ball and Ben Blue, is returning to the Sandhills. This is a lavishly mounted musical remake of "Labeled Lady" which has some of the most magnificent Technicolor yet seen; the musical numbers are easy to listen to, the dances pleasant to watch and the dialogue most amusing.

At the Pinehurst Theatre, Friday Night, December 17, at 8:30 another M-G-M hit returns to the Sandhills in "Three Wise Fools," starring little Margaret O'Brien, Lewis Stone, Lionel Barrymore and Edward Arnold.

At the Carolina Theatre, Southern Pines, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, December 15-17, at 8:15 p. m. with a Tuesday Matinee at 3:00, that memorable production, which is good enough for an annual return engagement anywhere, "The Bells Of St. Mary" with Bing Crosby, Ingrid Bergman and many others, will grace the screen.

Sunrise

"Bowery Bombshell" is expected to bring a film load of laughs and fast adventure to the screen of the Sunrise theatre Sunday and Monday. Starring Leo Gorcey and featuring Huntz Hall, Bobby Jordan, Billy Benedict and David Gorcey, the newest Bowery Boys comedy drama promises more of their hilarious entertainment.

Huntz Hall is photographed by street photographer Teala Loring while in the background bandits are making their getaway from a bank. Newspapers print the picture showing Hall with the bandits and they accuse the Bowery Boy of being one of the bank robbers. The mob really responsible for the hold-up take advantage of the newspapers' error and blame the bank theft on another gang. In order to catch the culprits, Gorcey and the Boys pretend they are the rival mob which leads to a bang-up finish.

Headed by the Bowery Boys, the cast also includes Teala Loring, Sheldon Leonard, Dawn Kennedy, James Burke, Vince Barnett, Wee Willie Davis, William Ruhl, Emmett Vogan, Bernard Gorcey, Milton Parsons, Lester Dorr, William Newell and Eddie Dunn. Phil Karlson directed the comedy drama coproduced by Lindsley Parsons and Jan Grippo. Edward Kay was the musical director of the original screenplay written by Edmond Seward with additional dialogue by Tim Ryan.
