

Garrison Plans Meetings For Study Of Blue Mold And Insect Control

College Men To Aid In War On Tobacco Bed Foes

By E. H. Garrison, Jr. County Agent

Next Wednesday, March 15, we hope to hold two countywide meetings on blue mold and insect control on tobacco beds. At this time we expect to have some of the State men from the college to put this on for us. It will be impossible to cover the whole county with a series of meetings, so we are going to try to get by with two big meetings.

The first of these will be held at the farm of Tom Evans near Union church. This plant bed is right near the highway. If the weather permits, the meeting will start around 9:30 in the morning. The afternoon meeting at 2 p. m. will be held at the bed of John Thompson near the old Bunker Hill peach orchard. This place is three miles on this side of West End on the road from West End toward Eastwood.

These men from the college will bring along with them the latest information on spraying and dusting and the control of insects on the beds. Since we had such bad luck last year with tobacco plants, we are trying to get the best and latest information to our growers as soon as possible. Please try to get this word around to your neighbors or anyone else who may be interested.

There is a good bit of equipment on the market now for this type of work. Some will be satisfactory and some may not be. The main thing is to get the spray material on so that you get complete coverage and keep it on. Unless this is properly done and done at the right time, there just isn't much use of doing it at all.

Letters of instructions have been mailed to all growers this week. Please keep this information handy. If for any reason you did not get one, we shall be glad to mail this to you; or, if you will stop by our office we shall be glad to give you this information.

Be sure to watch out for flea bugs. I am afraid that these may be doing some damage.

GUEST SPEAKER

Guest speaker at the Lenten service to be held Wednesday night, March 15, at 7:30 o'clock at Emmanuel Episcopal church will be the Rev. David Yates of the Church of the Cross, Chapel Hill, the Rev. Charles V. Covell has announced. The public is invited to hear him.

Scenes of Fatal Accidents To Be Marked In Red

Beginning March 13, red numerals in red circles will be used on the highways of the state to mark scenes of fatal accidents. Col. C. R. Tolar, commander of the Highway Patrol, reported today. The numerals will be three feet high.

The new project was conceived in line with the Department of Motor Vehicles' continuing program to combat highway fatalities.

"Something has got to be done about this senseless slaughter on the highways," Col. Tolar stated, after 15 persons were killed over the past week end in traffic accidents.

Following approval of the idea by Dr. H. W. Jordan, chairman of the Highway and Public Works Commission, Col. Tolar sent out instructions to patrol sergeants to have red circles with numerals, representing lives lost, stenciled on the highways in their districts at the point of each fatal accident. Where fatal accidents occur in a curve, the red circles will be placed on the approaches to the curve with an arrow pointing to the accident spot.

Some plan for marking sites of fatal accidents on dirt roads will be worked out at a later date, Col. Tolar said.

The circled numerals will be used on the open highways only, but Col. Tolar was hopeful that cities will cooperate in the plan by using the same system for marking places of traffic deaths in municipalities.

Bishop Sherrill Makes Radio Address Sunday

The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, will make a radio address Sunday on the furthering of general aid toward providing food, clothing and medicine to unfortunate people in war-ravished countries. Bishop Sherrill's address, one of the Episcopal church's contributions to this cause, is being directed to all Americans.

The time of the broadcast will be from 11:30 to 11:45 a. m., and will take the place of the usual sermon at many churches in all areas served by the Mutual network. Station WEEB will include the address as a part of the regular morning worship service that will be broadcast from Emmanuel church in Southern Pines this Sunday. Bishop Sherrill will speak from New York.

Stamp Collectors Invited To Meet

Stamp collectors of the Sandhills are invited to gather in the reception room of the Southern Pines High school next Friday night, March 17, at 7:30 to discuss the organization of a club. The call is for collectors to bring their collecting friends and stamps for trading and spend a pleasant evening with fellow hobbyists. The meeting was planned by a group of local collectors.

Are You On Delivery Route?

Here are the blocks listed on the city carrier routes on which mail delivery is scheduled to start Thursday in Southern Pines.

Check your street and block number, to see if you are on a route. If you are, and have not notified Postmaster A. Garland Pierce what type of service you wish, you are asked to do so during the coming week.

He has to know, before those new postmen swing those new mail pouches over their shoulders and start out on the routes next Thursday.

CLIP AND PASTE DEPARTMENT—Other Towns Have Their Troubles Too

From the Kingsport (Tenn.) Journal.

Our neighboring city of Johnson City has just given the people of certain sections outside the corporate limits of the city an opportunity to say whether or not they would like to be included within the city limits. The residents of those areas turned down the invitation with an emphatic no, thank you.

That is the privilege of the people who lived in those areas. No one can quarrel with them for the way they voted. If they felt that they would get nothing or very little more in services, in return for paying city taxes, they were only being sensibly selfish.

But the story does illustrate a current American problem, which is, just what is the meaning of "city limits" in these modern days? Certainly the meaning is not at all what it used to be. The fact that the city limits could not at all be recognized nowadays without sign posts is significant.

There was a time when there was a sharp distinction between the people who lived in the city and the people who lived in the country. City people had a great many advantages which the country people did not enjoy. They traveled on paved streets; they had sanitation and public utilities; while the country people traveled dirt roads, used lamp light and lived close to nature. City people could take advantage of job opportunities—offered by manufacturing plants, stores and offices, which were cut off from country people. They had access to amusement and entertainment.

Nowadays, all this is changed. Modern conveniences and methods of transportation have extended the benefits of civilization beyond the confines of the cities.

The people who live in the country, therefore, are able to work in the city, draw their income from the city, live on just as fine a scale as city people and enjoy added attractions that country living gives.

Thus we have two masses of people, one living on either side of an arbitrary and imaginary line, both benefitting from a way of life made possible through the growth of a city, but with only one of them paying the cost of maintaining the city government and operation.

It is no wonder, therefore, that as long as the handicaps of living outside the city are largely removed, people more and more prefer to build their homes outside the city and more and more of those inside the city decide to cross over. Why not? They make no sacrifice to speak of, but they immediately get out from under the obligation of paying city taxes.

But this is logic that is relentless. Because if it is plainly sensible for John Jones to move out and stop paying city taxes, it is just as sensible for Joe Doaks and all the rest of the people to go and do likewise. Naturally no one expects any mass exodus from the city, but the movement can be so pronounced that the sources of tax revenue in the city may shrink, and the maintenance of the city's operation force either a too heavy burden on the taxpayers, or a curtailment of the services. That is not good for either the in-side or the out-side.

The distinction that used to exist between "city resident" and "country resident" could have been stated with as great a degree of truth as between "city worker" and "country worker," because by and large, resident and worker were synonymous. The picture has changed because that is no longer true. The city resident and the country resident may both be city workers.

But the tax is on the "resident," not the "worker." It is not practical for cities to tax income. It must put a tax on property. Therefore, we find a very great inequity, and the only way to remedy this, apparently, is to extend the city limits. This in turn cannot be done if the people outside do not feel a sense of financial responsibility for the maintenance of the city which gives them the living. It is no wonder that in some places the in-side group is suggesting that the limits line be made more of a reality as it used to be.

Roman Totenberg, Violinist, To Give Repeat Performance At Pinehurst

Roman Totenberg, brilliant young violinist, will be the attraction at the Pinehurst Forum meeting at the Pinehurst Country club Thursday, March 16. This will be a repeat performance of the artist, as he appeared under auspices of the Forum during last year's series.

The program for the recital, at which Mr. Totenberg will have Hans Neuman at the piano as accompanist, will comprise the Sonata in A Major by Franck; the Slavonic Dance in E Minor by Dvorak-Kreisler; Kreisler's Praeludium and Allegro in the style of Pugnani; the Rumanian Dance by Bartok; Caprice No. 24 by Paganini; Cuitarre by Moszkowski-Sarasate; Habanera by Ravel and the Dance from "La Vida Breve" of DeFalla-Kreisler.

Roman Totenberg, who is only 36 years of age, made his debut in his native Poland with the Warsaw Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in 1925. After continuing his studies under Carl Flesch in Berlin and George Enesco in Paris he played in all the major capitals of Europe before he came to the United States. He made his first appearance in this country as soloist with the National Symphony in Washington, D. C. in 1935. An American citizen since 1943, he has been soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Cleveland Symphony, the National Symphony and New York City Center Orchestras and has appeared in recitals at the Library of Congress Chamber Music Concerts, at the White House and at Carnegie Hall in New York.

Barbecue To Benefit Moore County Hospital

According to all reports, progress is really being made in the preparation of the big barbecue to be held in West End, Friday, March 10 beginning at 5:30 p. m. Tickets have been sold far and wide. "Tis said that folks who meet up with E. P. (Red) Hinson, the publicity chairman, can't get away until they buy tickets and that no effort is being spared to make this event the biggest and best of its kind. The work is being donated as well as everything else, so far as possible, and all the proceeds will be turned over to the Moore County Hospital building fund.

After the dinner has been served, there will be a benefit bridge party in the Hinson building where the Delite shop was formerly located. The proceeds of this will go to the hospital also. Invitations have been issued to the public to come to West End, eat barbecue, then play their favorite card game with experts.

SYMPHONY TICKET SALE

An advance sale of tickets for the North Carolina Symphony concert on May 3 will go on sale at the Hollywood hotel March 14 at the Sandhills Music association's second musical evening of the year. The sale will be to Association members first, then to the public.

CARD OF THANKS

To all my friends: may I say Thank you, for all the cards, gifts, and flowers I received while in the hospital. Sincerely,
