"Municipal Planning For Small City" Is Subject of Article By Van Camp

The advantages of orderly planning for municipal improvements are clearly set forth in an article by Paul Van Camp, of Southern Pines, in the July issue of Public Works, a national magazine.

The article, "A Municipal Plan for a Small City," deals with such a plan as set up and now being followed in Whiteville, a North Carolina town of some 3,800 population.

Illustrations showing details of Whiteville's new water plant, one of the improvements secured under the planning system, were made by Donald L. Madigan, of Southern Pines.

Whiteville's municipal plan, says Mr. Van Camp, came as a result of postwar needs, when the town found that its municipal facilities had failed to keep up with its growth. Much needed to be done—but which project should come first, how it was all to be financed and how it could best be built on the existing structure, the city fathers found hard to solve.

Their plan, with which Mr. Van Camp assisted, consisted in the preparation of a base map, repeated in reproductions which showed different essential features of past history, current requirements and future needs. Most of the information on the maps was available in various forms, or in the heads of longtime city officials or employees; coordinated, it formed a working basis for the setting of goals.

In the intervening years much of the work has been done, with new water and sewer projects as the highlights of accomplishment. How these were built in adaptation to existing conditions is graphically explained by the author.

$100,000 SUIT

A $100,000 damage suit has been filed against the Seaboard Air Line railroad by the estate of William J. Bruton, of Jackson Springs, in Federal District court at Columbia, S. C.

The suit is the third in this amount to be filed arising from a three-death grade crossing collision in South Carolina last October 29. Bruton, Walter H. Smith of Columbia and James Roy Thompson of Greenville were killed when their car came into collision with the Seaboard's Silver Meteor.

The Bruton suit lists 12 counts of negligence against the railroad.

Dr. Whitehead, Optometrist, Moves Offices

Dr. David W. Whitehead, optometrist, is moving his office this week from the Hart building (upstairs) to the South Broad street office in the Belvedere Hotel building, recently vacated by the Town Shop.

The new office has an entrance directly on Broad street. It is ready for business today (September 1).

Dr. Whitehead came to Southern Pines last October and for a time was associated with his brother, Dr. Philip M. Whitehead in the practice of optometry. Dr. Philip Whitehead, who also had an office in Rockingham, has since moved there.

They are two of five brothers who are all practicing optometrists. All are graduates of the Northern Illinois College of Optometry at Kansas City, Mo. The other three brothers are located at Fayetteville, Kansas City and Troy.

Dr. Whitehead is a veteran of four years of Army service with the field artillery during World War 2.

NINTH POLIO

The 1950 polio count for Moore went up to nine this week as Doris Jean Medlin, aged four, of Cameron, Rt. 1, was reported to be a victim. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Medlin.

The little girl became ill August 17, according to a report received by the county health department. Delay with the report was occasioned by the fact that her tests were made at Lee County hospital rather than in her home county. She was transferred to the Central Carolina Polio Center at Greensboro.

Paul C. Butler, chairman of the Moore County chapter, Infantile Paralysis Foundation, said her case is reportedly a light one.

WEAVER TO SPEAK

Philip J. Weaver, superintendent of the Southern Pines schools, will be the speaker at the 11 o'clock worship service at Brownson Memorial Presbyterian church this Sunday morning.

The church, which has been without a pastor for a month, has had guest speakers to fill the pulpit from time to time. Chaplain Frank Thompson conducted the service last Sunday.

CARTHAGE BUSINESS CHARTERED

The Carthage Housing corporation was chartered this week by Secretary of State Thad Eure to carry on a real estate business. Three shares each of 100 shares of authorized capital stock (no par value) were subscribed by W. D. Sabiston, Jr., Thelma Sabiston and Ola McLeod, all of Carthage.

TEACHERS TO MEET

Teachers in the Southern Pines schools will start their school year Tuesday, with a meeting in preparation for the opening of school the following morning.

All teachers are expected to attend the meeting, to be held at 3 p.m. in the elementary school library, said Supt. P. J. Weaver.

West Southern Pines teachers will meet at their school at the same time.

Carthage Truck & Implement Co. In New Building

10,500 Square Feet of Floor Space For Growing Concern

The Carthage Truck and Implement company, which has been doing business at the county seat for some five years, moved this week into its huge new building built directly in front of the old.

The new headquarters is not yet complete, said Haynes Britt, general manager, and work will continue as business goes on, on the 10,500 square feet of new floor space.

The Carthage Truck and Implement company is headquarters for Moore county and parts of Montgomery and Hoke for the sale of the famous International Harvester line of farm equipment and machinery. The line also includes heavy appliances such as refrigerators and deep-freeze units.

A full line of hardware, paint and other farm needs is also carried. Work yet to be done in the building includes the installing of shelves for these stocks along one side of the big building. Though all construction (brick, steel and cinderblock with concrete floor) is fire resistant, a modern sprinkler system is to be installed. Heating will be by oil.

The building is divided into four departments: showroom, parts, building supplies and hardware, and garage. It has a "full-view" front display window on Monroe street. The lot goes back to Barrett street, on which the old building, now to be used for storage purposes, is located.

Haynes Britt, of Southern Pines, president of Pinehurst Warehouses, Inc., at Pinehurst, and general manager of both businesses, said this week, "We of the Carthage Truck and Implement company deeply appreciate the patronage which has made this growth and development possible. Our new facilities will enable us to give even better service to our friends on the farms and in the towns of the area."

He listed his personnel as follows:

C. L. Hensley, assistant manager; Charles Underwood, parts manager; Clinton Campbell, sales manager; William Maness, hardware department manager; Leonard Lawhon, farm machinery and truck salesman; manager and truck salesman; Dewey Ritter, bookkeeper; Charlie Roberts, Ray Hensley and Robert Dowd, mechanics; Clyde Blue, Nathaniel Blue, Fred Shipman and Chris Floyd, truck drivers and mechanic helpers.

The Ark Opens September 25

The Ark, Southern Pines, a country day and boarding school for girls and boys, will open on Monday, September 25, according to an announcement by its principal, Mrs. Millicent A. Hayes.

The Ark offers a complete elementary course through the eighth grade, giving thorough preparation for entrance to leading schools. Piano, art, needlework, crafts, tennis, basketball and all playground games are offered.

For children four to six years of age The Ark has a kindergarten and reading readiness group.

Mrs. Brown's School Opening September 25

Preparations are being made at the home of Mrs. R. P. Brown, at Manly, for the reopening of her private school for boys and girls Monday, September 25.

Kindergarten and first grade work are offered. Transportation is furnished if desired. Further information should be secured from Mrs. Brown at her home.

PIXY POTATOES

Harold M. Fowler, police desk sergeant, thought he was planting Idaho potatoes last spring, but now he's wondering if it wasn't some pixy vegetable.

He's digging up some pixilated specimens, out of his hills—potatoes with little potatoes growing out of them, like heads, arms, legs or wings. They look like strange animals—or people.

His seed potatoes were some which had been thrown out of the back of Baker's Food store, as some of them had spoiled. Mr. Fowler let the spoiled ones alone, cut the eyes out of the good ones and planted them.

No matter what the y look like, he says, they still taste like Idahoes.

FOOTBALL CLINIC

Invitations have been sent to 50 or more high school coaches to attend the first statewide six-man football clinic for North Carolina, which will be held here next Friday and Saturday, September 8 and 9.

The invitations were issued by L. J. (Chap) Perry, of Chapel Hill, executive secretary of the N. C. High School Athletic association, which is sponsoring the clinic. Coaches of all high schools having six-man football as a regular part of their athletic program, and also to others who have shown interest in establishing the game at their schools.

Any other interested coaches or principals are welcome, he said. Experts in the game will discuss all phases of it at the clinic, showing how to get it started, what equipment is needed, how to tackle financing problems and—most important of all—how to teach it. Southern Pines gridders will give demonstration scrimmages.

Aberdeen Man Injured As Truck, Engine Hit

K. M. Garner, Jr., 24, of Aberdeen is in Moore County hospital with a concussion and painful wounds as the result of a truck-locomotive collision near West End Tuesday afternoon noon.

Garner, a Marine veteran of World War 2, was driving a load of sand from a sandpit to a siding when the big dump truck collided with a Norfolk Southern engine approaching from West End.

The truck, loaded with about 15 tons of sand, was whirled sideways and dragged along the track, then fell over on its side. Both truck and locomotive were considerably damaged.

Garner was rushed to the hospital on a pickup truck by fellow employees, six of whom sat in a row and held the injured man on their laps.

The accident occurred at a temporary crossing at the top of a grade, near the pit which is being worked by the Bryan Rock and Sand company of Raleigh.

Moore County TB Group Is Chartered

The recently formed Moore County Tuberculosis Association, Inc., received its charter of incorporation this week from Secretary of State Thad Eure. It succeeds the former unincorporated organization of which Mrs. T. A. Cheatham of Pinehurst was chairman for 20 years.

Officers and incorporators of the non-stock corporation are W. C. Scoggins, Robbins, president; Mrs. J. Talbot Johnson, Aberdeen, first vice - president; the Rev. J. R. Funderburke, Southern Pines, second vice president; Dr. T. A. Cheatham, Pinehurst, treasurer.

Incorporation will enable the association to conduct its affairs in a more businesslike manner, with assured continuity from year to year enabling it to receive bequests and perform other functions not within the scope of an unincorporated group. A constitution and by-laws have been drawn up.

The 1950 corn crop in North Carolina is estimated at 78,516,000 bushels as of August 1. Average per-acre yield is estimated at 36 bushels, highest on record.

TRAGEDY

A tragedy at the Curtis Deese home on Carthage, Rt. 2, Saturday afternoon resulted in the death of 15-month-old Linda Kay Deese, as she ran into the path of the family car, which her father was backing out of the yard.

A wheel passed over the child's head. She was rushed to Moore County hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival. Coroner Hugh P. Kelly rendered a verdict of accidental death.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Red Branch church, with burial in the church cemetery. The parents and several brothers and sisters survive.

With The Armed Forces

Cpl. Peter Myers, 21, sailed this week with a U. S. Marine Corps unit from Los Angeles for Korea. "Pete," who served as a merchant seaman and also as a Marine in World War 2, came to Southern Pines in 1948 to make his home with his sister, Mrs. Lois Beauregard. He graduated in June of that year from the Southern Pines High school, and was employed for a time by the H. L. Brown agency. He then went back to sea, then returned to the Marine Corps and for the past year has been stationed at Camp LeJeune. He was in charge of typewriters and office equipment but recently has been given a refresher in combat training.

First Lieut. William J. Wilson, of 565 North Ashe street, is attending the Associate Basic course at Fort Bliss, Texas.

He will receive instruction in light and heavy gunnery, communications, radar, tactics and methods of instruction during the 14-week course.

Lieut. Wilson first entered military service in 1943 and served in the European Theatre of Operations, where he participated in 25 missions with the Eighth Air Force and was awarded the Air Medal with five clusters.

He is commander of the Moore County battery of the N. C. National Guard.

few years has been busy at home, what with the advent, first, of little Miss Joanna Christine Hall, then of little Miss Mary Reid Hall.

In the new cafeteria, located in the basement of the auditorium building, Mrs. Hall will have the most modern equipment for the preparation and serving of hot meals to the children.

The 1950-51 student body will have the benefit of one of the finest and most complete public school plants in North Carolina, all of postwar construction except the high school building. The elementary school, considered a model for the state, embodies the best in school architecture and construction. The splendid new gymnasium was completed last winter, and the classically beautiful auditorium in time for the 1950 commencement events.

The three handsome buildings, in a row facing East Massachusetts avenue, represent an investment of approximately $330,000.

Part of the funds came from the county, and part from bond issues voted by citizens of the Southern Pines school district.

The new elementary classrooms will be financed by funds from the county up to $25,000, supplemented by state bond issue funds, according to the general plan okayed by the State Board of Education. Delays in starting the construction were occasioned, first, by a whittling-down process to fit skyrocketing costs into fund limitations, then by a shortage of steel. The necessary steel has now been located after an arduous hunt, Mr. Weaver said.

The West Southern Pines school auditorium, also a part of the state-approved plan, is still in the blueprint stage. It will probably be advertised next month, with construction due to start well before the snow flies.

for old buses, due to be delivered this summer, have not yet arrived, nor have four new buses being purchased by the state. When completed, the school fleet will total 84 buses.

Mr. Griffin said a full detail of school bus drivers has been certified, along with a number of substitute drivers. All have passed both road and classroom tests. Most of them are high school juniors or seniors, with a sprinkling of adult drivers.
