Imagine Driving Without It

Driving a car without a license is like operating a business without a license—strictly illegal.

To get a license to drive you must show that you know the safety rules of the road... and must have a satisfactory driving record free from arrests for serious traffic violations.

And, by the same token, to obtain a license in the beer industry a retailer must meet a number of strict qualifications. He must be financially responsible. He must not only have a "clean" record for obeying the law but must keep his record clean. If he does not maintain a clean, orderly establishment, or if he allows unruliness or sells to minors, he is violating the law. And his license is revoked accordingly.

Working with other police officers, the Malt Beverage Division of the North Carolina ABC Board carefully checks all retail beer outlets for any violation of the law. The beer industry is in hearty accord with this enforcement program... which helps the industry keep its best foot forward at all times in your community.
