

THINKS CAROLINA

A warm, intensely human and captivating drama of a little boy's adventures in New York's Coney Island, which is one of the finest independent pictures of the year, and which has already won a Silver Lion Award at this year's Venice Film Festival and has received spreads in Life and other national magazines, is the special film, "Little Fugitive," which is opening at the Carolina Theatres, Pinehurst and Southern Pines Sunday, April 11, running one night only at Pinehurst and continuing through Monday and Tuesday, with matinees Sunday and Tuesday, at Southern Pines.

Of special interest to the two communities is the fact that one of the producers is Harrington Harlow, of New York, son of Bob Harlow, editor of "Golf World" at Pinehurst.

The film features seven-year-old Richie Andrusco, a Brooklyn kid, who runs away to Coney Island, where he has many interesting and amusing adventures. "Time" magazine called it one of the funniest pictures ever produced outside of Hollywood and all critics agree that it is a unique and wonderful film which will be long remembered. For a day and a night the little boy wanders at large through the park experiencing just about every sensation dreamed of by a child in his most fanciful moments. He stuffs himself with hot dogs, pop and spun candy, rides the merry-go-round till he's slightly hysterical, goes through fun houses and eventually casts his lot in the pony ride concession. He's crazy about horses.

Following at the Carolina Theatre, Southern Pines, Wednesday and Thursday, April 14-15 (two days) at 8:15 p. m. is a charming tale of the love of a girl and a horse for each other, under the title of "Gypsy Colt," (In Anasco Color) which is sure-fire entertainment for the entire family, especially for lovers of fine horse-flesh.

The horse is a real black beauty and remarkably well trained. Little Donna Corcoran as the girl plays her part as though she were living it, and Ward Bond as her father and Frances Dee as her mother are ideal.

Eric Knight, who wrote the original on which the memorable "Lassie Come Home" was based, performed the same duty on "Gypsy Colt."

Sentimental attachment to animals, particularly to dogs and horses, has almost become a tradition in American films, especially such remarkable horses as Champion and Silver, and now, through the efforts of Metro a new name will be added to that select society. It belongs to a horse; a beautiful, young black colt dubbed "Gypsy."

The 82nd Airborne Infantry Division will parachute into "enemy" territory on Exercise "Flash Burn" at Fort Bragg.

Special Services

Selections from the Easter cantata "From Darkness To Light," sung by the combined West End and Vass Methodist choirs, will form the core of the evening service at the Vass Methodist Church this Sunday at 7:30 o'clock. The pastor of the two churches, the Rev. Edwin C. Boulton, is the director. The combined choirs will sing at the West End Methodist Church at the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

Thursday evening of next week the Rev. Mr. Boulton will conduct a Communion Service here at 7:30 o'clock.

There will be a morning service at 11 on Easter Sunday.

Presbyterian Service

The Rev. C. K. Taffe will preach at the Presbyterian Church at 11 a.m. this Sunday, and there will be special Easter music by the choir.

Attend FHA Convention

Attending the annual State FHA Convention in Raleigh Saturday from the Vass-Lakeview school were: Barbara Griffin, Janice Jackson, Nellie Hart, Kay Keith, Eunice Howell, Carol Jessup, Elise McWilliams, Doris Garner, Carol Thomas, Johnsyne Cameron, Edith Blue, Helen Ring, and Mrs. Jack Morgan, home economics teacher in the school. Mrs. Morgan was assisted in transporting her pupils by R. E. Beasley of the faculty.

The meeting was held in Memorial Auditorium with 3,000 in attendance. Barbara Griffin and Janice Jackson served on the registration committee.

Chapel Program

Mrs. P. A. Wilson's eighth grade gave a chapel program on poetry last Friday before the student body. The program consisted of four choral readings, and four recorded ballads by real ballad singers, procured from the Library of Congress. Students gave an introduction to each of these. This program was the climax of a study of poetry that has been in progress for some time.

Quilting Party

Mrs. Eugene Hicks was hostess at an all-day quilting party at her home on Lobelia Road a few days ago. The group piled their needles so diligently that the day's end found two quilts quilted and a third about half finished.

Guests for the quilting and dinner were: Mrs. L. S. Jessup, Mrs. George Blue, Mrs. Marvin Blue, Mrs. Roland E. Bass, Miss Mabel Cameron, Mrs. Ernest Daniels, and Mrs. A. F. Hicks.
