Safe Driving Ability Rated By 10 Queries

Here's a feature on safe driving distributed by the State Department of Motor Vehicles. Try your hand at the questions and see how you rate. The best drivers—and the safest—ought to get at least nine correct answers, the Motor Vehicles Department says. You have three choices in each question. Mark the one you think is right, then check the end of the column for the correct answers:

- When the speed of a car is increased from 25 mph to 50 mph, the braking distance is increased approximately: (a) four times, (b) three times, (c) twice.
- At 50 mph a reasonably safe distance at which to follow the car ahead is (a) 3, (b) 4, (c) 5 car lengths.
- You are traveling at 45 mph and wish to pass another car traveling at 35 mph. This requires about 10 seconds. The number of feet that your car will travel before you have passed and are back on the right side of the road again is: (a) 300 feet, (b) 450 feet, (c) 660 feet.
- Drivers exceed speed limits chiefly because: (a) they don't know the regulations, (b) they lack skill, (c) they have poor attitudes.
- When the right wheels of your car slip off the pavement, you should: (a) turn back onto the pavement quickly, (b) slow down gradually and steer back onto the pavement when convenient, (c) apply the brakes sharply and cut the wheels hard back onto the pavement.
- While the average driver is moving his foot from the accelerator to the brake, a car going 50 mph will travel approximately: (a) 35 feet, (b) 55 feet, (c) 75 feet.
- A common characteristic of the "show-off" driver is that he (a) does not know the regulations, (b) lacks presence of mind in emergencies, (c) drives too fast for conditions.
- Your car is being overtaken and passed by another car on a two lane road. Just as this car starts to cut in, another approaches around a curve. In most cases it is best to: (a) maintain speed, (b) slow down and give way, (c) speed up.
- As you approach an intersection it becomes apparent that your car will enter the intersection before a car approaching from the street on your right. However, that car's speed is greater than yours. You should: (a) speed up to match his speed, (b) slow down and prepare to stop, (c) maintain your speed and don't let him bluff you.
- A flashing red traffic light means: (a) slow down, (b) stop, (c) congested traffic area.

Answers
 1. (a), 2. (c), 3. (c), 4. (c), 5. (b), 6. (b), 7. (c), 8. (b), 9. (b), 10. (b).

June 18, 19 Mark Grand Opening Of Vass Super-Market

McRae's Grocery in Vass, operated by J. A. McRae, will occupy its new building adjoining its old one on Highway 1 next week, with Friday and Saturday as the Grand Opening Days, but with special prices on certain items continuing for two weeks. On Saturday, the second opening day for the new super-market, eight food baskets are to be given away, as advertised elsewhere in this issue.

The new building, of cement block construction, contains 1500 square feet of floor space. The floor is covered with asphalt tile and cabinets in keeping with modern self-service style are being built.

Demonstrations will be on foods, frozen foods and machine attachments, given by Miss Florence Buckner, with the Carolina Power and Light Company, Mrs. Morgan, and Mrs. McGilvary, Singer Sewing Machine Company representative.

All who are interested are invited to attend these free demonstrations.

Owners of hogs kept within the city limits of Southern Pines are being warned to remove them before December 1 of this year or face prosecution under an existing ordinance that prohibits keeping hogs in town. The ordinance has not heretofore been strictly enforced.

In a letter sent this week to members of the town council, City Manager Tom E. Cunningham reports that the town office is getting complaints about hogs and reveals that the December 1 deadline for getting rid of the animals has been set. In the meantime, the letter notes, owners of pens about which there have been complaints will have to clean them up.

The text of the city manager's letter follows:
 "The hot weather which we have been having has started a growing number of citizen complaints about various persons keeping hogs in the corporate limits of the Town. Of course, the complaints will increase all through the summer months.

"We have a Town Ordinance strictly prohibiting the keeping of a hog or hogs anywhere in the corporate limits of the Town. Therefore, it is my belief that we owe it to the people who must suffer the inconvenience of having a hog located next to them to strictly enforce this ordinance or to remove it from the Town Code of Ordinances. It is my belief that the Council would give no consideration to the latter of these alternatives.

"It would work considerable hardship on those who now own hogs to require them to get rid of them immediately since they would be unable to kill them in the hot weather. Therefore, we are urgently requesting The Pilot and WEEB to inform all citizens who presently have hogs that they do whatever they can to dispose of them as soon as possible. After carefully considering this matter we have decided to set December 1, 1954, as the absolute deadline date for the removal of all hogs from the corporate limits of the Town. On and after this date any violators of the ordinance will be prosecuted.

"In the interim, between now and December 1, 1954, we will require persons either to move the pen or to thoroughly clean up the pens, where we receive citizens' complaints regarding this public nuisance.

"I am sure our citizens will cooperate with us in abating this public nuisance and we are going to do everything we can to keep from working hardships on those who have hogs in the corporate limits at the present time. However, I feel that December 1, 1954, is a fair warning to those who have hogs that they must have them removed before that date."

THEATRES CAROLINA

The magazine Newsweek which is always very conservative in their write-ups of Motion pictures, states first of all that "Three Coins In The Fountain" is a gay, topflight comedy and gives almost an entire page to enthusiastic praise of it. "Even were it materially less of a photoplay entertainment-wise, the offering would be well worth the price of admission for the sheer magnificence of its scenic backgrounds—Rome, Venice and the Italian countryside. An ingenious, masterful blending of the modern and antique glories of today's Italy, they must be seen to be fully appreciated, and it should be unnecessary to report that the above mentioned scenic marvels are further accentuated through the CinemaScope and De Luxe Color.

There is still time to see this extraordinary picture at the Carolina Theatre, this Thursday, Friday and Saturday June 10-11-12 at 8:15 p. m. with a Saturday matinee at 3:00.

Coming to the Carolina Sunday thru Wednesday, June 13-14-15-16 at 8:15 p. m. with matinees Sunday and Tuesday at 3:00 is the deluxe drama with songs, "Flame And The Flesh" starring Lana Turner, Pier Angeli and newcomers Carlos Thompson and Bonar Colleano. Authentic Italian backgrounds of Naples and the resort towns of Amalfi and Positano, the debut of Carlos Thompson as a romantic star, and the transformation of Lana Turner from blonde to brunette, give this romantic drama that "something different" quality and takes nothing away from that aspect of Miss Turner's characterization.

Slated principally for adult, sophisticated audiences, "Flame And The Flesh" is an absorbing story with many plus factors. They are Lana Turner, exceptionally fine photography in Technicolor and scenic splendor. The story of a temptress who uses her striking looks to get what she wants from men provides Miss Turner with a role that exudes plenty of sex appeal

Starting Thursday night, June 17th, at 8:15 p. m. is the CinemaScope production with Stereophonic sound, "King Of The Khyber Rifles" starring Tyrone Power, Terry Moore, Michael Rennie, John Justin and a score of others. An outstanding motion picture has been made of the 37-year-old popular novel with CinemaScope and Technicolor enhancing the panoramic value of the story, and a fine cast adding luster to the action and excitement, which has great entertainment values for the entire family.
