

KIWANIS, AIR FORCE ARE SPONSORS 400 Moore Youngsters Take Part In National Kids' Day Program

National Kids' Day, sponsored by the USAF Air-Ground Operations School and the Sandhills Kiwanis Club, was conducted Saturday for Moore County children eight through 16 years of age.

Kids' Day observances over the nation this year placed emphasis on "the Air Force in its community partnership role." Events of the day were planned by the Kiwanis Club's committee, headed by Lamont Brown, and Major Edward L. Kitchens, project officer representing Brig. Gen. D. W. Jenkins, commandant of the Air-Ground Operations School.

An estimated 400 children from 11 schools of the county gathered at Weaver Auditorium for a greeting, a short film on jet aircraft, and snacks. A convoy of the busses and vehicles transported them to and from Pope Air Force Base where an estimated crowd of 6,000 from the surrounding area viewed many aircraft and exhibits on display. The exhibits were designed to foster public acceptance of the Air Force as the symbol of air power and establish the Air Force as an entity by relating the missions of commands and bases.

"By developing complete cooperation and understanding between personnel of the Air Force and civilian communities all of us help to improve community relations and develop mutual respect," an Air Force spokesman explained.

"By informing members of the community on a person-to-person basis, the Air Force provides a better understanding, within security and propriety limitations, of the individual base and the USAF—its people, policies, missions, capabilities and problems," it was pointed out.

THEATRES CAROLINA

Continuing this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at the Carolina Theatre, is Producer-director Alfred Hitchcock's most exciting, absorbing mystery drama that has provided many chuckles, as well as thrills for the customers who have enjoyed this outstanding picture. "To Catch A Thief," starring Cary Grant and Grace Kelly, includes some of the most magnificent scenes of the colorful countryside around the French Riviera, enhanced to breath-taking beauty by the Vista-Vision-Technicolor photography.

"Now read this—now read this. Here is a tremendously entertaining comedy-drama that will have the moviegoers rocking with laughter in theatres across the nation for a long time to come. Besides the robust humor and splendid performances, the picture also impresses through the magnitude of its presentation in CinemaScope and excellent color photography. Team work, both in acting and production, has produced a whizz of a show."

The foregoing is a verbatim "quote" from a well-known critic after viewing "Mr. Roberts" at its world premiere.

Coming to the Carolina for the entire week of October 2, it will send you away with the exhilarated feeling that there has never been anything on the screen quite like "Mr. Roberts" in several blue moons.

Henry Fonda, recreating his original title role, is just about perfect (this will be a performance to be remembered when Oscar time rolls around). The fine supporting cast includes James Cagney, William Powell and Jack Lemmon, all impressive. The latter, especially, is terrific as goldbricking Ensign Pulver. This film is loaded with audience appeal. The story is warm, touching and believable, and is filled with the kind of earthy, uproarious humor that will infect everyone. Acclaimed one of the outstanding stage hits in Broadway history, it is now even greater, even funnier on the screen.

On account of the extra running time of "Mr. Roberts" (123 minutes) it will be necessary to set the second Sunday night showing back to 9:20.

SUNRISE

Billed by the Sunrise Theatre, where it opens Sunday, is "How To Be Very, Very Popular," new CinemaScope comedy hit starring Betty Grable, Sheree North, Bob Cummings, Charles Coburn and Tommy Noonan, with Orson Bean, Fred Clark, Charlotte Austin, Alice Pearce, Rhys Williams and Andrew Tombes.

Nunnally Johnson wrote, directed and produced the Twentieth-Century-Fox offering, filmed in color by De Luxe.

There is a title song by Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn sung by the Misses Grable and North; another song, "Shake, Rattle and Roll," sung and danced by Miss North; and choreography by Paul Godkin.

Legion Officers Installed Friday

Edgar B. McDonald of Southern Pines was installed as commander of Sandhills Post 134, American Legion, following a fish fry at the Legion Hut in Southern Pines Friday night. Members of the Post Auxiliary were also present. A fish dinner was provided by World War I veterans of the post.

Installation ceremonies were conducted by Gen. R. B. Hill of Southern Pines.

Installed as vice-commander was Henry L. Graves; 2nd vice-commander, Alden G. Bower; finance, W. Ed Cox, Jr.; chaplain, Rev. C. K. Ligon; sergeant at arms, William Kenny; historian, F. M. Dwight; service officer, D. D. Shields Cameron; and judge advocate, J. Vance Rowe, Jr.

The post's 1956 membership drive was launched at the meeting.

Girl Scout Leaders To Meet For Course

Adult Brownie and Girl Scout leaders will meet in the basement of Brownson Memorial Presbyterian Church Thursday night of next week, October 6, for a training course.

All persons interested in the Girl Scouts, especially those wishing to become volunteer leaders, are urged to attend this first training course meeting.
