Fewer daylight hours, fogged windshield and leaf-strewn pavements add up to a greater need for caution and alertness as winter light fails. Reduced speed and increased alertness are the key answers to traffic problems involving poor visibility. Motorists should make it a practice to clean headlamps, windshield and car windows of accumulations of traffic and weather film before the driver's view is obscured.

Korea Described For Rotary Club By Col. Kinnison

Col. Paul Kinnison, a member of the Southern Pines Rotary Club and a staff officer at the USAF Air Ground Operations School here, illustrated a talk on Korea with colored slides of scenes in that Far Eastern nation when he spoke to the club last Friday.

Meeting at the Country Club for their regular luncheon session, Rotarians were told by the speaker that the recorded history of Korea goes back to the year 50 B. C.

Colonel Kinnison traced this history through the introduction of Chinese culture in the fourth century A. D. to the recent conflict between North and South Korea in which the United States took part.

Ninety per cent of Korea's 22 million population depend on agriculture for a livelihood, with fishing the next most important source of income, the speaker said. Korea is about 600 miles long, 135 miles wide and has an area of some 35,000 square miles, he noted, tracing the involved history of the nation's relations with Russia and Japan and various features of Japanese rule in Korea which began after Japan won its war with Russia in 1904-'05.

Korea's widespread and intense interest in education, and its variety of religious beliefs were told by Colonel Kinnison. Hunting experiences there—with the chief game deer and pheasants—were related and were of special interest to club members.

Guests included Major E. B. Crew, of the Marine Corps, who is an instructor at the Air-Ground School; George Casey, Sanford;

Frank Warner, Garden City, N. Y.; Jerry Lynch, Jamestown, N. Y.; Fred Howland, Titusville, Pa.; Dick Hellman, Scarsdale, N. Y.; and James Lightbourne, Jr., Holland, Va.

Though a tiresome task, fallen leaves must be raked up, not only for beauty but for safety. Heavy rains can reach flood proportions by clogged gutters, drains and sewers. Young and old alike receive serious injury from falls on slippery leaves.
