THEATRES CAROLINA

Coming to the Carolina Theatre, almost "on the heels," so to speak, of one of the most extensively publicized weddings ever known, is "The Swan," playing the entire week of May 13, with three Sunday shows at 3, 7 and 9 p.m., and the usual week nights at 8:15 with matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 3 p.m.

But, regardless of the fact that Grace Kelly was married to a prince, her starring vehicle, "The Swan" would be an outstanding entry in the entertainment sweepstakes of the year. It is that good, appraised only as a picture.

"The Swan" is sheer delight, given a beautiful and, obviously, costly production to match its palatial setting and regal principals. Complementing Miss Kelly among the latter are the inimitable Alec Guinness, in his first Hollywood picture, the indomitable but never too regal Agnes Moorehead and Jesse Royce Landis, (who was so delightful in "Meet Me in Las Vegas") and the always effective Brian Aherne.

CinemaScope and Eastman Color, with Stereophonic Sound, not only do justice to, but also embellish abundantly tasteful, interesting and luxuriously designed and furnished sets, and focus a glamorous spotlight on gowns and other feminine raiment that will draw ohhs and ahhs from the distaff members of audiences everywhere.

And Charles Vidor's direction at all times makes the very most of all the splendid talents, raiment and objects d'art at his command to weave an effective spell of completely enchanting make-believe for close to two hours.

"The Swan" is not only a class production, it is superior and satisfying entertainment for the whole family anywhere. Photographed partly in Asheville, also appearing in it is our own Corbett Alexander of the Midland Road Riding Stables.

CORRECTION

An item in last week's Pilot stated that Dr. William F. Hollister of the Pinehurst Surgical Clinic and a staff member of Moore County Hospital, had been appointed an associate professor of surgery in the Duke University School of Medicine. The item should have read that Dr. Hollister was appointed an associate in surgery at the Duke University School of Medicine.

offers three unusual angles in entertainment values.

Faithful admirers of Van Johnson will see their "boy next door" in the peak performance of his career as an escaped alcoholic convict, a performance that bears out the suspected dramatic depths of this actor first encountered in "The Caine Mutiny."

The second angle is the story line itself. The Buddy Adler production, based on a story by Georges Simenon and written for the screen by Sydney Boehm, combines the qualities of sheer, taut suspense with a biting commentary on one phase of modern-day American high life.

The third measure gives a generous view of America's Southwest, newly captured in CinemaScope and De Luxe color and climaxed with close-up shots of the raging Santa Cruz River at flood-tide.

High School Tennis Tournery Slated To Begin Monday

Weather permitting, the season's first tennis tournament in the Sandhills will begin Monday on the Southern Pines courts.

Don Moore, former high school tennis coach at Southern Pines and chairman of the Moore County school tournament, said all school students in the county have been invited to enter.

At a meeting of the Sandhills Tennis Association Monday night, attended by 35 people, it was decided to start the tournament Monday if the weather is suitable. If not at that time, Moore said, the tournament would begin the first "pretty" day.

Members of the Junior Sandhills Tennis Association met with the group and elected officers for the coming year. Julian Pleasants was named president. Other officers are Patty Hobbs, vice-president, and Lillian Bullock, secretary.

Students interested in playing in the school tournament have been requested to contact either Moore, or Ginger Woodell, Lillian Bullock, or Patty Hobbs.

Famous last words: "I forgot to register." You can't vote in this year's primary election unless you register now. Is your name in the book? Registration closes May 12.
