

Twenty-Two Congressmen Pay Tribute To Deane After Valedictory Address

Twenty two members of the U. S. House of Representatives, colleagues of Rep. C. B. Deane of the 8th N. C. Congressional District, paid tribute to the defeated Congressman last week.

The various tributes, all in response to Deane's "courageous valedictory" speech as a House member, took almost two hours. Deane, of Rockingham, was one of three North Carolina House members who refused to sign the "Southern Manifesto" which denounced the U. S. Supreme Court for outlawing racial segregation in the public schools. Deane, along with Rep. Thurman Chatham, was beaten in the May primary. He lost to A. Paul Kitchen, Wadesboro attorney. The other member of the trio, Rep. Harold Cooley, handily won re-nomination over W. K. Debnan, Raleigh radio commentator, after he made a series of speeches in his district reaffirming his belief in racial segregation.

Quotes from several of the tributes:

Rep. John W. McCormack, Democrat of Massachusetts: "He leaves us not defeated, but the victor. He won a victory by acting in accordance with his conscience."

Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina: "I've never admired a man so much in all my life, although I took a different position." Bonner told the House that Deane had made the decision not to sign the manifesto "after getting down on his knees trying to get the advice and guidance that he knew was right."

Rep. Hollifield of California: "Charlie Deane had what was called a 'safe district.' He could have been with us for another 10 years, perhaps, another 20 years, but he made a decision within the sanctity of his own conscience, taking the admonition of the Great Teacher who said 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul.'"

Rep. Cunningham of Iowa: "He is fair-minded, honorable. . . the loss is not to him; the loss is to America and to this Congress."

Rep. Rabaut of Michigan: "He is a victim for that which he espoused. . . only the pages of time will tell of his righteousness, of the things for which he stood."

Rep. Rivers of South Carolina: "Mr. Deane's impression will not soon fade as he leaves this Hall in which he has served so greatly the cause we all cherish, peace on earth and peace in our minds."

Rep. Flood of Pennsylvania: "Mr. Deane's breast has been bared to the slings and arrows of an outrageous fortune the likes of which I have never seen. . . when he leaves this Hall, we will stand and say to each other, 'There goes a man!'"

Rep. Cooley of North Carolina: "He has been a devoted public servant, and has dedicated his life to high ideals and lofty principles and exalted purposes. His life has been a blessing . . . to the Nation and to all mankind throughout the world."

Rep. Durham of North Carolina: "At all times we have not agreed regarding our conclusions, but at such time it has never occurred to me to question the motives which led him to his conclusions, or the integrity of his decision once it was made."

Deane, speaking at the end of one of the longest days of the current session, called on the Congress to rise above politics and place their lives under the direction of God. . . "and think together about the part the Congress can play in the remaking of men and nations, a tremendous, yet challenging and revolutionary task."

(See page 2 for full text of Deane's address).

Get Geography Book, Rotarians Urged At Meeting

International news, members of the Southern Pines Rotary Club were told Friday, is breaking all the time; if you want a better understanding of that news and how it affects the United States, a world geography would be of inestimable help.

Dr. L. M. Daniels, a member of the club and principal speaker at the Friday meeting, told the club he was "just throwing out some ideas" about an interesting hobby. Before he was through he had the entire club bombarding him with questions about places in the world that only a geographer can usually answer.

Dr. Daniels suggested to the club that each member get a standard high school geography or something with substantially the same information in it to make reading of international news more interesting. The club was planning, members were told, to have each member, at some time during the coming year, describe his particular occupation. Rotary has only one member from each business type in each town or city in its membership.

Bob Green, son of Dr. Philip Green, a member of the club, was a guest at the meeting.
