

Stay Off Firing Ranges At Fort Bragg, Army Says

All persons are warned to stay off Fort Bragg firing ranges, Army officials said today. Ranges are in daily use at Fort Bragg and a hazard exists due to firing and unexploded shells.

There are two primary danger areas: the north-east portion of Fort Bragg east of Highway 210. The range area bounded on the east by Gruber Road, on the north by Manchester Road, on the south by Plank Road and on the west by King Road. (The military reservation west of the Division bounded by the perimeter roads.)

Entry into these areas is dangerous and is prohibited, Army officials explained.

Attend Meeting

Delmas Kimball, Herbert Caddell, W. J. Morgan, A. M. Causey, N. N. McLean, W. D. McGill, and the Rev. A. C. Trivette, of the Vass Presbyterian Church, attended a dinner meeting of Men of the Church of District 6, Fayetteville Presbytery, at Camp Monroe Sunday evening.

Unique Gift

Unique and filled with stitches made with loving care—400 to the square inch—is a gift which Mrs. R. G. Rosser received from her son John, a Charlotte pharmacist, for her birthday, which occurred a few days ago. It is a portrait in needlepoint of her husband, the late Dr. R. G. Rosser.

John used kodak pictures he had made to get his pattern for the bust portrait, which is about 16 by 20 inches in size, and worked it with wool thread, using metallic thread for the frame of the glasses. Friends who have seen it marvel at the striking resemblance he was able to achieve with thread. The shoulders, bow tie, and shirt front could not look more like Dr. Rosser's if they had been made with a camera. John made the frame for the picture, also, and Mrs. Rosser proudly has it hung in her living room.

A Son

Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. D. H. McGill of the birth on Monday of a seven-pound son to their daughter-in-law and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Thompson, of Crossnore. They went to Crossnore that evening to bring their granddaughter, Debby McGill, home with them for a while. Mrs. Thompson is the former Opal Baker McGill.

New Management

The Theatre Grill, formerly operated by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lassiter, reopened yesterday under management of Mrs. Duncan Scott, the former Maude Mashburn, of Vass. Mrs. Scott plans to serve plate lunches, short orders, drinks and ice cream, as the Grill has been doing in the past.
