Memorial To Mrs. Cox At Civic Club House Has Been Proposed

Feeling deeply the loss of a good friend and invaluable worker in the Southern Pines Civic Club—Mrs. William E. Cox, Sr., whose tragic death a few days ago shocked this community—several members of the club have expressed a desire to have a memorial to Mrs. Cox placed in the Civic Club, according to information reaching The Pilot. Some voluntary contributions to a memorial fund have been given the club treasurer, Mrs. L. W. Fitch, of 640 North West Broad Street.

The proposed memorial is in the discussion stage at present, with nothing definite in mind, the final choice depending, necessarily, on the amount of money available. Anyone who would like to contribute to this fund may send donations to the above named treasurer.

For years Mrs. Cox was an active worker in the club. She took special interest in making the club and its facilities available to winter residents and in extending hospitality to visitors.

TAKE IT FROM MRS. JOHN H. TILGHMAN, 80th BIRTHDAYS ARE PRETTY SPECIAL

Mrs. J. H. Tilghman thinks that 80th birthdays are something pretty special, and she has good reason for this opinion, based on first hand knowledge.

Saturday afternoon she had had a nap, and (she was thankful to say) had combed her hair when her across-the-street neighbor and special friend, Mrs. Walter E. Blue, arrived. Thinking of something she wanted in the kitchen, Mrs. Tilghman went there for a moment and was surprised to find two other friends, Mrs. R. S. DuRant and Mrs. Lawrence Grover, quietly smuggling refreshments into the room. It was then that she realized a celebration was about to take place.

Within a few minutes Mrs. Nettie Ayers and her guest, Mrs. Inez Bredbeck, Misses Ethel and Ella Jones, Mrs. Harry Menzel, Mrs. Alfred Grover, and Mrs. Carl Foss, had arrived, and the party was on.

Mrs. Tilghman was presented gifts, which she opened and excitedly acknowledged, after which the two hostesses served ice cream and birthday cake. The cake was a delicious pineapple one, decorated with yellow candles.

The party was sandwiched between two other celebrations. The preceding Sunday Mr. and Mrs. John Tilghman and daughter, Beth, entertained Mrs. Tilghman and her other son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tilghman and son Hunter, of Chapel Hill, at dinner at their home in Hamlet. There was a birthday cake, of course.

Last Sunday—her actual birthday anniversary—the two sons and their families came here for an observance. On this day Mrs. Tilghman wore a beautiful orchid, gift of her grandson, Hunter. And, there was another birthday cake.

"I had THREE birthday cakes!" Mrs. Tilghman exclaimed. Fact is, we think she's still eating birthday cake and will be for several days, with happy memories clinging to each morsel.

Heads Are Tops In Interest At Meeting Of NCO Wives Club

Speaking of things that "go to the head," that was exactly what the program presented last Wednesday night at the NCO Wives Club meeting did, and those present were enthusiastic over the result. The meeting was held in the NCO clubroom at the Highland Pines Inn, with the president, Mrs. Sandra Crouch, in charge.

Other local organizations have held style shows of clothing at their meetings, but highlight of this meeting was a hair style show, with Margaret Nance, hair stylist at the Vogue Beauty Shop, as guest artist.

Following in popularity will be platinum baby blond, moonlight and silver. She also discussed hair dyeing and showed a number of samples.

Styles for the show were created by Margaret and her co-workers, Pauline Crossland, shop owner, and Edith Galloway, hairdresser, who were introduced by Margaret. A group of models were on hand to display different hair styles, and each took her turn in the chair while the speaker described the style and discussed its care. Styles shown were the New Yorker, Ruffle Swirls, Career Woman, Italian, Italian Boy, Grecian Chignon, Empire, Bustle, Chameleon, and others.

Models for the show were Mrs. Myra Boes, Mrs. Foy Horton, Mrs. Sandra Crouch, Mrs. Fawcett, Mrs. R. A. Hamel, Mrs. English, Mrs. Nancy Donnell, Mrs. Loretta Eusey, Mrs. Dorothy Patterson, Mrs. Toby White, Mrs. Nancy Howell, Miss Gail Given, Mrs. June Dick, Countess Victoria Di Capodaso, and Miss Kay Davis, all of Southern Pines; Mrs. Lottie Bost of Eagle Springs, Mrs. Irene Thomas of Jackson Springs, Mrs. Frances McAllister of McCain, Miss Obie Ann Smith of Aberdeen, and Miss Beebe Nance of Troy.
