Improvements Noted On Greens At Country Club

Golfers at the Southern Pines Country Club have, in the past month of two, been watching more and more improvements taking place.

Not content with a complete fairways watering system, complete reseeding of all the fairways and greens, officials of the club have recently seen work finished on two spots on the course that will make it far more attractive.

On number two green, workmen have flattened out the area in back of the green, made it bigger and, consequently, easier to see.

Big changes on number seven included the addition of two traps, building up the green, and making it a little flatter.

Work is still not completed but the course is in the best playing condition it has been in more than a decade.

Golfers at the one-day Carolinas Golf Association meet held here Sunday said the improvements had made the course as good as any and, music to the Elks who run it, better than most.

The School of Nursing is one of the units in the Division of Health Affairs of the University of North Carolina located at Chapel Hill.

Local Band Takes Part In Annual Band Day At UNC

Saturday was North Carolina "Band Day" at the University of North Carolina and the Southern Pines band, under the direction of Lynn Ledden, took part for the third time in the annual observance.

Some 67 high school bands from throughout the state performed between halves of the UNC-Wake Forest football game which, incidentally, ended in a 6-6 tie.

More than 5,000 musicians, the largest aggregation ever to play in the state, took part in the half-time entertainment.
