HAS HAD VARIED ARMY CAREER

Lt. Col. Sitterson Named Commanding Officer Of Atomic Artillery Outfit

Lt. Col. John D. Sitterson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sitterson of Southern Pines, has been named commanding officer of the 613th Field Artillery Battalion at Fort Bragg.

The 613th, armed with 280mm "atomic" guns, is scheduled to move to Germany next March as part of Operation Gyroscope, the Army's unit rotation plan.

Col. Sitterson, a native of High Point, attended school here and at North Carolina State College. He left State and entered the United States Military Academy, graduating in 1942 as a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery.

He saw duty in World War 2 with the 78th Infantry Division in Europe.

Following a tour of duty at the Command and General Staff School in Kansas, and an assignment with the Field Artillery test section at Fort Bragg, he was selected for attaché duty in Washington. He attended the Strategic Intelligence School there and also served with Army Intelligence in the Pentagon.

In 1948, Col. Sitterson was appointed assistant military attaché at the American Embassy at New Delhi, India. Perhaps the most important assignment he has held until his present one was his appointment, in late 1949, as the U. S. Army attaché in Burma, where the newly independent nation was in the throes of a civil war.

He returned to this country to attend the advanced course at the artillery school in the class of 1950-51 at Fort Sill. He was later promoted to Lieutenant Colonel and became executive officer and chief of preparation and review of the artillery school's department of extension courses.

In June, 1952, he entered Georgetown University's graduate school where he won a master's degree in international relations. He was then assigned to the office of the assistant chief of staff of G-3, and also did a tour in the office of the Secretary of Defense.

His assignment on the Army General Staff immediately prior to coming to Fort Bragg was in International and Policy Planning Division of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations.

Col. Sitterson is married to the former Marie Hopkins of Kingston, Pa., and Washington. They maintain their home at Fort Bragg.

The 1956 North Carolina cotton crop is forecast at 365,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, according to marketing specialist with the North Carolina Crop Reporting Service. A crop of this size would be 14,000 bales, or 4.0 per cent, above the 351,000 bales harvested last year and 92,000 bales less than the 10 year (1945-54) average.
