Gala Weekend of Social Events

Centers Around Races

Last weekend was the gala weekend of the early Spring season in Southern Pines, with numerous gatherings, large and small, centering around the Stoneybrook races and with many visitors here for the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Winkelman entertained 28 friends at brunch before the races Saturday, and, according to an established custom, people here for the horse shoe and races ended the afternoon at the hospitable Winkelman home, where around 150 guests were entertained.

The Richard Earles had some friends in after the races, including Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Tompkins, Jr., of New York and Mr. and Mrs. H. Haywood and Mrs. Ellen Sloan of Winston-Salem.

Mrs. Jane Dane of Boston gave a luncheon at the Southland Hotel Friday and entertained there again Friday night.

There was a party at the Southern Pines Country Club, with orchestra, on Friday night, and a dinner and dance followed the races Saturday.

Men Make Big Hit In Successful Fashion Show Here

Today, following the Fashion Show in the fellowship hall of the Church of Wide Fellowship staged last night by Patch's Department Store and Patch's Top Shop, the men are really the "talk of the town." All are agreed that they made a big hit, with the kiddies coming in for their share of glory, also, and with due credit to all the charming misses and matrons. Little Ricky Kobler, all diked out from head to toe, and carrying a cane a la Grandpapa Patch, scored a big hit. All of the outfits shown were highly complimented.

The show, sponsored by the church for the benefit of the organ fund, was a distinct success and the sponsors are very grateful for the fine cooperation and generosity of those who made it so.

Alton Clark of Carolina Gardens arranged a lovely setting for the models, using coral azaleas across the front of the stage and greenery relieved by arrangements of white gladioli as a background. Mrs. Tom Nicholson was commentator and music was by David Paddock, pianist, and Roger Gibbs, vocalist.

Sandhills B&PW Club Meets At Pinebluff

The Sandhills Business and Professional Women's Club met at the Methodist Church in Pinehurst Tuesday night. Stanton Hill Club

Since variety is the spice of life, we do believe in variation in our club work. Every year in the spring, "quilting fever" strikes us. Last year under the sponsorship of the Cameron PTA, the Cameron community built a principal's home. Payments are still being made on it, so our club made a quilt and is selling chances on it, the proceeds of which will be turned over to the PTA.

As our quilt was ready to be quilted at our regular meeting time, we made an all day affair of it, combining work, business and pleasure. All the ladies rushed around doing their housework and preparing their favorite dish to carry.

If you have never been to a quilting, you have missed something that is really entertaining as well as profitable. All the leading topics of the day are discussed. (They vary in different communities!) The bond of friendship grows stronger as we work and talk together, helping solve one another's problems. (Usually the quilt is finished by noon. In our case it was understood "no eating until the quilt is finished," so everyone worked hard and it was a welcome greeting when Mrs. Alfred Graham, our hostess, invited us to the dining room with the table loaded with tempting foods made from the prized recipes of our community.

The hour that followed was truly a happy one—no calories counted. Only compliments on the food and exchanges of recipes were made. We had a full hour to relax before beginning our meet-hurst Country Club.

Harold A. Collins, who entered St. Joseph's Hospital Monday for treatment, is said to be recuperating nicely there.

Mr. and Mrs. Lochamy McLean were Sunday supper guests of Mrs. S. R. Smith in Vass.

Mrs. James Boyd, her sister, Miss Elizabeth Lamont of Millbrook, N. Y., and Mrs. C. A. Smith of Pinehurst spent last weekend in Charleston, S. C., and visited the gardens in that section.

Mr. and Mrs. Irie Leonard were in Wilmington from Thursday until Saturday, where they attended a meeting of the North Carolina Education Association. On their way out Saturday they took time to visit the famed Orton Plantation. Their young son, Gregg, spent the time with his grandmother, Mrs. J. R. Copland, Sr., at Burlington.

Spending this week at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge are J. Cecil Beith, new plant manager at Aberdeen for A. & M. Karageusian, Inc., of New Jersey, carpet manufacturers who ing which was conducted by the leader for the month. Never have we had so much real enjoyment by combining an outside project for the betterment of our community with our club program. —By Mrs. Walter McDonald, publicity chairman.

Jackson Springs Club

The Jackson Springs Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Claud Thomas with Mrs. W. M. Thompson as co-hostess. Mrs. Claud Thomas presided. "America The Beautiful" was sung. After the minutes were read and roll called by the secretary, Mrs. Charlie McDonald, Mrs. Elrie Thomas led the devotions.

During the business period a picnic supper was planned for the Ruritan Club.

Miss McDonald, our home agent, presented Fleet Allen, county agent, who gave an informative talk on garden soils, fertilizers, seeds and plants. The best varieties of seed for making vegetables for freezing were recommended. Mr. Allen also stressed the importance of using mulch to hold moisture during the dry weather. Garden plants should be rotated each year to insure the best yield. As a result we feel sure that we will all have more productive gardens this year.

The door prizes were won by Mrs. L. G. Melvin and Mrs. W. E. Graham. The hostesses served cherry pie with whipped cream, potato chips and coffee, and Mrs. W. M. Thompson led a game called "Lovers Vocabulary."

The meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. L. G. Melvin in March. —By Mrs. Claude Thomas, publicity chairman.
